BORAH DECIDES ABOUT RUNNING FOR PRESIDENCY

But Declines to Tell Plans Now.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Some fifty newspaper men flocked to Capitol hill today to interview Senator William E. Borah, the Idaho independent who has been prominently mentioned as a Republican candidate for President. Peppered with queries for 45 minutes, Senator Borah relieved himself of some dry and pithy comment, but left the question of his candidacy still very much a subject for speculation.

"I'm not announcing all that is in my mind," he declared. "I'm not at sea on the subject. I have definitly determined my policy, but I am not ready yet to reveal it. When I deem the time propitious I will make a statement."

When the reporters persisted in their questioning in an effort to obtain a more definite announcement, Senator Borah referred them to an interview with Arthur Sears Henning of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE printed recently. In that interview, in which he expressed his defiance of the Republican old guard, he had given an indication of his views, he said.

"Didn't that article intimate that you favored Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan for the Republican nomination?" Senator Borah was asked.

"I didn't construe it that way," was the reply.

Dialog Reveals Views.

The remainder of the interview today is presented as a dialog between the newspaper men and the senator. Bronzed from his vacation in the west and apparently in the best health he has enjoyed for some time, Senator Borah fired back his answers at his questioners in snappy style.

Q.—What are the Republican chances in the west? A.—The best answer I can give now is that if the election were held this year Mr. Roosevelt would win the west.

Q.—How do you stand now on the AAA? A.—My position has always been and will always be against reduction of production.

Q.—Do you think there will be any moves toward curbing of government expenditures next year? A.—Judging the future from the past—no.

Quizzed About Budget.

Q.—What about balancing the budget? A.—Balancing the budget is not a burning issue in the west.

Q.—Are you going to listen to Mr. Hoover on the radio Saturday night? A. [dryly]—I prefer reading his speeches to listening to them. [Laughter in which Senator Borah joined.]

Q.—Is Hoover a candidate? A.—I don't know what's in his mind. I know he has friends working for him.

May Be New Definition.

Q.—What do you think of the decision of the Louisville federal district court upholding the Guffey coal act? A.—If the decision has been correctly reported it is a new definition of interstate commerce under the constitution and one which the Supreme court, in the Schecter case, rejected.

The senator lost his smile for the first time when asked about his views on the potato control act. On various occasions he has been named as favoring the act.

"Some people seem to labor under the delusion that I supported the potato bill," he remarked. "I did not. I was opposed to it and made my position clear."

Anxious for Peace.

Quizzed about President Roosevelt's neutrality policy, Senator Borah commented:

"His prime purpose seems to be to keep us out of war. With that purpose I am heartily in accord."

The new government in the Philippines?

"I am delighted that they are free," he remarked. "I hope they continue to be."

"Are you thinking of Japan?"

"I have no one particularly in mind."

He declared he did not think the administration would try to revive the NRA, at least by legislative act. If such an attempt were made, he'd be "interested."

He wound up the interview with the announcement that he was going to "make some speeches." These include addresses in Chicago, Baltimore, in Kentucky, and in New England "if they'll let me in."

REVEAL FRENCH CEMENT USE IN N. Y. PWA JOBS

Protest Is Made by American Firms.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—French cement is being used in New York City public schools which are being constructed with funds advanced by the Public Works administration, it became known today, when American cement manufacturers protested that foreign importations were depriving American workmen of employment.

Taking a position similar to that of steel manufacturers, who objected to the use of German steel on the Triborough bridge, a PWA project, the American cement manufacturers said the purchase of foreign materials was contrary to the original aim of the PWA—to relieve unemployment in this country.

Definite Refusal Asked.

The new regulations adopted today by Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes covering the use of foreign materials in PWA projects might not prevent the use of the French, Danish and other foreign cement in New York City schools, the American cement manufacturers said. They urged a definite ban on the use of foreign materials in the twenty-five schools which are being constructed here with PWA funds.

Projects on which French cement has been used in recent months, it was said, are a school in Jackson Heights, a school in Manhattan and in the new [illegible]tion, the contractors working on two new high schools on Staten Island plan to use French cement in certain phases of the construction, the American manufacturers declared.

Used on U. S. Building.

The French cement was used in the construction of the addition to the Federal Reserve building, which was completed here several months ago. The contracts were awarded by the treasury department.

Capt. Maurice G. Roux, president of the International Non-Staining Cement company, importers of cement manufactured by the Lafarge Cement company of France, said his company supplied approximately 500 to 1,000 bags of special imported cement for each of the public schools in which its product was being used. The amount involved, he said, was relatively unimportant in comparison with the total of 30,000 bags required for each building.

Roosevelt Backs Ickes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today officially indorsed the campaign of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes against four large steel companies whom he charges with collusion in bidding on a Public Works administration project.

The federal trade commission has been asked by Ickes to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the submitting of four identical bids on at Morehead City, N. C., project by the Bethlehem Steel company, Carnegie Steel company, Inland Steel company, and Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation.

Asked about the investigation, the President today remarked that there was obvious collusion among the companies "on the face of things."

Mr. Roosevelt also announced that the 15 per cent differential, allowed domestic companies in competition with foreign countries on PWA projects, would be immediately raised to 25 per cent.

BREASTED GETS 30,000 CUNEIFORM TABLETS FOR U. OF C. INSTITUTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 15.—Prof. James H. Breasted, University of Chicago's famed orientalist, announced here today he has obtained the consent of the Persian shah to ship to the Oriental institute at Chicago 30,000 cuneiform tablets. These tablets were found at Persepolis and are now being packed in paraffin to protect the highly fragile clay.

Discovery of the tablets has brought thousands of new cuneiform words to the attention of scholars of early Semitic languages. Dr. Breasted said the Oriental institute, of which he is director, is preparing a cuneiform dictionary for such scholars. It is being worked on by 40 pundits of various countries. Its publication will be a notable date in the cultural history of Chicago as well as a monumental contribution to linguistic science, the orientalist asserted.

Cleveland Mayor Refuses to Close 'Tobacco Road'

Cleveland, O., Nov., 15.—[Special.]—Declaring every man his own censor, Mayor Harold H. Burton today refused to stop the play, "Tobacco Road," tabooed in both Detroit and Chicago. "The people of this town are their own censors," Mayor Burton stated. "They can use their own judgment on the plays they want to see."

$600,000 Will Battle Hits a Musical Note

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Whether "utter indifference" displayed by a person listening to piano or organ music indicates an unsound mind became a point of interest yesterday in the hearing of a suit to set aside the will of Mrs. Marie Louise Murphy, widow of Charles W. Murphy, former owner of the Cubs baseball team. A jury is hearing the case in the Circuit court of Judge Benjamin P. Epstein.

Mr. Murphy died on Oct. 16, 1932, leaving an estate of $2,500,000, from which derived the widow's fortune. Mrs. Murphy lived at 6157 Sheridan road. On Nov. 12, 1933, at the age of 62 years, Mrs. Murphy died of heart disease. Her will distributed most of her $600,000 estate among the families of a brother, Fred Krumdick, 7651 Eggleston avenue, and a sister, Mrs. Blanche Zeller, 5035 Winthrop avenue.

Brother and Sister Omitted.

The document omitted another brother, George Krumdick, [illegible]3 Ontario street, Oak Park, a county highway department employé, and a sister, Mrs. Millie Fry, 1851 West Adams street. George and Mrs. Fry brought the suit to contest the will. They were in court yesterday. They charge that undue influence was exerted on Mrs. Murphy when she made her will on Oct. 19, 1932, three days after her husband's death; that she was mentally incompetent, and that her last name was fraudulently affixed to the document.

The jurors, who, according to attorneys, may sit in the case for two weeks, leaned forward with apparent interest as Mrs. Laura Costello of Cincinnati, attractive gray haired woman, fashionably dressed, took the stand. Her elderly husband, John T. Costello, retired dealer in bonds, had testified that Murphy was a close friend of his.

Sweet Sounds Lose Power.

Mrs. Costello testified that she herself was an organist and a pianist. She asserted it was not customary for persons to hear her play and remain unmoved, but Mrs. Murphy did.

JUDGE EPSTEIN—What was her conduct when you were seated playing the piano or the organ?

MRS. COSTELLO [her large eyes opening wider]—Your honor, it was one of utter indifference.

ATTORNEY C. HELMER JOHNSON [for the objectors]—Do you have an opinion as to whether she was of sound mind? A.—Yes; she was not sound in mind, in my opinion.

Q.—When you play, your back is to your audience, and how do you know that lots of people aren't indifferent to your playing? A.—I only know from what they tell me later. She would say nothing.

The Case of the Opera.

Q.—Don't you know that a great many men can't give attention at the opera, and make it an occasion for a good sleep? A. [sadly]—Yes.

Q.—And are they of unsound mind? A.—No.

Q.—Don't you know that the ordinary person doesn't give a damn for classical music? A.—But I played light semi-classic music to her.

Q.—Ever play any jaz to her? A. [coldly]—I do not play jaz.

Her husband, an immaculately groomed man, who was helped to the witness stand by attorneys, testified that he and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Murphy were together daily during a visit in Los Angeles, and that he and Mrs. Costello had visited the Murphy home here a dozen times. Asked to describe Mrs. Murphy, he began:

"She was a very abnormal woman."

Objection was made, and the remark was stricken from the record. A question was re-stated to him.

"Well," he replied, choosing his words, "she was an extremely silent woman."

Dr. Clement W. K. Briggs testified Mrs. Murphy wore "roses in her hair, a little hat on the back of her head, and dresses that trailed on the ground and had no shape to them." The "no shape to them" was ordered stricken from the record.

MAW'S DONE WITH HER CANNIN'; 2,453 QUARTS ON SHELVES

Marshall, Ark., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Six children do a lot of eating in cold weather, but Mr. and Mrs. Junior McElroy are prepared.

They inventoried the pantry in their farmhouse today and found Mrs. McElroy had canned the following supplies, a total of 2,453 quarts:

Huckleberries, 1,118; apples, 68; blackberries, 154; plums, 42; peaches, 56; tomatoes, 281; mulberries, 6; green beans, 228; corn, 210; soup, 48; peas, 28; kraut, 82; squash, 11; carrots, 17; shelled beans, 26; cucumbers, 26; sandwich spread, 17; piccalilli, 8; corn relish, 4; elderberries, 7, and grape juice, 16.

Hitler Decrees Part Jew Can Be a Citizen

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 15. — Reichsfuehrer Hitler's scheme for "establishing a tolerable relationship between Aryans and Jews" was disclosed today by the issuance of two decrees concerning "German citizenship" and the "protection of German blood and honor."

The decrees implement the anti-Semitic legislation adopted by the September session of the reichstag at Nuremberg, but the publication of the details show that the fanatic extremists failed to obtain fully their avowed aims.

Barred from Right to Vote.

A Jew is defined as a person with at least three Jewish grandparents. All such Jews are excluded from the citizenship. They cannot vote at reichstag elections or stand as candidates. Neither can they vote at a plebiscite, hold honorary public office, or become salaried or honorary civil servants.

Thus all Jews still on government pay rolls will be placed on retired pay on Dec. 31 excepting those Jews who fought in the world war. Althought deprived of their jobs, the war veterans will continue to receive full pay until they reach the retirement age.

No German receives citizenship automatically, the decrees point out. It will be awarded as a "sovereign act," thus enabling authorities to withhold it from undesirables.

Members of national minorities in Germany, such as Poles and Danes, who are of "kindred Aryan blood," will be permitted to become German citizens.

May Fly Own Flag.

While Jews will be allowed to fly their own flag and awarded religious, cultural, and educational freedom in their own circles, it was emphatically proclaimed:

"It has been made impossible for Jews to blend with the German people or participate in the political or cultural development of Germany."

A person with two Jewish grandparents can and is apt to be classed as a Jew or will be so classed if he married a Jew. Persons with one or two Jewish grandparents will be classed as "mixed Jews." They may be granted citizenship subject to various restrictions.

While a "half-Jew" may marry an Aryan or a Jew—thus defining his own position—yet an Aryan may only marry a half-Jew with official permission. The question of whether the "half-Jew" or his father fought in the war will be taken into special account in this connection.

Restriction in Marriages.

To insure that the "quarter-Jew" will be assimilated by the nation, marriage between them is absolutely prohibited, although they are permitted to marry Aryans.

A family is classed as Jewish if the head or one of its male members is a full Jew. Such a family is not permitted to employ Aryan maid servants under 35 years of age.

There is no indication that 2,000,000 part Jews who were classed as German citizens by today's decree, will be given back the posts from which they were ousted.

LINK MURDERS TO REVIVAL OF GANG BATTLES

Two of the Victims Are Ex-Convicts.

Investigators last night were striving to find in the sinuous mazes of the reborn illicit alcohol racket clews to explain three murders on the northwest side within less than 20 hours. The victims were known gangsters.

Two of the three were shot down in a parked automobile yesterday afternoon in front of 2117 Custer street. They were Joseph Scaffido, 28 years old, 329 Jackson street, Milwaukee, and Angelo Kleronomos, 24 years old, 1313 South 58th court, Cicero, Scaffido was an ex-convict.

Third Murder; Fourth Shooting.

The third man slain was Frank Stypulowski, alias Sloan, 25 years old, also an ex-convict, who was sitting Thursday night in an automobile at Paulina street and North avenue when two men drove up beside him and fired three shotgun charges into his head.

A fourth shooting which did not result fatally, but apparently was linked in some way with the slaying of Stypulowski, occurred yesterday afternoon in front of 1438 Holt street. There a woman, accompanied by two men, shot Frank Schaeffer, 34 years old, 425 North Kedzie avenue, in the right shoulder and the neck.

The Double Murder.

Kleronomos and Scaffido were in an Auburn automobile, halted in Custer street, when the car of the killers drew up beside them. The pair, according to witnesses, showed no signs of alarm and seemed to regard those in the other car—a Ford without license plates—as friends.

From the car that halted beside the Auburn stepped two young men. They went to the side on which Scaffido sat. A pistol was thrust through the rear window of the automobile and a bullet fired from short range. It was imbedded in Scaffido's head. The second man then walked around to the other side of the car and killed Kleronomos with a shot between the eyes. The assassins then fired several more times.

Gus Kamka, working in his garage at 2120 Custer street, saw the killings. He reported that the gunmen drove west after the shooting. Alex Olaski, 2113 Custer street, was in his garden and saw the shooting. He told the police that he ran around a corner of his house to make sure he was not struck by a stray bullet.

Woman Sees Killers Flee.

A third witness, Mrs. Antonia Wojtysak, 2151 Irving avenue, reported that she was a half block away, but saw the killers get back into their car and drive away.

Police records showed that Scaffido had been arrested 17 times in Milwaukee and that he was known as a burglar and robber. He had served one term in the Waupun, Wis., prison.

Kleronomos was one of eight brothers residing in the western suburbs. He formerly worked with his brothers, who conduct three fruit stores in Oak Park. George, eldest of the eight, said last night that Angelo was the sole black sheep of the family and that he had persisted in keeping bad company although the others had pleaded with him continuously to take a job in one of the stores. George added that he had not seen Angelo for a week. Another brother intimated that Angelo was in the alky racket.

Confirmed in Note to Wife.

A letter in the slain man's pocket, addressed to his wife, Frances, contained the same indication. In the note Kleronomos expressed deep affection for his wife, but declared he couldn't quit his racket "because it's in my blood and there's a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

The Milwaukee police said that Kleronomos had been arrested in 1932 in connection with a bank robbery at Grafton, Wis., and had confessed participation in the robbery plot. He served part of a one to three year sentence in the Milwaukee Bridewell.

Several suspects were picked up by the Shakespeare avenue police, but all denied knowing anything about the double murder.

In custody at the Racine avenue station last night was Miss Marie Kolowski, 19 years old, 1725 Gerard street. She admitted that she was sitting in Stypulowski's automobile Thursday when he was shot to death.

"He was a friend, but I had known him only a few weeks," said the girl. "We had been eating sandwiches and he was telling me how bum they were when the car came up and the men put shotguns through the window and killed Frank. They didn't miss me much. I was scared and I ran away."

She didn't notify the police, the girl said, because she "didn't want to get mixed up in something I didn't know anything about."

A Link in Two Shootings.

Two factors entered into the linking of the Stypulowski and the Schaeffer shootings. For one thing, the police had discovered in Stypulowski's pocket a paper bearing the address 1412 Holt street, less than a block from the spot where Schaeffer was shot. The second was the arrest of Mrs. Rose Rudy, 25 years old.

Schaeffer declared that he had been visiting Edward Orlowski, 1338 Holt street, and that when he left the house two men and a woman tried to force him into an automobile. He resisted and one of the men dropped a pistol, which was picked up by the woman. She then fired shots that struck him in the right shoulder and neck.

Orlowski pursued the assailants of his friend and saw that they abandoned their automobile in the rear of 1279 Milwaukee avenue. A woman's purse was found in the car. It was left there and guards placed over the car. Mrs. Rudy was arrested when she went up to the car and attempted to get the purse.

Policeman Recognizes Woman.

Mrs. Rudy was viewed at the Bridewell hospital by the wounded Schaeffer, but he failed to identify her. At the Racine avenue station the woman prisoner declined to talk about the shooting. The police are seeking her husband Walter as a suspect. One of the policemen at the station declared that Mrs. Rudy was standing near the car of Stypulowski on Thursday when he was slain.

One of the police theories was that Kleronomos and Scaffido had been running alcohol in from stills in Wisconsin, and that Stypulowski, a paroled convict who got out of Joliet penitentiary little more than a year ago, was one of the deliverymen.

In connection with the murders it was pointed out that there have been numerous instances lately to show that the illegal liquor business is far from dead. Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit regularly seize and destroy bootleg stills. One was taken yesterday afternoon at 2018 Warren avenue with 5,000 gallons of finished alcohol and 10,000 gallons of mash.

Retail Methods Changing.

Only a month ago charges of conspiracy were brought in the federal court against eleven heads of business concerns, all alleged to have aided the illicit drink makers by furnishing them supplies.

The retail end of the business, however, has taken a new course. Liquor stores and most of the saloons sell legitimate or tax paid beverages. The bathtub gin so popular in prohibition times is peddled through the poorer sections of the city by hucksters. One observer reported that the merchants are so highly organized that they have a deliveryman make his rounds and then follow him a few hours later with a bottle collector.

Bootleg alcohol now sells at $9 a five gallon can and the illicit gin at 25 cents a pint. The business is not the huge industry it was in the Capone days, but still profitable enough to attract young gangsters and to furnish them, while they last, a living.

BUS AND 'L' JOINT SERVICE ADDS 6 TRANSFER POINTS

Six additional points of transfer in the joint transfer system between the elevated lines and buses of the Chicago Motor Coach company which the Illinois commerce commission last week ordered put into effect next Jan. 6 were named by the two companies yesterday in filing with the commission regulations governing the use of transfers.

The commission had specified 21 transfer points in its order, but gave the companies authority to add more stations. The six additional elevated stations where transfers may be made on payment of a single 10 cent fare are:

EVANSTON LINE—Sheridan.
HUMBOLDT PARK LINE—Humboldt park.
GARFIELD PARK LINE—Garfield park.
LAKE STREET LINE—Hamilton.
JACKSON PARK LINE—Roosevelt.
KENWOOD LINE—South Park way.

G. A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, announced yesterday that additional transfer privileges between west and south side surface lines will be available starting tomorrow. Transfers are to be granted between lines looping back west on Dearborn street and lines operating on Wabash avenue, transferring passengers walking the two block between the lines.

LETTER REVEALS MURDER VICTIM FORECAST DEATH

CRIMINAL COURT.

Stanley Gurzan, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph B. David.

Three persons who had been questioned in connection with the slaying Thursday of Vincent Cesare, 40 years old, 1444 North Luna avenue, were released last night after lie detector tests showed that they were telling the truth when they declared they knew nothing about the tragedy.

Those who submitted to the tests, made by Prof. Charles Wilson in the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory, are Mrs. Jennie Cesare, 32 years old, 1456 North Keating avenue, the estranged wife of the victim; Joseph Marabito, 49 years old, 1043 North Monticello avenue, and Miss Pearl Zumpf, 30 years old, 2586 Lawrence avenue, a close friend of Cesare. Mrs. Cesare and her husband had been separated for five years.

Note Predicts Violent End.

Marabito was questioned because a note found among Cesare's effects suggested that, if he came to a violent end, his wife and Marabito might know something about the matter. Sherif Arthur Bennett of DuPage county, in charge of the investigation, said he was satisfied with the denials of the three persons and the testimony of their innocence by the lie detector.

Cesare, a plastering contractor who was once accused of a blackmailing plot, was found shot to death early Thursday in Spring road south of Roosevelt road, near Elmhurst. There were two bullets in his head.

Details of the finding of the body, which were suppressed for nearly 18 hours by the Du Page county authorities, were revealed at an inquest held yesterday at Robillard's undertaking rooms in Elmhurst.

Pocket Turned Inside Out.

Deputy Sherif Michael Krause testified a .32 caliber revolver with five discharged cartridges was found alongside the body. Ballistics tests are being made of the weapon. Krause said that Cesare's right pants pocket was turned inside out and that no money was found in his clothing.

Raymond McCann, with whom Cesare roomed, told the authorities that he last saw Cesare Wednesday morning when the contractor said he was leaving at noon of that day for a business trip to Buffalo, N. Y. McCann asserted that Cesare had packed a grip and indicated that he was carrying $200 or $300.

The authorities learned that Cesare had placed the title of his two flat building at the Luna avenue address in the name of Miss Zumpf. An automobile and safety deposit box in a loop bank were also placed in the name of Miss Zumpf.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS DRIVER IS HELD TO JURY IN FATALITY

Raymond Reinwald, 24 years old, 50 East 23d street, Chicago Heights, whose automobile on Nov. 8 fatally injured Charles Fleckner, 66 years old, of 11 West Main street in the suburb, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury yesterday. Reinwald was traced by his automobile license number to his home.

William L. Scherer, 30 years old, 6509 North Artesian avenue, whose automobile injured Dante Guerra, 1730 Altgeld street, on June 23, was sentenced by Judge Eugene J. Holland yesterday to six months in the Bridewell, on a charge of leaving the accident scene. A 90 day sentence on a charge of driving while intoxicated is to run concurrently.

Ciesar Lescynski, 31 years old, 2238 Coyne street, who also uses the name of Robert Ross, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell by Judge Holland on a charge of reckless driving.

Frank Borcy, 23 years old, 910 North May street, consented to the junking of his 1926 model car and the judge dismissed charges. A $100 fine against Joseph Marchisotta, 23 years old, 2144 Ohio street, was rescinded when he let his car be impounded for the rest of this year.

AUTO INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO TWO PEDESTRIANS

Victor Leuschke, 42 years old, 5724 Eddy street, died in the Franklin Boulevard hospital yesterday of injuries incurred earlier in the day when he was struck at Cicero and Armitage avenues by the automobile of Donald Reinhart, 22 years old, 1244 North Lockwood avenue. Reinhart said Leuschke walked into the side of the car. He was held for the inquest today.

Stanley Domanowski, 61 years old, 1659 West 21st street, died in the county hospital yesterday as the aftermath of injuries incurred in an automobile accident on Nov. 1. He was struck by a hit and run machine at 21st place and Paulina street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 855 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period, 665 were killed and 15,336 injured within the Chicago city limits.

WORKERS ASSAIL PWA PURCHASE OF GERMAN STEEL

Steelworkers in Indiana Harbor and labor unions in Gary last night adopted resolutions condemning the use of German steel in projects of the federal Public Works administration.

Members of New Deal lodge, No. 42, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, composed of steel workers from the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company plant in Indiana Harbor, protested the purchase of the steel, and recommended that American labor refuse to handle it, and that a letter of protest be sent to Secretary of Labor Perkins.

The Central Labor council of Gary, comprising representatives from 71 unions, voted to write to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, head of the PWA, to protest against the foreign steel.

The resolution followed the revelation that German steel had been purchased for the Tri-Borough bridge authority in New York and a PWA project in Morehead City, N. C.

A CLEAN COLLAR ON EVERY COP IS MAYOR'S ORDER

The Chicago police department started sprucing up yesterday on orders of Mayor Kelly, who said he wanted to see all policemen dressed properly.

"Every man on the force must be shaved, wear clean linen, and keep his shoes shined," said Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police. "There is no excuse for slovenliness. This means every man in the department."

Capt. Prendergast also ordered 200 plainclothes men back into uniform and said 300 more would be returned to uniform in two weeks. In addition he directed all policemen holding desk and clerical jobs hereafter to appear in uniform.

"We want more uniformed men on the streets," he said.

INDICT WOMAN IN HOTEL DEATH OF DR. GEBHARDT

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special—Miss Vera Stretz was indicted this afternoon for the slaying of Dr. Fritz Gebhardt, the German industrialist who was shot and killed in his apartment at the Hotel Beekman Towers early Tuesday. Miss Stretz was his secretary and his sweetheart, and since the morning of the killing, when she was found huddled in a corridor near his apartment, she has been confined to the women's house of detention on a charge of homicide.

The young woman was indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree. She will be arraigned next Thursday.

Other Woman Identified.

Police announced today that they were on their way to clearing up the mystery regarding another woman in Gebhardt's recent experiences. This woman is known to the police, according to Detective John Kaiser, who refused, however, to disclose her name.

Detective Kaiser was one of several witnesses who were presented to the grand jury. Another was Theodore von Knoop, Gebhardt's business partner.

Gebhardt's friend ridiculed the notion that Gebhardt was a Nazi agent in this country and described him as "a good German not mixed up in politics."

The police also made public two letters from Dr. Gebhardt to Miss Stretz. The first one was mailed on Oct. 14 from Bolzano, Italy. It was couched in affectionate terms and expressed the writer's disappointment at going to the local postoffice and not finding any mail.

Second Letter Bared.

The second letter was much less coherent.

"Dear Vera: My greetings. All the mail I did not receive from you yesterday! I telegraphed from [indecipherable] that I will receive. . . . Nov. 2 leave on the Europa. Please do not come on board, but write or telegraph and tell me where I may see you and if you still live at 3 Mitchell place."

The police attached importance to the writer's injunction that Miss Stretz should not meet him aboard the ship, believing that he may have been accompanied by another woman.

The reports that Miss Stretz was suffering from internal injuries as the result of a struggle with Gebhardt just before the killing were borne out today when it was learned that X-ray pictures of the injuries will be made. She is said to have suffered a ruptured intestine as a result of having been kicked. It is expected that she will plead self-defense if indicted for the murder.

Funeral services were held for Dr. Gebhardt today and the body placed in a receiving vault at Maspeth, N. Y., to await the arrival from Germany of Frau Gebhardt and her two daughters.

Audit Reveals Cash Dealings of Bob and Joe's Law Firm

Currency receipts and disbursements by the former law partnership of Crowe, Gorman & Savage figured in the testimony yesterday at the hearing conducted by Master in Chancery Samuel P. Epstein of the accounting suit brought by former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe against Joseph P. Savage, once his assistant, partner, and close friend.

Robert Vega, member of the firm of Bagley & Vega, accountants, testified that an audit prepared by him of the books of Crowe, Gorman & Savage did not contain any certification of the income of the firm. Its purpose, he said, was to study the expenditures, mainly the amounts withdrawn by Crowe, Savage, and their former partner, George E. Gorman, a master in chancery, who died last January.

Checks Payable to Currency.

"Not a great many of the receipt items were in currency," Mr. Vega declared in answer to a question by Attorney Burrell J. Cramer, who represents Savage. "A great many checks were drawn on the firm payable to currency."

"At least a half million dollars was involved in currency transactions," Mr. Savage explained during the hearing—taking over the examination of the witness temporarily from Attorney Cramer. "That was at Judge Crowe's suggestion." [Mr. Crowe was a Circuit judge before he was elected state's attorney in 1920.]

The purpose of the remarks apparently was to show that all the business of the firm was not shown by the examination Vega made of the books. Crowe and Savage have shown considerable hostility toward each other relative to the splitting of more than a million dollars of receipts by the firm.

Mr. Crowe made a statement to the master that after May 1, 1934, the fees collected by Gorman from his master in chancery hearings were split with him two partners, Crowe and Savage, in cash. An explanation was that the government had insisted on collecting income taxes from Gorman's fees which previously had been commingled with other receipts by the law firm, although there had been a ruling—since suspended—that fees of masters in chancery were not taxable by the government.

Mr. Savage declared that when the partnership was terminated by the death of Master Gorman, the dockets showed $100,000 of uncollected fees due Gorman. The audit, admitted in evidence yesterday by Master Epstein, showed other receipts of $1,123,000 during the six years of the partnership.

During the arguments about cash transactions, Mr. Crowe repeated former charges that Savage secretly split $142,000 with Attorney Francis L. Boutell, a former county commissioner, during the time Savage was a partner with Crowe and Gorman. Crowe again asked about the health of Boutell, who, he said, now shares offices with Savage. He said he is unable to find Boutell to have him served with a subpena to be present at the accounting suit.

At the offices of the law firm with which Boutell was formerly affiliated it was said no public statement was to be made concerning the alleged transactions of Boutell with Savage. Mr. Boutell was said to be out of the city.

In refusing to reopen the quo warranto suit brought by Robert M. Sweitzer to regain his position as county treasurer, from which he was ousted by the county board after the revelation of his shortage as county clerk, Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court declared yesterday that in his judgment Sweitzer was still a defaulter although a jury in the Criminal court had acquitted him.

The state charged in his trial that Sweitzer was $414,129 short in his accounts.

"The fact that the jury found him not guilty does not change the record before me," Judge Fisher said in the course of a hearing in which Attorney I. Harvey Levinson, representing Sweitzer, sought to have the quo warranto suit reopened. On Oct. 15 the judge ruled against Sweitzer in the quo warranto action, holding that the county board was justified in ousting him as treasurer.

Stands on Earlier Opinion.

"I indicated then my belief that he was a defaulter. I am constrained to still so hold," said Judge Fisher.

The judge, however, permitted Attorney Levinson to insert in the record of the case the fact of Sweitzer's acquittal verdict in the Criminal court trial. In this form the quo warranto matter will go to the Illinois Supreme court for a hearing in December.

When Levinson submitted his new evidence yesterday Assistant State's Attorney Hayden Bell objected to its inclusion. There was a sharp colloquy before the court in which Judge Fisher expressed the opinion that legally Sweitzer may have been guilty of a dishonest defalcation without being criminally guilty.

"A jury finding of guilty would sustain this court," said Judge Fisher, "but a jury finding of not guilty may or may not determine the question.

Discuss Legal Technicality.

"Perhaps it is generally overlooked that juries are no longer judges of the law in criminal cases. Under our system of jurisprudence, which denies special verdicts in criminal cases, the jury determines the law to this extent: that they have the power to say that despite the fact that acts were criminal and were committed by the defendant, nevertheless the jury believes that he should not be punished.

"Therefore, the verdict of the jury does not preclude the fact of actual guilt but merely precludes further criminal prosecution. If you want something in the record which I cannot see now, but that you think will help you in the higher court, I am disposed to allow it.

"The judgment heretofore entered by this court will be reëntered on the record as it stands with the amendment [the acquittal verdict]."

Holds Conviction Only Guide.

Mr. Levinson again contended that the only method of determining guilt provided by law was conviction for a criminal offense.

"You are mistaken," said Judge Fisher. "The jury determines two things in its general verdict: Is he guilty and should he be punished. Even in cases where a man may confess his guilt on the witness stand they may say he is not guilty because they think he should not be punished. The jury's verdict is decisive of fact as far as prosecution by the state is concerned, but damages can still be collected in a civil court."

New Report Sweitzer Will Pay.

Sweitzer last night refused to discuss reports that he was considering making a partial payment on money he owes the county as an evidence of good faith. Alexander McKeown Sr., real estate man, would make no comment on a report credited to his son, Alexander Jr., that the senior McKeown was prepared to lend Sweitzer the full amount of his indebtedness.

Sweitzer, while he was on the stand during his trial, testified that the elder McKeown had promised to advance him the money. At that time McKeown denied having made such a promise.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, announced yesterday that a supplementary audit of the county clerk's office to ferret out possible additional shortages in the accounts of Sweitzer during his tenure of office will be undertaken.

The new audit was requested by Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N Bell, who is preparing to institute civil suit for $414,129 against the company which supplied Sweitzer's bond as county clerk.

BARS SIDEWALK SNAPSHOT MEN AS A NUISANCE

A temporary injunction restraining the police from arresting loop sidewalk photographers of News Flash, Inc., 160 North La Salle street, was dissolved yesterday by Superior Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday and in addition the concern's bill for a permanent injunction was dismissed.

In pronouncing his ruling, after a hearing in which Assistant Corporation Counsel William V. Daly presented affidavits of loop business interests who complained against the sidewalk photographers, Judge Miller expressed the opinion that the pedestrian camera men were creating a nuisance, impeding trafic, and in addition were inviting the possibility of blackmail suits against innocent persons. The judge questioned the propriety of snapping photos without the permission of those being photographed.

CATHOLIC PAPER'S BLAST SURPRISES PARTY OF LUTHER

Members of the official party of Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador to the United States who is visiting Chicago on a tour of the central west, expressed surprise yesterday when informed that the Wanderer, Catholic newspaper at St. Paul, Minn., was arousing agitation to refuse to welcome the ambassador on a visit there Monday.

Dr. Luther could not be reached for comment, but one of his party said: "There is nothing we can do about it." At the German consulate here it was said that Dr. Luther had not been informed of an open letter printed in The Wanderer advising St. Paul's 25,000 German-American Catholics not to welcome the ambassador.

In St. Paul, Joseph Matt, editor of The Wanderer, said Hitler's suppression of Catholic activities in Germany was the reason for his publication's attitude.

FARMERS OF FOUR NATIONS AGREE TO HELP GERMANY

Cultivate New Crops for Nazi Market Only.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GOSLAR, Germany, Nov. 15.—"We are training our nation to be ready for a final fight with bolshevism whenever the showdown comes," Walter Richard Darre, leader of the German peasants and minister of agriculture, announced in an interview here today on the shortage of foodstuffs.

The agriculture minister declared he would not introduce food ration cards, but added that "certain countries inimical to Germany may some day decide to attack us," presumably hinting at soviet Russia.

"Then," he said, "it may be necessary to introduce them, but not before."

Need Money for Butter.

Darre said that a sum of about $6,000,000 would be sufficient to buy the foreign butter needed to relieve the shortage on the German market.

"Since money is needed to buy raw materials to provide work for the unemployed, purchases abroad are restricted," he said. "The nation at large is willing to make this small sacrifice for the sake of the unemployed."

The agriculture minister quoted figures to show that the consumption of meat in September dropped only 2 per cent compared with last year. This seems a bit too optimistic in view of the fact that many cuts of meat are missing in German shops and that prices are still rising despite restrictions.

Darre further said that the consumption of meat in the United States dropped 27 per cent in the first half of 1935 compared with 1934.

Unites Farmers on Continent.

Other statements made by Darre and his lieutenants at the farm congress here revealed that the Nazis are succeeding in their plan for closer coöperation among the farmers on the European continent under their leadership. Farmers of Rumania, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, and Bulgaria, for instance, have started cultivation of new crops for the needs of the German market only.

Leaders of farmers of southeastern Europe, who are also taking part in the farm congress, solemnly asked Darre to proclaim Goslar the "capital of the peasantry of Europe regardless of borders." The minister rejected the request.

"I do not believe in supernational associations," he said. "We have seen the idea fail in Geneva. If farmers feel the need of closer coöperation and want to choose Goslar as a site for a central office we will welcome them. We will not assume charge of the office. If it is opened I shall delegate one of my aids as a representative of Germany.

Concentrate on Practical Problems.

"The world has an international organization studying agricultural problems in the international institute at Rome. It is different from Goslar in so far as its main interests are theoretical while we concentrate on practical problems."

Germany plans to surmount her shortage of protein and fat mostly by growing additional fodder and soy beans between normal crops and by making greater use of the silo. She has asked Rumania, Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia and Hungary, with whom she has barter agreements, to grow soy beans, sunflowers, and similar plants for the reich.

ITALIANS LOSE 4 MORE TANKS IN ETHIOPIAN CLASH

Fascists Repulsed; Fever Hampers Advance.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HARRAR, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—The Ethiopian southern command reported today the repulse of an Italian column yesterday at a fortified ford of the Fafan river, midway between Gorahai and Daggah Bur. The Italians were en route from Ual Ual, apparently to reinforce the troops in the Gorahai region. The Ethiopians claim the capture of four more light tanks, which were said to have been pierced by rifle bullets. The Italians lost four tanks in a recent battle at Anele, on the southern front.

Widespread illness among both Italians and Ethiopians, caused chiefly by unburied dead, has resulted in a virtual truce in the fighting around Gorahai. The town has become uninhabitable and has been evacuated by the Ethiopians who defended it so desperately for a week.

Still Dominate Gorahai.

The Ethiopians still command the town, however, having taken a strong position on a ridge two miles away. Working parties are burying the dead, and on the completion of the task the Ethiopians expect to reoccupy Gorahai.

Thirty sick Ethiopian soldiers arrived at Harrar today. They reported that malaria and other illnesses were hampering the Italians far more than the Ethiopians. Bad sanitary conditions following the recent rains and resultant mosquitoes are causing an epidemic of fever, they said. The drinking water is extremely unhealthy for Europeans.

75 Die in All Day Battle.

AZBI, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Surviving warriors of an Ethiopian force which ambushed an Italian Danakil command and raked the desert fighters with machine gun fire fled to the south today, leaving 55 dead and 100 wounded.

Four Italian officers were wounded and 20 of their native troopers were slain as the howling Danakils, swinging heavy, curved swords, charged up hillsides under a rain of machine gun bullets and engaged the enemy in hand to hand combat.

The battle lasted all day yesterday and finally the Ethiopians fled, presumably toward the main Ethiopian army between Antalo and Amba Alaji.

Italians Advance in South.

ROME, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Italian correspondents on the east Ethiopian front reported today that the fall of Harrar, second city of Ethiopia, was imminent. Its capture would give Italy virtually all of eastern Ethiopia and enable it to link its colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland.

A southern Fascist column was driving rapidly toward Harrar in the high valley of the Fanan river, the correspondents reported, after a pitched battle yesterday. They said Col. Maletti and his force of "Flying Dubats" were only about 28 miles from "his immediate objective." He may halt for several days, however, to allow reinforcements to come up.

Ethiopians Await Attack.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

HARRAR, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—Ethiopia's southern war lord, Ras Nasibu, hurried to Jigjiga today to take personal command of the defense of that key city, endangered by the swift advance of the Italian armies.

Jigjiga authorities appealed by telephone for aid, expressing fear the Italian advance forces soon would be within striking distance of the city. Rumors were current here that heavy fighting already had begun, with many casualties on both sides.

The fall of Daggah Bur, less than 100 miles south of Jigjiga, appeared imminent. An official Ethiopian communique said Italian war planes had rained 50 bombs on Daggah Bur yesterday, killing a priest and burning a church.

Army headquarters here demonstrated great distress after Fitaurari Gwangoul, who ranks next to Nasibu in command of Harrar province, was wounded in battle and brought to the French hospital in Harrar.

Emperor Haile Selassie, who talked with Nasibu just before the war lord departed for Jigjiga, told him to engage in no attacks on the Italians for at least a month, but to remain on the defensive.

Nasibu, in turn, told Selassie he believed the Italians would be so weakened by sickness and lack of supplies within three months they would be at the mercy of the Ethiopian army.

Italy Fights Unrest.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Unrest among some of the workmen brought here from Italy was indicated today by a "warning" published in the local newspaper Quotidiano Eritreo.

The paper reminded the men that the Italian government had done much for them and that, in return, it "demands from all the greatest discipline, especially on the part of the workmen who are waiting to be sent back to Italy and who, for unjustified motives, demand embarkation before their turns.

"It is well that possibly riotous persons and those impatient with waiting and unmindful of their dutiful discipline should know that they will be sent back in their proper turn and that their return to Italy will be communicated in advance to the police and to the political authorities."

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Nov. 15.—The United Kingdom has informed the league of nations that after midnight Sunday it will allow no imports from Albania, Austria, Germany, Hungary, or Switzerland unless accompanied by a certificate of origin to prove they are not from Italy and therefore not in violation of sanction three.

This is not only the first measure designed to plug leaks but the first important reprisal against states refusing to forbid Italian imports except the distant United States, Japan, and Brazil. It tends to tie up with red tape the normal export of these countries to the United Kingdom, thus encumbering 10 per cent of all Swiss exports, 8 per cent of German and Hungarian exports, and 5 per cent of Austrian exports.

Every one in those countries who sends anything to Britain, even Christmas packages, will have the vexation of getting a certificate of origin to remind him his country has refused to join in sanction three and is suspected of the worst.

Switzerland sells more in the British market than in Italy. Germany sells the United Kingdom nearly twice as much as it sells Italy.

FREED AFTER BOMB QUIZ.

Emil Klatt, 54 years old, 6248 Drexel avenue, seized Thursday night by the police for questioning about three recent bombings, was released yesterday.

RUMANIAN KING WARNS NATION TO BUILD UP ARMY

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 15.—(AP)—King Carol warned the Rumanian people today that "new endeavors and sacrifices" are necessary to build up a military machine adequate for the country's needs. In an address from the throne to the autumn session of parliament the king said great strides had been made in organizing the arms industry, but that the work was not completed.

The Italo-Ethiopian conflict, he said, cast a shadow across Europe which added greatly to the international tension. The king said sanctions against Italy, "in which Rumania coöperates as a loyal member of the league of antions," imposed a heavy load on Rumania.

4 ITALIAN BANKERS SENT INTO EXILE FOR 'BOOTLEGGING' MONEY

ROME, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Sentences of five years on prison islands were given today to each of four Genoese bankers accused of "money bootlegging."

Two of the men, Natale Amici and Bartolome Pippo, were directors of banks bearing their names, and the other two were their accomplices. They were arrested on information provided by the Bank of Italy.

In addition to the sentences of banishment, the ministry of finance, fined each man 230,000 lire and closed the banks.

2 FRENCH PLANES COLLIDE IN AIR; 3 DIE; 4 MISSING

MARSEILLES, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Three persons are dead and four missing as a result of a crash of army and navy planes over the Gulf of Fos today. An officer and two enlisted men in a seaplane from the Toulon naval base were drowned. Four occupants of an army plane from Marignanne airport jumped in parachutes after the crash and are missing.

2 Killed in Crash in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Two passengers were killed and the pilot severely injured today when an airplane crashed in the Chihuahua mountains. The dead are Gilberto Ochowa, sportsman and aviator, and Manuel Quiroz, federal mining inspector. Greta Bravo, the Spanish woman flyer, was sought today somewhere in the state of Oaxaca. With three passengers she took off yesterday morning for Arriaga Chiapas on a political campaign flight. No report came from her in the succeeding 24 hours.

'Black Eagle' of Harlem Quits Ethiopian Army Post

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Hubert Julian, the "Black Eagle of Harlem," sent his resignation from the Ethiopian army to Emperor Haile Selassie today. He asked that he be relieved from all aviation and military duties on the ground that his authority was not respected. "I'm going back to a country that understands me better," he said as he bought railroad and steamer tickets for the United States.

MUTINY IN BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN NAVY IS FEARED

Sailors Are Irked by Long Inactive Service.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Premier Mussolini is counting heavily on the low morale of British sailors, fed up with months of inaction at sea, to win his struggle with Great Britain over the war in Ethiopia.

The Italian secret service is said to have information that the morale of the Mediterranean fleet is bad and likely to get worse in the next few weeks. This fact is said to be causing the British admiralty some concern.

The Italians hope that before long the British will be faced with the serious danger of mutinies in the fleet and will be glad to recall some of their battleships to home waters. Hence Il Duce, in diplomatic negotiations with Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome, is stalling for time and showing no readiness to placate the British by recalling another division of troops from Libya.

The reason morale is bad in the British fleet is that it is manned to a large extent by reservists, who thought they were being called to the colors for only short term duty in port and near home. They have now been in Mediterranean waters for nearly three months. In time of war this could be taken for granted, but now there is not even the prospect of a fight to keep the minds of the sailors occupied.

Duce Fixes Boycott Rules.

ROME, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The will of Premier Mussolini went into every village of Italy to stiffen discipline and harmonize resistance to the league of nation's economic siege, which will begin Monday.

Il Duce assembled the prefects of Italy's 96 provinces into a secret session and gave them orders for a fight against sanctions.

His direct representatives, the prefects, must see that in every corner economies that Mussolini wishes are applied. They are to coördinate their work with Fascist organizations, whose millions of members are in touch with every family.

New taxes were decreed on imported coal, copper, tin, and nickel. Such import, which are under a special monopoly, must be licensed and will pay an additional two and one-half per cent if subject to a business turnover tax, and 10 per cent if they are exempt from that charge.

Nazis Tighten Arms Control.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—Trade in arms was placed under stricter control in Germany today by a decree making all exports of war materials dependent on special permits granted with the approval of the war minister. All offenders will be heavily punished. Details of the materials involved will be published later. It was explained that the new regulations resemble those of other countries manufacturing arms.

Chicago Girl Acquitted in Deaths of 2 in Italy

FLORENCE, Italy, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Miss Jane Morrison, 23 years old, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Clayton Morrison, 6144 Kimbark avenue, Chicago, was acquitted today on charges of responsibility in the death of a man and a woman killed on June 3 when her automobile collided with their motorcycle. Miss Morrison, a graduate of Oberlin college, has been in Italy for the last year and a half studying art. The Rev. Mr. Morrison is editor of the Christian Century.

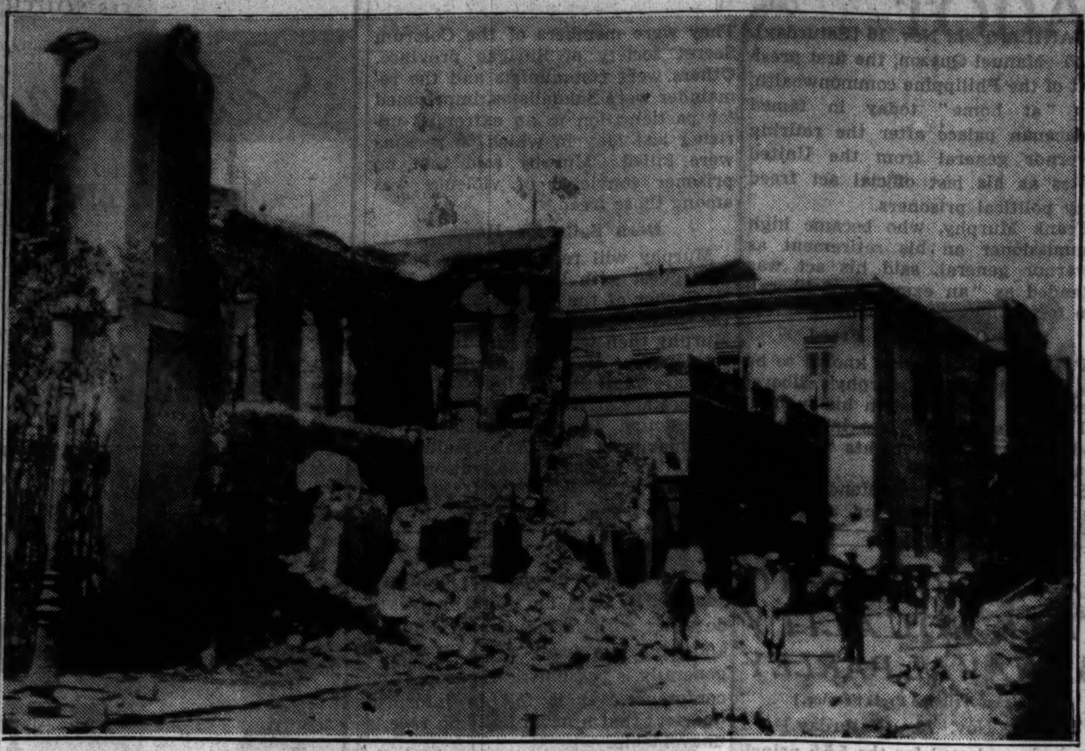
[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The entire British navy can now pass through the Suez canal with a greater margin of safety as a result of the permanent deepening of the 100 mile long channel by one foot, which the canal company announced today. Vessels now entering the canal will be permitted to have a maximum draught of 34 feet, as against 33 feet hitherto.

Egyptian Rioting Recalls Bombardment of Alexandria



The current fatal rioting against the British in Cairo recalls the bombardment of Alexandria by the British fleet in 1882. The attack followed a massacre of Christians. This picture shows what happened to the British consulate in 1882.

EGYPT ENJOYS 'TRUCE' UNDER BRITISH GUNS

Rioting Is Halted for Holy Day.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 15.—A "truce of God" was observed in Egypt today—the Moslem Sabbath—though police vigilance was unrelaxed and strategic points in Cairo were watched by squad cars in which rode British officers and guards armed with rifles.

Not even the most optimistic think the Egyptians have been cowed by the four killings in two days of anti-British rioting, but for a day the uprising went into the stage of verbal polemics.

Egyptian leaders expressed satisfaction that the outbreaks were not "planned." This proves, they said, that they were sincere and spontaneous and expressed the heartfelt desire of the Egyptian people for freedom from British domination.

Assail British Reaction.

A subject of fiery comment was the reaction of the London press, and especially the declaration of the Liberal News Chronicle that "the British are surprised at Egypt's hostility, thinking the common opposition to Premier Mussolini's Ethiopian adventure had contributed to ameliorate Anglo-Egyptian relations."

This statement, along with another that "no excuse exists for savage riots," was taken by representative Egyptians as a superb example of the cunning naivete by which the British rule nations and proof of the extreme measures necessary to impigne on the British pachyderm.

Political developments are now occupying attention since Premier Nessim Pasha is disregarding the demand of the powerful Wafd political party to resign. The question is how long the premier will be able to resist the pressure.

Premier Defends Rule.

Nessim yesterday issued a long defense of his year in power. He sought to exonerate himself of the charge that he is an inert standpatter complacent to the British.

In astute diplomatic language, Nessim contrived to forestall possible criticism of King Faud, saying the latter favored a return last April to the 1923 constitution, which is desired by the Wafd party. At the same time Nessim insinuated that the British have been an obstacle to the people's will.

A new decree was issued today under which the council of ministers may suppress arbitrarily any publication printing false or inflammatory news—and inflammatory means anti-British.

Thus a damper has been put on the local Arab press, which expresses itself with oriental lack of restraint and wealth of metaphor.

BRITISH ELECTION COSTS CABINET TWO MacDONALDS

Father and Son Lose; All Other Ministers Win.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's National government will have a majority of from 245 to 250 seats in the next house of commons. This became evident tonight with the official announcement of results of yesterday's elections in 600 out of 615 constituencies. The majority of the National government in the last parliament was 411 seats.

Results in one more constituency in Scotland and 14 seats representing the universities of the country will be announced next week. With the exception of these 15 seats, the standing of the parties is as follows:

Labor Gains 96 Seats.

The figures show that the Conservatives gained eight seats from the opposition and lost 79. The Labor party gained 96 seats, recuperating some of its 1931 losses, but fell short by 100 seats of predicted gains. The historic Liberal party, which has figured so prominently in Great Britain's affairs in the last century, was routed and its numbers reduced to inconsequence as a political influence.

In personalities the outstanding results were the crushing defeats of Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council and former Labor prime minister who became the first leader of the national government five years ago, and his son, Malcolm, minister of colonies.

The elder MacDonald bolted the ranks of the Labor party to form the national government and bring in other parties at the time Britain went off the gold standard. He was repudiated by Labor and the miners of his Seaham constituency paid him back. MacDonald's Laborite opponent, E. Shinwell, won by 20,000 votes.

Calls Campaign "Filthy."

"The contest was a keen one and a filthy one, too," MacDonald remarked bitterly upon his return to London.

The former prime minister may still remain in politics. He might replace some one who is to be made a peer next January or he might become Lord Lossiemouth himself, according to rumors.

Apart from the MacDonalds, every other member of the cabinet was returned to parliament. Walter Elliot, minister of agriculture, won by 2 votes on the first count in Glasgow and on a recount this margin was increased to 150.

Winston Churchill, who has been mentioned as the next first lord of the admiralty, won his contest by 20,000 votes. His son, Randolph, was defeated.

"It was a splendid result," Baldwin said in a statement. "The country has renewed its support of the national government. It has expressed decisively its confidence in our will and ability to continue our work for national restoration and world peace."

Must Revamp Cabinet.

Baldwin is expected to proceed with the revamping of his cabinet next week. He must pick successors for the two MacDonalds, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, and Lord Cunliffe-Lister, air minister. The latter two were not candidates for reëlection. It is also reported that Baldwin will find another cabinet post for Capt. Anthony Eden, minister for league of nations affairs.

The newly elected members of parliament meet at Westminster on Nov. 26 to take their oath of allegiance to the crown. This procedure will occupy three days after which commons will adjourn until Dec. 3 when King George will open the new parliament.

RECALLED GREEK KING BEMOANS HIS 'LOSS OF LIBERTY'

He'd Rather Stay in Easy Exile.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 16 [Saturday].—Contrasting sharply with the mass of pleasant stuff being printed about King George of Greece, who is passing through Paris on his way to reclaim his throne, the daily Oeuvre this morning prints what it calls a "sincere interview with the king" obtained by one of its reporters. L'oeuvre quotes the king as saying:

"The plebiscite was too good. I didn't ask that much. This Kondylis [Regent George Kondylis], who once caused me to lose my throne, has now gone too far."

King Business Not Easy.

He then expressed regret at leaving behind a carefree exile in England, and added:

"British aristocracy, the pretty women of London, and liberty, too, I must now leave behind. You are unaware of the tribulations of our dynasty. The business of being a king is not easy in Greece. Have you forgotten my grandfather, who was assassinated in 1913, the abdication of my father, and the death of my brother, who succeeded him?

"What is really terrible down there at Athens is the rapid succession of governments. Do you know my grandfather appointed 52 premiers? Constantine in 4 years named eight. I had two. What consoles me somewhat is that the republic was no more fortunate. It had 25 cabinets and two dictatorships. How do you expect me, in view of all this, to be delighted about becoming king?"

Britain Stands to Benefit.

The British, knowing the Greek monarchy was coming, promised to support it in return for naval bases, it is learned. It is expected that one of King George's first acts will be to grant the British naval base rights on the island of Cephalonia in exchange for Cyprus.

The British, it is understood, have been trying to get Cephalonia ever since the world war on account of its strategic value for protection of the route to India.

Britain might possibly have made the same deal with the Greek republic, but seeing the monarchy coming, exploited that fact.

Urges British-French Ties.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—King George II. of Greece urged Premier Laval of France to work in close coöperation with Great Britain today, informed circles said. The king, who talked to Laval for half an hour, is reported to have stressed that the collaboration of France and Britain is essential for European stability. President Lebrun will give a dinner tomorrow for George.

Calf Lunches on Dynamite; Careful Farmer Kills It

Shenandoah, Ia., Nov. 15.—(AP)—R. G. Meyers, Essex, Ia., farmer, killed his calf today. It ate dynamite which didn't explode, but made the calf very ill. "That's the reason I killed it," said Meyers.

JAPAN ANGERED BY NEW HOSTILE ACTS OF CHINESE

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 16.—[Saturday.]—The ominous lull continued today in Shanghai where tension increases the longer Japan defers presenting formal demands in connection with the slaying of a Japanese marine a week ago and other anti-Japanese incidents.

Meanwhile, serious demonstrations of anti-Japanese sentiment are reported from Hankow, Shasi, Ichang, Kiukiang, Changsha and Chunking, and the Japanese consul general in Hankow has called the consuls of those ports to confer in Hankow Monday and Tuesday.

Four Admirals Confer.

A conference of four Japanese admirals here yesterday further increased the tension, and the wholesale exodus from the Chapei [Chinese] quarter of Shanghai continued all day, despite a driving rain and bitter winds. Many parts of the native quarters resemble abandoned cities. It is estimated that more than 150,000 Chinese have fled, most of them seeking shelter in the International Settlement.

A Japanese army spokesman at Tientsin announced that Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commandant of the Japanese garrison there, viewed with seriousness the reported concentration of Chinese troops in Honan province which, the Japanese hold, violates Chinese-Japanese agreements and constitutes a menace to peace and order in north China.

Troops at Great Wall.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, Nov. 16.—[Saturday.]—Although travelers from northeastern points today confirmed the reported concentration of Japanese troops at Shanhaikwan, where they have occupied railway waiting rooms as barracks at the edge of the great wall of China, Col. Takahashi, Japanese military attaché here, disclaimed any knowledge of the troop movement.

He said that "that is an affair of the Kwantung army headquarters" and that the Japanese army is always more or less on the move.

"However," he continued, "should the troops actually enter north China I would be notified, and thus far I have not received formal notice."

Channon, Ex-Chicagoan, Elected to Parliament

A former Chicagoan was among those elected to the British parliament in Thursday's general elections. He is Henry [Chips] Channon, son of Harry and Mrs. Westover Channon of Chicago. He was elected from the Southend section of London to succeed his mother-in-law, Lady Iveagh. Channon has lived in London since he was graduated from Oxford university in 1921. He is a naturalized British subject.

Murphy, as Last Act, Frees 60 Philippine Political Prisoners

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 16 [Saturday].—(AP)—Manuel Quezon, the first president of the Philippine commonwealth, was "at home" today in famed Malacanan palace after the retiring governor general from the United States as his last official act freed sixty political prisoners.

Frank Murphy, who became high commissioner on his retirement as governor general, said his act was intended as "an example of liberalism to the new government."

Some Communists Freed.

President Quezon was known to be in sympathy with Murphy's liberal views, but he warned in his inaugural address that lawless individuals and subversive movements "shall be dealt with firmly."

Some of the political offenders freed had been in prison for a decade. They were members of the Colorum Secret society of Surigao province. Others were communists and the remainder were Sakdalistas, imprisoned for participation in an extremist uprising last May in which 60 persons were killed. Murphy said that no prisoner convicted of violence was among those freed.

Dern Sails for Home.

Murphy will remain in the palace as a guest with Vice President John N. Garner of the United States until the latter's departure on Nov. 20. Murphy then will take up temporary residence at Baguio until new quarters are built in Manila.

Secretary of War George Dern, who represented President Roosevelt at the inaugural ceremonies, sailed for the United States on the cruiser Chester at 6:30 a. m. today [4:30 p. m. Friday, Chicago time].

JAP ENVOY OFF TO SEEK EQUALITY AT NAVAL PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 16.—[Saturday.]—"I am body and soul for the 5-5-5 principle and shall do my utmost to attain this. My countrymen may rest assured I shall absolutely oppose the 5-5-3 ratio."

This was the declaration today of Admiral Osami Nagano, chief delegate to the London naval conference next month, as, accompanied by a large delegation, he prepared to leave for London via Siberia. Foreign Minister Koki Hirota, Naval Minister Mineo Osumi, Tsuneo Matsudaira, ambassador to London, and others bade him farewell at the railway station.

The beaming Nagano, who is noted for his silence, nodded as he heard advice. He said he would strive to do away with formalities at London and exchange frank talks. Opinion generally is pessimistic regarding the conference. It is felt in informed quarters that a naval building race is unavoidable.

Alvira Vargas, Daughter of Brazil President, Here

Miss Alvira Vargas, 19 years old, daughter of Getulio Vargas, president of the Brazilian republic, arrived in Chicago last night on a tour of the United States. With two companions she motored here from Washington. Her companions are Miss Zazi Aranha and Miss Lais Aranha, daughter and sister of the Brazilian ambassador to the United States. The three are staying at the Drake hotel. They will leave on Monday for Detroit.

MEXICO PERILED BY NEW STRIFE; PRESIDENT IS ILL

Report Cardenas May Be Forced to Resign.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—Mexican peace was seriously threatened today by reports that President Lazaro Cardenas is suffering from undulant fever and may be forced to leave office temporarily. Secrecy surrounds the diagnosis, which has not been confirmed officially, but a reliable source insists, despite denials, that the president is seriously ill.

It was also revealed that a secret meeting of the higher officials in the government was held last Tuesday to choose a suitable candidate in case the president is unable to continue his duties.

Consternation reigned in political circles today following reports that former President Gen. Abelardo L. Rodriguez had urgently been recalled from Italy. Rodriguez left the presidency on Nov. 24, 1934, after serving two years, being succeeded by Cardenas. He is famous as a military "strong man."

Others Are Mentioned.

Among others rumored as candidates to succeed Cardenas are Rafael Sanchez Tapia, secretary of national economy, and Gen. Francisco J. Mujica, secretary of communications and public works.

Emilio Portes Gil, former president and present head of the National Revolutionary party, is said to be strongly in favor of Marte Gomez, who is in Geneva as this country's representative. Since Portes Gil is recognized as the right hand man to the president, it is believed his candidate has a strong chance of winning.

The situation, from whatever standpoint, is considered serious. Cardenas has by sheer force of his personality maintained a majority control in the cabinet against the remnants of former President Elias Plutarco Calles' party, which is by no means completely vanquished. An opportunity such as this will inevitably be seized by the opposition as a means of seeking to regain control of the country. So bitter is the feeling between the Cardenas-Calles forces that even civil war may result.

News of Illness Suppressed.

All mention of the president's illness has been kept out of the press, for this reason. In the interior of the republic clashes between rebel groups have increased in frequency in the past month and these have been attributed to "Callista" generals.

In the state of Jalisco Lauro Rocho and his group fought a serious battle with federal troops last week, which resulted in many casualties. The states of Guerrero, Tabasco, Yucatan and Tamaulipas are seething with internal disturbances. The future peace of Mexico lies completely in the hands of Cardenas' successor, if one is inevitable, and for that reason the government is proceeding with much secrecy and care.

Undulant fever, or Malta fever, from which Cardenas is said to be suffering, was discovered by an American investigator, Alice Evans, who contracted the disease during her work. It is a chronic illness which seriously incapacitates the patient.

Six Rebels Slain by Troops.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara said today that six rebels had been killed in a fight with federal troops near San José de Gracia, in the state of Jalisco.

REPLY TO K. OF C. PROTEST IS SENT BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has sent a reply to the Knights of Columbus protest that he had been silent on the Mexican religious issue.

The reply, it was learned today, was sent several days ago to Martin H. Carmody, head of the knights, at national headquarters in New Haven, Conn.

The White House did not make the letter public, although it was understood there would be no objection to its publication if Carmody desired.

Sharp, clear mogadore stripes have always been a reigning favorite among all types of men. But they had one disadvantage—the silk weave was so fine that the fabric was not as sturdy as many others. Silk moire, on the other hand, has long been famous for its good looks and its long wear. Now the two have been combined and you get the sharp mogadore stripings, plus the moire effect, and the long wear for which moire is famous! We've literally scooped the town to bring them to you at this money-saving price! In sixty different color combinations. $1.

DEADLINE FINDS WPA 7,847 SHORT OF ITS JOB GOAL

A final survey last night by federal Works Progress administration officials disclosed that 92,153 persons have been employed on "made" work projects in Illinois, or 7,847 less than the 100,000 quota set for yesterday, Nov. 15, by Washington planners of the program. Employés on WPA projects in Chicago numbered 43,385.

Although a second edict from national officials is the employment of 183,500 by Nov. 25, Ralph H. Burke, deputy WPA administrator for the state, said that he was not downhearted.

"We're putting the people on as fast as we can, consistent with good management," said Burke.

Meanwhile 800 WPA laborers with picks and shovels thronged Northerly Island, former Century of Progress site, as the preliminary work of preparing for construction of Chicago's permanent lake front exposition was begun.

PWA Takes Bids This Month.

The other governmental spending body, Public Works administration [PWA], which like WPA draws from the four billion dollar congressional appropriation for shifting persons from the relief rolls to "made" jobs, will receive construction bids on $17,462,868 worth of work in the state this month.

Carl H. Bauer, state director of PWA, said that the total amount of PWA money in grants and loans for 69 projects involved was $9,624,619. Sponsors of the projects will contribute the remainder.

Meanwhile, the Illinois emergency relief commission prepared to liquidate further as the federal government took persons off the dole. At a meeting in Chicago yesterday the IERC voted to transfer to WPA tools and equipment valued at $318,880, which constituted a carryover from the old Civil Works administration. Equipment at the transient relief camps, valued at $192,018, was transferred to WPA, which will operate the camps.

Hold Parley on Cash Plan.

Members of the IERC held an extended executive session on the new cash relief plan for Cook county. It was decided to continue giving disbursing orders to clients for coal, shoes, and medical care. Other needs, including groceries, rent, clothing, and household necessities, will be met by checks distributed to clients. Leo J. Lyons, county relief administrator, was asked what would happen if a client spent all his money on a spree.

"Then he or she and the family," Lyons said, "will go back on the disbursing order system."

The commission discovered it had only 100 cooking stoves in its warehouse, but decided to purchase stoves for clients as they needed them instead of by contract.

WPA officials asked permission of County Assessor John S. Clark yesterday to use his records for a "land use survey," or door bell ringing project in Cook county. Clark reserved decision until next week.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago and Mrs. Hutchins will depart today on a vacation. Dr. Hutchins will speak in several western cities and he and Mrs. Hutchins will sail from San Francisco for Hawaii on Nov. 29. They will return to Chicago Dec. 21.

INDICT FORMER CLERK OF WILL COUNTY IN SHORTAGE OF $18,000

Albion F. Delander, county clerk of Will county for 12 years until last Dec. 3, was indicted by the Will county grand jury yesterday on charges of embezzlement, embezzlement as a public officer, and larceny by bailee. The indictments were returned before Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson in Joliet.

State's Attorney Will R. McCabe, who presented the case to the grand jurors, said that there was a shortage of $18,683 in Delander's accounts when he left office, as revealed by an audit at that time.

Delander, in a statement, said that the shortage was occasioned by the closing of banks, where about $4,000 of the money was deposited, and by the "souring" of municipal bonds in which about $14,000 of the county's money had been invested by the clerk.

"If left alone," Delander said, "I can make good the deficit. I have never repudiated an obligation. I did what I thought was best with the funds in my care, but apparently my judgment, like that of thousands of others during the depression, failed to save the situation."

GARMENT MAKING PROJECT OF WPA BRINGS PROTESTS

A group of 75 manufacturers of women's garments in Chicago issued a protest yesterday against plans of the federal Works Progress administration to make women's wash dresses. According to Mary G. Moon, WPA state director of women's work, approximately $1,500,000 will be spent in Chicago and downstate on sewing projects. The garments will be given to relief clients.

The manufacturers' protest was forwarded to Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA administrator, by James L. Donnelly, executive secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. His letter said:

"For the WPA to engage in the manufacture of garments in competition with private industry is extremely unfair and will defeat the purpose of WPA by adding to unemployment. The manufacture of these garments, amounting to 83,000 dozen, is the equivalent of 40,000 working days. It will force at least 500 girls out of work."

Student Beaten and Robbed of 50 Cents and Clothing

Caroll Kippenhau, 20 years old, 210 South Ashland avenue, a medical student at Loyola university, was robbed of 50 cents and most of his clothing last night by two bandits. He was walking home from a dance when the robbers forced him into their car at Monroe street and Ashland avenue. He was driven to an alley back of 2059 West Madison street, where he was forced to give up his suit, top coat, and hat and his money. The robbers slugged him and flad.

Miss Martha Purnell, a blonde senior student, was chosen empress of the annual navy ball of Northwestern university last night in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The committee which chose Miss Purnell as empress out of the 16 girls contesting for the title were: Rear Admiral John Downes, Capt. E. D. Washburn Jr., and Lieutenant Commander J. P. Phillips. More than 800 students attended.

RIFT OVER G. O. P. FUNDS HASTENS MOVE FOR PEACE

Near Settlement on Rule of State Cash.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Settlement of the dispute over campaign funds between John H. Searing, Republican state chairman, and the Illinois Republican Citizens' organization appeared in sight last night.

A conference was held between Thomas J. Houston and John F. Tyrrell, who were named as plenipotentiaries by Searing, and Harold Beacom, of the citizens' group. At its close Mr. Beacom announced the discussion was "long and friendly and we do not anticipate any further controversy."

The controversy arose when State Chairman Searing made public a letter challenging the right of the citizens' group to solicit contributions, and demanding that the organization turn over the funds it has collected to H. C. Horneman, treasurer of the state central committee.

Disband and Refund? No! No!

In the conference Mr. Beacom remarked that one way to end the dispute would be for the citizens' group to suspend activities, send back the money collected, and call it a day. Messrs. Tyrrell and Houston spoke against this and urged that the activities of the group be continued. It was pointed out that last year the citizens' group collected about $50,000, which was turned over to the state committee for the campaign.

The citizens' group took the attitude that it would not turn over its funds in bulk to the state committee as demanded by Mr. Searing, and that it proposes to determine how its funds shall be spent, as now. The understanding was that Mr. Tyrrell and Mr. Houston would convey this information to Mr. Searing.

Meantime while the dove of peace flew over the conference in Chicago, Mr. Searing, down at Carbondale, was whanging away again with the birdshot. He said he would shortly call a meeting of the executive committee of the state G. O. P. committee.

A New Blast at Strawn.

"It will discuss enjoining Silas Strawn and his group from collecting any more money and make them account for the money already got," Searing said.

Replying to the remark of Justus Johnson, ex-state chairman, that Searing's atack on the citizens' group was ill advised, Chairman Searing said:

"It is Johnson himself who is ill advised. He is just a henchman of Strawn."

Retorting to this, Mr. Johnson, who was state chairman in the campaign last year, said: "Without the services of the citizens' group last year it would have been difficult to make a campaign. Of the contributions to the 1934 campaign the citizens' group originated 63 per cent, and the Tyrrell-Houston group only 2 per cent. It is poor grace for them to criticise."

COURT IN KENTUCKY BALKS CERTIFICATION OF DRY LAW REPEAL

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A temporary restraining order enjoining state officials from certifying the vote on prohibition repeal in the November 5 election and from proclaiming and publishing the results was granted today by Judge J. C. Jones in Franklin Circuit court.

The restaining order was issued in the suit of Nathaniel Curry of Mercer county, suing for himself and other citizens and taxpayers, against state officials, including Gov. Ruby Laffoon and Secretary of State Sara W. Mahan.

Curry claimed that submission of repeal of the state prohibition amendment was "wholly void and spurious" and in violation of the state constitution, which requires that a single amendment relate only to one subject.

The petition claimed the repeal amendment as submitted presented two questions—repeal of the prohibition amendment and reinstatement of the local option clause of the state constitution.

Curry asked that the entire vote on repeal question be declared null and void. Hearing on the order was set for Nov. 19.

EX-GOVERNOR OF COLORADO FREED IN FRAUD TRIAL

Denver, Colo., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Former Gov. Clarence J. Morley of Colorado and William J. Stevenson, stock salesman, were freed today by a directed verdict in their trial on confidence game charges.

District Judge Otto Bock granted a motion for the verdict after the state attempted to show irregular stock operations by a Denver and an Indianapolis firm.

Morley claimed he had no connection with the Indianapolis company, although it used a name similar to his.

Pennies Now Jingle in Nice Democratic Donkey.

"Baby's bank" in the homes of Democratic women is to be supplanted by a colorful metal donkey bank, symbolic of the party. Mrs. James H. Wolfe, director of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, told women Democratic leaders of 11 middle western states yesterday at a conference in the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Wolfe explained that the banks, when delivered, will be accompanied by pledge cards on which the recipient will be expected to indicate the amount the bank will receive each week.

When questioned as to how "baby" will feel when his bank is neglected and coins begin dropping into the new donkey bank, Mrs. Wolfe laughingly replied, "O, the babies won't mind. The banks are pretty and colorful, so they can play with them—and the nice part about it is that the party gets the money."

"Roundups" to Foot Expenses.

She explained that two days during the year will be set aside for nation-wide donkey roundups, "when all the bulging banks will be called in." The funds so received are to be used to pay the expenses of Democratic women who are donating their time for organization work, according to Mrs. Wolfe.

Miss Mary W. Dewson, chairman of the general advisory committee of the national women's division of the Democratic party, pointed out to the conference the benefits to be derived from the "reporter" system now employed by the women's democratic groups. According to Miss Dewson, women from each Democratic group act as reporters for the so-called major recovery agencies, PWA, WPA, AAA, and others, informing their groups of the work of the agencies.

"We need a system such as this because we don't believe the majority of the newspapers in the country are telling the facts about all the good things the recovery agencies are doing," Miss Dewson explained.

14,000 "Reporters" at Work.

There are now 700 such women's groups, she said, and 14,000 reporters at work throughout the country. "Each reporter is in a position to discuss the New Deal over teacups," Miss Dewson said.

An Illinois Democratic women's conference will be held all day today at the Woman's club, under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, Illinois National Democratic committeewoman

FRANK KNOX FRIENDS OPEN HEADQUARTERS FOR HIM IN THE LOOP

Headquarters for Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, who is in the list of possible Republican presidential candidates, are to be opened on Monday at the Hotel La Salle. Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, former national commander of the American Legion, said yesterday that the offices are required to handle the correspondence.

The headquarters will occupy a suite of seven rooms, part of which until recently has been occupied by the Cook county Republican committee. Mr. Hayes will be in charge, aided by Philip W. Collins, former state commerce commissioner.

Mr. Hayes in his announcement said: "Since the Republican state committee indorsed Mr. Knox for the presidency last September he has been inundated with mail from all parts of the country and a steady stream of callers has been visiting him in his office. A group of his personal friends decided some action has to be taken to relieve him of the additional burdens and for that reason we have decided to open offices."

Sues for $100,000 Over Soy Bean Blast Injuries

Hubert Gonter, 32 years old, 1133 Elk Grove avenue, filed a $100,000 damage suit yesterday in the Circuit court against the Glidden company for injuries which he alleged were received last Oct. 7 when the company's soy bean plant at 1845 North Laramie avenue was wrecked by an explosion. Gonter, according to his suit, was hurled 20 feet to the ground from an iron girder upon which he was working in a building at 1846 North Laramie avenue, across the street from the soy bean plant.

Because clouds here obstructed the view from the ground of the shower of Leonids expected between 2 and 3 a. m. today and tomorrow Prof. Oliver Justin Lee of the Northwestern university observatory took a plane for New York last night. He said the plane would fly above the clouds and he could view the meteors.

NORRIS INDORSED FOR RE-ELECTION BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Revealing again his warm appreciation of the support given to him by George W. Norris, Nebraska radical Republican, President Roosevelt today paid a glowing tribute to the senator.

Breaking precedent that provides that he be quoted only indirectly at his press conferences, Mr. Roosevelt told reporters to quote him directly, about rumors that Senator Norris would not run for reëlection in 1936.

"If I were a citizen of Nebraska, regardless of what party I might belong to, I would not allow George Norris to retire from the senate whether he wanted to or not, for the very good reason that I feel he is necessary not only to Nebraska but to the United States as long as he lives," said the President.

RULES ALFORD MUST GIVE UP ASSESSOR JOB

Attorney General Kerner ruled in an opinion received yesterday that Russell H. Alford can no longer hold the assessorship of Waukegan township in addition to the county clerkship of Lake county, an office he entered on Nov. 1. Alford retained his old post pending the outcome of an election contest with Lew A. Hendee, former clerk, over that office.

Alford filed yesterday in the Lake county court of Judge Perry L. Persons a petition that Hendee be cited for contempt over the ballot count last year. Hendee headed the canvassing board. He did not surrender the clerkship until the Illinois Supreme court denied him a review of the case.

AUTO CONCLAVE TACKLES SAFETY AND TAX BURDEN

2 Day Gathering Opens; Backs Superhighways.

The American Automobile association opened its two day annual convention in the Palmer house yesterday by plunging into problems of trafic safety and of motor taxation that were described as threats against the continued growth of vehicular usage.

Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, president, told the delegates from the association's 800 affiliated motorists' clubs that the automobile industry will shrink unless there is reduction in the nation's street and highway death rate. His speech was delivered 24 hours before the opening of Chicago's 36th annual automobile show, the beginning of a new sales year for the industry.

Urges Thoroughgoing Action.

"We must stop talking and thinking in terms of 'safety weeks,' 'slogans,' 'pledges' and other claptrap words," said Mr. Henry. "It is time for us to talk and think of adequate and consistent enforcement of trafic regulations."

A letter from President Roosevelt was read in which he urged "continuation of your efforts to solve the problem through constructive legislation, adequate enforcement of laws and regulations, and continuing education of drivers and pedestrians, young and old."

Last night at the annual banquet in an appeal for increased personal responsibility in accident prevention Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey remarked that "horse power is developing faster than horse sense."

Indorse Elevated Highways.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, vice president of the A. A. A., will speak today on the reduction of accidents by the construction of trafic facilities that will prevent accidents while accommodating rapid motor travel. Emphasis will be placed on the proposed elevated highway system for Chicago.

The association, shortly before adjournment of yesterday's session, adopted a resolution introduced by Mr. Hayes indorsing this project.

Other policies approved in yesterday's resolutions include drivers' license and liability laws; elimination of ticket fixing; simplification of court procedure in trafic cases, and strict, vigorous, constant enforcement of automobile laws by cities and states.

Taxation and Government.

In the field of taxation committee reports condemned excises against motor transportation for governmental expenditures not associated with automobile operation. The diversion of gasoline tax revenue from highway funds was cited as a vicious as well as inequitable practice in view of the need for this money in building safety into streets and roads.

Dean T. R. Agg of the Iowa State college of engineering attacked the exemption from gas and license taxes enjoyed by the federal government, an exemption that imposes upon private car operatotrs all of the costs of maintaining trafic facilities for governmental usage.

Henry was reëlected president of the association and Hayes was reëlected first vice president.

Half Million Visitors Expected in 8 Days.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's 36th annual automobile show will open at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the International amphitheater at Halsted and 43d streets. It will continue daily, including tomorrow, through next Saturday night, with hours from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m.

The sponsor of the exhibition, the Chicago Automobile Trade association, expects an attendance of half a million during the eight days. Such a gate tally would break all records, but there is some basis for this optimism.

Room for Mighty Spectacle.

This is to be the largest motor show in the world. The annual event was moved from its historic setting in the old Coliseum this fall to obtain additional floor space. The $1,500,000 amphitheater, completed last year, will accommodate throngs without crowding. And there is a free, guarded parking lot for 5,000 cars.

The show has more than size to merit attendance. A preview last night, seen by the press and by 2,200 leaders of the industry, disclosed that this year's event will be alive with music, colorful decorations, manikins, moving mechanical displays, and lectures.

The 1936 models, of course, remain the principal attraction. In the booths will be 360 passenger cars of 29 makes. Trucks, tour trailers, motor coaches, and accessories also will be displayed. The show offers the only opportunity to inspect all the 1936 vehicles under one roof.

Motor Capital of World.

Among those who attended last night's preview were officials from the automobile factories, including a few company presidents. Chicago, for one week, has become motor capital of the world. The manufacturers have opened temporary headquarters in loop hotels to be in direct touch with the national automobile market as it will be reflected at the show.

The show launches a new merchandising year for America's largest manufacturing enterprise. The production of motor cars, with its allied industries, engages from a twelfth to a tenth of the nation's gainfully employed.

For the first time, the show is being held in the autumn, rather than late in the winter. The change in dates is an effort to stimulate winter buying so as to level the peaks and depressions of employment in the industry.

Modes of U. S. Travel to Be Displayed at Show

The various modes of American travel from historical times up to the modern age, and even futuristic developments, will be represented at a travel and transport show which will open today at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The show will last a week and will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to midnight. The exhibits include an overland stage coach, used by the American Express company from 1852 to 1869, and numerous model boats, ships and trains.

3D PARTY BY '40, IS PREDICTION OF GOVERNOR OLSON

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota predicted here today that by 1940 a strong third party will be in existence in the United States.

"It may be that conditions next year will be such as to give a strong impetus to the third party movement, but certainly by 1940 things will be right for such a party," he said on his arrival.

Gov. Olson, who has announced his candidacy for United States senator from Minnesota on the Farmer-Labor ticket, spoke tonight at a meeting of the American Commonwealth federation, an organization which is working toward a united third party.

The Minnesota governor said he believed the collapse of the New Deal was "inevitable."

"If the government stops spending money that will be the end of the New Deal," he said. "On the other hand congress can keep on appropriating money and spend the New Deal out of existence."

One of the principal aims of a third party as visualized by the Minnesota governor is control of the rate of profit in industry, primarily by government ownership of key industries such as transportation, communications and those of capital goods and natural resources.

Mack Gordon Will Try to Realize Dream-Walk

NEW LICENSING LAW URGED BY AUTO DEALERS

Representatives of new and used car dealers appeared yesterday before the city council's license committee to support the proposal of Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st], chairman of the committee, that all such dealers be licensed as a means of halting improper business tactics and bringing revenue to the city.

The city now licenses used car dealers, but lack of an enforcement clause has made the license law valueless. Under the new ordinance, to be drafted under a state law passed by the last regular session of the legislature, the mayor would have power to revoke the licenses.

Ald. Keane has proposed a $200 annual license fee for used car dealers, and a lower fee, to be determined, for new car dealers who also sell used machines. All dealers would be required to register cars sold and purchased with the police department. This would aid in tracing stolen automobiles.

Ald. Keane said the new ordinance should be ready for passage shortly before Jan. 1.

EXPORTERS TOLD NOT TO SHIP RAW WAR MATERIALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—A curt warning was voiced today by Secretary of State Hull to exporters of oil, copper, trucks, scrap iron, steel, and similar commodities that the sale of such articles to either Italy or Ethiopia is frowned upon by this government. Such exports to the two warring nations are in direct conflict with American policy, he declared.

Although the neutrality resolution bans only implements of war, materials which may be used to fashion or aid in the manufacture of warlike products should not be exported by Americans, Hull asserted.

Essentially "War Materials."

He described such products as "essential war materials" and revealed that an investigation had shown that there had recently been a considerable increase in such exports to Italy.

It was the first time that Hull or any other American official had specifically and formally declared that such commodities were essentially war materials, although not actually arms and ammunition.

While export figures from the department of commerce are not yet complete, those received show that "a considerably increased amount of the commodities listed were being exported for war purposes," Hull said.

"Own Risk" Is Recalled.

Hull recalled President Roosevelt's statement that Americans who engage in any transactions with the belligerents do so at their own risk and his own plea that American business men avoid profits arising out of the African conflict.

"The American people are entitled to know that there are certain commodities such as oil, copper, trucks, tractors, scrap iron and scrap steel, which are essential war materials, although not actually arms, ammunition or implements of war," Hull declared, "and that according to recent government trade reports a considerably increased amount of these is being exported for war purposes."

U. S. WARNING CAUSES STIR.

GENEVA, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull's warning that the export of war materials was contrary to United States policy created special interest tonight in the league of nations because of a pending proposal to place an embargo upon the export to Italy of oil, coal, iron, and steel.

The sanctions committee of 18 made this boycott in reality contingent upon receipt of assurances from the United States and Germany that they would not supply Italy with these products.

Hull's warning came after Germany anounced she would limit the exportation of certain key products.

POLITICAL TREASURER FOR LATE HUEY LONG IS INDICTED BY U. S.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A federal court grand jury today returned indictments against Seymour Weiss, political treasurer for the late Huey P. Long; Mike M. Moss, and Joseph C. Meyers on six counts charging conspiracy to defraud and obstruct the operation of the treasury department.

Three of the counts charged those named with attempts to defraud the government and the other three charged a conspiracy to evade on the part of the Hartwig-Moss Insurance company.

Mr. Weiss, manager of the Roosevelt hotel, where Senator Long kept his headquarters during his political life, is already under indictment on charges of attempting to evade and defeat the federal income tax law.

Meyers was identified by Rene A. Voisca, district attorney, as manager of the farm department of the Hartwig-Moss Insurance Company, Ltd., and Moss as a vice president of the company.

CLERK WHO HAD UNCLE BEATEN IS FREED IN COURT

Because his uncle, Thomas H. Beacom, the complaining witness, failed to appear in the Municipal court of Judge Francis Borrelli, a charge of assault and battery against Harry Bailey, 38 years old, 846 North Central avenue, was dismissed yesterday.

Beacom is a trustee in bankruptcy for a hotel at 339 Fullerton parkway, which is managed by Bailey. On Oct. 23 Beacom was beaten by several men in the hotel restaurant. The next day Bailey reported that he also had been robbed.

Questioned by the Hudson avenue police recently, Bailey admitted that the robbery story was faked to cover up a $2,000 shortage in his accounts. He also said he had hired several men to beat his uncle and "put him out of the way" until Bailey could straighten out his affairs.

Representatives of a surety company that furnished Bailey's bond as hotel manager have declined to prosecute on the ground that the shortage is being made up.

Inquest Ordered Reopened in Killing of Tall Youth

The petition of Chief Deputy Coroner Victor Schlaeger to reopen the inquest into the death of Edward Scahill, 26 years old, 3908 Division street, 6 feet 4 inches tall, who was shot by a private watchman, was granted yesterday by Chief Justice Walter J. LaBuy of the Circuit court. Scahill's relatives were dissatisfied with a coroner's verdict exonerating Felix Clossey, the watchman. Clossey testified a taxicab driver thought Scahill was attempting a holdup. Scahill's relatives assert he had merely asked a cab driver to help him start his automobile.

NEW DEAL ASKS QUICK DECISION ON TVA ATTACK

Seeks to Set Argument Up to Dec. 16.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—In an effort to speed final decision, the government asked the Supreme court today to hear arguments Dec. 16 on constitutionality of the Tennessee valley authority act.

Stanley Reed, solicitor general, also asked permission to delay until next Friday the federal reply to a suit by eight southern rice millers attacking the AAA. The millers sought a temporary injunction against paying processing taxes.

The court probably will make its decision on the motions next Monday.

Hear Three in December.

If the TVA request is granted, three New Deal cases will be argued in December. Arguments on validity of the AAA will be heard Dec. 9 in a case brought by the Hoosac Mills corporation of Massachusetts. Right behind that will come arguments on the Bankhead cotton production control act in a case filed by Lee Moor, a Texas planter.

Arguments probably will be heard in January on a fourth New Deal case in which Louisville property owners contest validity of government attempts to condemn land for slum clearance.

Plaintifs Seek a Delay.

Counsel for preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company, who brought the suit against TVA, asked the Supreme court today to give them until Dec. 2 instead of Nov. 25 to file their brief. Reed told the court he hoped the request would not be granted.

Gov. Talmadge of Georgia, frequent critic of the Roosevelt administration, again asked the Supreme court today to permit him to file suit attacking the constitutionality of the Bankhead act.

The Talmadge petition is the first filed by a state asking the Supreme court to pass on a New Deal before lower courts act.

Sues Wife, 65, for Divorce on Charge of Misconduct

Walter A. Bush, 57 years old, 2212 Madison street, a night watchman, returned home unexpectedly on two occasions and found his wife, Katharine, 65 years old, with other men, he testified yesterday before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort. Bush, who is represented by Attorney Harry X. Cole, is suing for divorce on the ground of misconduct. Mrs. Bush denied the charges and filed a petition for alimony. Judge Desort continued the hearing to Dec. 2.

MAYORS TO CONFER WITH HOPKINS AND ROOSEVELT MONDAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Mayors of more than 100 of the nation's largest cities will converge upon Washington Monday seeking enlightenment on the federal government's future relief plans.

They looked forward primarily to a speech Tuesday by Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress director, who has announced his subject as "Looking Ahead at Relief."

A discussion in which questions may be asked from the floor will follow the Hopkins address. Later in the day, the mayors will be received at the White House by President Roosevelt.

The occasion is the convention of the United States Conference of Mayors, an organization born of depression problems in 1932, when Frank Murphy, former mayor of Detroit, called the first meeting.

GETS SIX MONTHS IN ALIMONY ROW FOR NONPAYMENT

For failure to make a promised $50 payment on his $250 temporary alimony debt Harold Miller, 32 years old, an unemployed dairy worker, was sent to alimony row in the county jail for six months by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday.

Miller testified that because he is not working he cannot keep his promise of Oct. 9 to make a $50 payment. He is suing for a divorce from his wife, Ethel, 29 years old, 4130 Cornelia avenue, on the ground of cruelty. She is contesting the suit.

BAR COMMITTEE DELAYS QUIZ ON LEAGUE COUNSEL

Ethics Group to Consider Two Cases.

Columbus, O., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The professional ethics and grievance committee of the American Bar association today postponed until Sunday consideration of the case involving the national lawyers' committee of the Liberty league.

The committee also will consider the case of three attorneys who represented the late Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Flegenheimer, New York gangster, Sunday. The three attorneys were criticized by Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey.

Wait for Two Members.

Dean W. H. Arant of the Ohio State university law school, secretary of the committee, said the postponement was necessary because two committee members had not arrived.

The bar committee will investigate the allegation of Carl N. Davie of Atlanta, Ga., that the Liberty league offered free the services of attorneys to any person whose constitutional rights had been threatened. The Liberty league has said that its offer was to defend against constitutional encroachments any person or organization unable to pay legal counsel.

Former Governor Included.

The three attorneys in the Flegenheimer case are former Gov. George S. Silzer of Newark, N. J.; former State Senator John T. Toolan of Perth Amboy, N. J., and Harry F. Weinberger of Newark. Dean Arant said the question to be decided in their case was "whether disciplinary action" should be taken.

Robert T. McCracken of Philadelphia is chairman of the ethics committee. Other members are James F. Ailshie of Boise, Idaho; George B. Martin of Catlettsburg, Ky.; Orie L. Phillips of Denver, Philbrick McCoy of Los Angeles, Arthur E. Sutherland of Rochester, N. Y., and Dean Arant.

REPORTS 2 MILLION ON U. S. WORKS JOBS; FAR SHORT OF GOAL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The administration reported today that 2,009,339 persons were employed under the 4 billion dollar work relief program on Nov. 9, the latest date for which figures are available.

This represented a gain of 29,914 in one week, but was far short of the Dec. 1 goal of 3,500,000 jobs.

Employment as of Nov. 9, officials said, included 1,267,572 on Works Projects administration projects, 561,403 in the Civilian Conservation corps, and 180,364 on other federal projects.

JUDGE FITZHENRY IS CRITICALLY ILL AFTER A RELAPSE

Judge Louis FitzHenry of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago was reported critically ill last night in his home at Normal, Ill. He is being attended by Dr. F. C. McCormich.

Judge FitzHenry, who is 65 years old, has been suffering from high blood pressure since last June. In September he was stricken with a kidney ailment at Petoskey, Mich., and was brought to the Passavant hospital in Chicago. His condition improved and he was taken to his home in Normal early in October. Recently he suffered a relapse and a paralytic stroke.

William J. Bogan Boomed for National School Post

The candidacy of William J. Bogan, Chicago superintendent of schools, for president of the department of superintendents of the National Educational association for 1936, was announced yesterday by Butler Laughlin, president of the Chicago Normal college. In a letter to members of the department, Mr. Laughlin said: "School people in Illinois would like to see the splendid influence and sturdy leadership of Mr. Bogan extended over the entire country."

JUDGE HAS PLAN TO SAVE 500 CITY BOYS FROM CRIME

A plan to save 500 youths from future delinquency was announced yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude of the Boys' court. He said that next week he will write letters to 500 business men in Chicago, asking each of them to employ one of the boys who are brought into his court on charges of disorderly conduct.

"No business man will be asked to employ a criminal," Judge Braude declared. "The boys who will be offered the opportunity to go to work are on the road to delinquency because they have nothing to do with their time and are rapidly becoming demoralized because of their unavailing efforts to find employment."

Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime commission, and the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary Catholic bishop of Chicago, are among those who have consented to serve on a "jury" to distribute the jobs, Judge Braude said.

MUTUAL TRADE PACT SIGNED BY U. S. AND CANADA

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—A reciprocal trade treaty between the United States and Canada, which may arouse a violent controversy when its terms become known, was signed at the White House today by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Premier William Lyon Mackenzie King.

President Roosevelt and his cabinet looked on as Hull and King penned their signatures to the document. The President hailed the agreement as marking "the reversal of the trend of the last two decades toward undue and unnecessary trade barriers between our two countries."

"I am confident," Mr. Roosevelt added, "that this constructive step will contribute greatly to the economic recovery of both the United States and Canada."

Reveal Terms Sunday.

Both Hull and King followed with somewhat flowery statements extoling the treaty. But the terms of the agreement remained a secret. Reporters were invited to attend a conference next Sunday at the White House at which President Roosevelt and state department experts will "explain" the document. The treaty will then be released for publication.

Thus, it was reported, the administration hoped to impress the proper "interpretation" of the agreement upon the press and allay the fears of milk, butter, cheese, cattle, lumber and wheat producers that duties upon those products have been slashed in the new treaty. The general belief is that the chief benefit of the agreement will come in an increase of Canada's purchases of automobiles, machinery, coal, raw cotton and iron and steel products.

Flashlights flared as the treaty was signed. Premier King appeared a little uncomfortable at being so much in the limelight. Cabinet members moved forward to get into the picture as Hull and King shook hands while President Roosevelt beamed.

President Expresses Pleasure.

"The trade agreement which has just been signed between the United States and Canada places the trade relations between the two countries on a basis of mutual agreement for the first time since 1866," the President remarked. "I am happy to have a part in removing this anomaly in the relations between two countries which are united by so many bonds of friendship and common heritage."

Secretary Hull read a prepared statement:

"The United States and Canada are neighbors with a common frontier of five thousand miles. It is manifest that innumerable opportunities for mutually profitable trade between these friends and next door neighbors must exist.

"During 1929 the United States was selling to Canada about 900 million dollars of commodities, a substantial proportion of which was farm products, and was purchasing over 500 million dollars in return. Since 1929 our exports to Canada have slumped to about 300 million dollars, or a loss of some 600 million dollars. This loss has resulted in large measure from shortsighted tariff policies."

Hull asserted that the agreement would make possible the profitable sale of much of the United States' surplus production and result in the reëmployment of a large number of American wage earners who are now idle.

Canada and the United States are dependent one upon the other, he declared.

"The problems of commerce and peace facing all nations today are acute," he said. "While many other parts of the world are devoting their primary efforts either to war or to the feverish building of vast armaments, with consequent neglect of the dislocated and collapsed business conditions, with resultant unemployment and widespread distress, it is for the western hemisphere to point the way to a more farseeing, constructive basis for prosperity and for peace.

Beginning of New Epoch.

"The trade agreement between our two countries will, I hope, mark the beginning of a new epoch in the affairs of our respective peoples. It will mean the common advancement of their economic and their cultural life. Underlying this agreement are the twin policies of the good neighbor and mutually profitable trade.

"While many other parts of the world are slipping in the direction of economic suicide, the trade agreement between our two countries marks an outstanding step in the direction of economic sanity. It seeks to stimulate sound and healthy trade relationships and thereby to restore employment to the unemployed and a wholesome prosperity to the peoples of both countries. It sets an example of what must be done to establish a solid foundation upon which to rebuild a suitable structure of world peace."

Also reading a prepared statement, Prime Minister King replied that the "kindly words and sentiments" of President Roosevelt would be warmly welcomed by "his majesty the king in whose name I have the honor to sign this trade treaty."

He said that he cordially endorsed all that had been said by Secretary Hull of the mutual advantages likely to flow to their respective countries from the terms of the treaty.

"On behalf of Canada, I heartily reciprocate the sentiments of international good will you have so generously expressed," he continued.

"I believe with you that the signature of this agreement is witness of the joint intention of the governments of the United States and Canada to give rapid effect to our policies in a practical manner. At last our formal trade relations have been brought into harmony with the underlying realities of public and private friendship between our two peoples.

Sees Substantial Benefits.

"The agreement will, I am confident, confer substantial benefits alike on the producers and consumers of both countries, while safeguarding with great care every essential interest. I feel sure that its value will be shown beyond question by a marked increase in commerce within the next few months. This undoubtedly will help both countries to make more rapid progress toward complete economic recovery.

"Nor will this agreement benefit North America alone. All the world will gain from greater trade on this continent.

"Nor will its benefits be confined to trade. To an anxious and troubled world we hope that there will be opened to the nations, by the force of our example, vistas of a surer path to progress and a more lasting road to peace."

GOVERNMENT ENDS MILLIONAIRE'S LIFE OF 3 CENT PROMOTER

Miami, Okla., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Ted Baxter, who lived a millionaire's life on three cents—then the government burst his bubble—was without even the three coppers tonight as he contemplated "going back to work as an airplane mechanic."

The graying world war veteran pleaded guilty today in federal court to violating the postal laws in his sudden swirl from a transient camp resident to owner of a "million dollar tank company." Placed on probation after being sentenced to five years' imprisonment, Baxter still insisted his wild scheme might have worked.

He had moved to a suite of rooms in a swanky Tulsa office building. He had established credit of $250,000 in a bank. He had taken an option on a fine home and ordered $75,000 worth of equipment for his company. He had hobnobbed with Tulsa bankers.

Then his payless "employés" tripped him up.

"How about that deal in Tulsa? Wasn't it reckless?" Judge Franklin E. Kennamer asked Baxter today.

"No it wasn't," Baxter insisted. "I'd have gone through with it if they had let me alone."

148 N. U. STUDENTS CITED FOR HIGH SCHOLASTIC RANK

Academic honors were conferred yesterday on 148 Northwestern university students at the annual honors convocation held in the First Congregational church in Evanston. Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of the university, made the awards.

The major honors were three senior scholarships in the college of liberal arts, awarded to Walter Smisloff, 5008 Eddy street; Charlotte Pettersen, 455 Kenilworth avenue, Elmhurst, and Mildred Richards of Cleveland, O., and the Swift scholarship in the school of engineering, divided between Allan Alsaker, 2656 Logan boulevard, and Wesley Butterworth, 1308 Asbury avenue, Evanston.

Other scholarships were awarded in the school of music, commerce and speech.

Fires "No Shots" as He Quits Burocracy.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Saying he had "no parting shots," J. N. "Ding" Darling left his job of chief of the bureau of biological survey today—a post from which he had battled both administration and congress.

Turning immediately to the interest at which he busied himself for years before he took his Washington job, Darling announced plans for a national wild life conference here in February. The object is to perfect a national federation for conserving game.

A Few Gentle Quips.

A few—for Darling—comparatively gentle quips were tossed out in his farewell press conference.

The cartoonist picked up a letter as he talked, then turned to his successor, Ira N. Gabrielson, to remark:

"You know," he said, "I'm just a corpse that's being carried out.

"I have no parting shots. I'm a friendly guy. The only time I ever raised a howl was to get money."

"In for Duration of War."

He rubbed his chin and looked thoughtfully out the window.

"There's no use saying anything more," he mused. "They all know it—those who got in our way. But the fight for wild life has just begun and I'm in for the duration of war."

Employés of the bureau, crowding his office to tell him good-by, paid tribute in words and presented to him a shotgun.

Darling's eyes filled with tears. His voice broke as he thanked those with whom he worked.

"Up to this time we've had only God looking after wild life," he said. "God needs a substitute. The opportunity is yours."

Seeks Unified Action.

"My connection with the bureau in the future," Darling said, in his press conference, "will be simply a friendly relation in an effort to build up what I have found lacking—some kind of unity among 14 million licensed sportsmen that will insist that fees paid by sportsmen be spent for sportmen's benefits.

"I want individual groups working in the interest of wild life to retain their identity. But I also want state and national federations, like the labor federation. There are thousands of local organizations. They have a common interest. But they are attending only to local problems.

"Until some unified mass strength is brought to bear on congress and the administration, you may expect that commercialization of natural resources is going to win out against conservation."

CHEESE ARRIVES BY BOAT DIRECT FROM HOLLAND

The first direct shipment of cheese from Europe to Chicago by boat arrived here yesterday aboard the steamship Maakefjell. The completion of the 40 day trip from Rotterdam, Holland, through the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes coincided with national cheese week, Nov. 10 to 16.

The shipment was consigned by Polak Cheese Exports, Ltd., of Rotterdam, to Ryser Brothers, cheese distributors, 57 West Kinzie street. Frank Ryser, head of the Chicago concern, said the cheese was in good condition. The trip usually takes 30 days, but the Maakefjell required 40 days because of bad weather.

Ryser said a great saving in freight costs was effected by shipping the cheese directly here by boat. He said the boat freight from Rotterdam to Chicago was less than railroad freight charges from New York to Chicago. Additional savings were made, Ryser said, by eliminating transfer of the shipment from boat to railroad cars in New York.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Gobbler Struts

November 15, 1935.

ONE of the turkey gobblers on the Wheaton experimental farm has been using a shiny automobile for a mirror, strutting back and forth in front of it in all his glory. I noticed the other day how this old boy was prancing around with his fan spread out, his wings stretched almost to the ground, and all his body feathers sticking out to make him look about twice as big as he really is. Rawlings had just shined up his car, and this gobbler was looking himself over. Maybe he wants the distinction of being "guest of honor" on somebody's Thanksgiving dinner table.

I went into the sheepfold the other day, just after a load of lambs had been shipped to market. The 70 or so lambs which were still in the fold evidently didn't miss their "departed brethren," for they were eating their hay as though nothing had happened.

None of the three pet lambs—Snowflake, Jimmy, or Tiny—was taken to market, so they're still around the place to follow the visitors and beg for something to eat. They followed Rawlings and me around the barn the other day.

We took a look into the smokehouse and saw the last remains of a fat lamb which had recently been butchered. There were some healthy lamb chops in that piece, and a big fat leg o' lamb, too.

The boys on the Yorkville farm were having a husking contest all their own when I was there the other day. It was too wet for them to go into the fields with the mechanical pickers, so they were husking by hand and the yellow ears of corn were really flying against the bangboards. The Thurow boys were away on business, but Eddie Johnson, Charley Sleezer, Russell Johnson, and Alvin Nolte were all in the race for husking honors. When they came in for lunch it looked like a pretty close race.

Russell Johnson had fallen a bit behind the rest of the boys because one of his horses had got hungry. That may sound like a funny reason, but the fact is that the horse had leaned over to bite an ear of corn from a nearby stalk and had leaned too heavily on the wagon tongue, breaking it. It took Johnson quite a while to get the tongue repaired so that he could go on husking, but even at that his wagon was almost as full as the others.

Alvin Nolte is generally called "Red," because of the color of his hair, but now he has a new name. The boys are calling him "Honk Honk." The other day a large flock of wild geese flew over the farm. Bobby Thurow and Nolte were walking along together, and Bobby punched Alvin and pointed to the geese. "Red" thought he would try a little experiment, so he let go with a few loud "honks." To his surprise the geese changed their course and flew right over Bobby and "Red" to see what kind of goose was making that noise. So now when any of the boys want "Red" they just honk like a goose.

TURKEY "STRIKE" BROKEN; PRICE TOPS 20 CENTS

Approach of Deadline Hastens Selling.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The annual Thanksgiving turkey boom hit full stride in Texas tonight as prices soared and the shipping deadline neared.

A rush of selling on the big Texas markets followed collapse of a growers' "strike" as the peak price went to 21 cents a pound.

Throughout the west generally turkey raisers were thankful for an anticipated Thanksgiving season hike of 3 to 6 cents a pound above 1934.

The increase will be reflected eventually in the cash registers of the nation's retail butchers. Eastern housewives may pay 40 cents a pound.

Top Price 21 Cents.

Quotations shot up to 21 cents a pound in some Texas turkey centers and farmers unloaded flocks they had been holding back because of low offers. The average price for best grade birds hovered around 19 cents.

For several days growers had held up huge eastern shipments by their refusal to sell below 20 cents.

The "strike" centered at Gonzales, Tex., but today the price reached 19 cents—up 3 cents from the original—and farmers weakened. Thousands of birds were rushed out by rail.

At Cuero, Tex., famous "turkey trot" center, the buyers still held the upper hand, quoting a top of 18 cents. However, farmers gave in and dressing plants said they expected to ship 1,000,000 pounds in the next two days.

Deadline Is Tonight.

Deadline for most eastern shipments was set for Saturday night.

Other western turkey centers were ready to cash in on the approaching holiday spirit. Oklahoma expected to ship 760,000 birds. The anticipated price of 21 and 22 cents, 5 and 6 cents higher than last year, would net Oklahomans $1,672,000.

Herbert Beyerrs, manager of the Northwestern Turkey Growers' association, said at Salt Lake that wholesale prices generally would be 3 to 6 cents above last year. It probably means, he said, that turkeys will retail in the east at prices between 35 and 40 cents a pound.

250,000 Birds Ready.

The Northwestern association expected to send around 250,000 turkeys to market. The Christmas movement will be "much heavier," Beyers said.

Minnesota is ready to market some 1,500,000 birds. Wisconsin growers, who expect this year's price to range as high as 27 cents, 5 cents more than last year, prepared to sell between 50,000 and 70,000 turkeys, mostly on the Chicago market.

DIRECTOR CHOSEN FOR FOUNDATION TO STUDY FARMS

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, chairman of the board of directors of the Farm Foundation, announced yesterday the appointment of Dr. Henry C. Taylor as director of the foundation. Dr. Taylor recently resigned as delegate of the United States government to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome.

Dr. Taylor organized and for many years headed at the University of Wisconsin the country's first department of agricultural economics. In 1922 he organized the federal bureau of agricultural economics, which he directed for four years.

The Farm Foundation was set up in 1933 by a number of leaders who desired a permanent endowed institution devoted to improving rural life. The funds derived chiefly from the estate of the late Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company.

Six men invaded the yard of the Englewood Plumbing and Heating Supplies company at 5641 South Halsted street early yesterday and after terrorizing a watchman, John Mackron, colored, carried away a 500 pound metal statue of King Gambrinus, the legendary originator of brewing. The police were notified and a short search disclosed that King Gambrinus was standing in front of the chemistry building on the University of Chicago campus, whence he was returned to the plumbing company. The removal was attributed to a student prank. In preprohibition times the statue stood on top of the McAvoy brewery on East 24th street.

NEW DAIRY GROUP SEEKS MEMBERS IN STRIKE SEQUEL

A campaign was launched yesterday by the Union Milk Producers' association, a new dairy farmers' organization formed during the October milk strike, to gain members from the ranks of the Pure Milk association, which has been the bargaining agency for 18,000 farmers during the last nine years.

Yesterday was the beginning of the fifteen day annual withdrawal period provided for in contracts between dairy farmers and the Pure Milk association. If farmers do not withdraw from the association by Nov. 30 their contracts hold them for another 12 months beginning the first of the year.

Leaders of the Union Milk Producers have been holding massmeetings in the Chicago milk producing territory in an effort to get members for the new association. The success of their drive will not be known for another two weeks or more.

JUDGE QUESTIONS FEES IN FEDERAL BANKRUPT CASE

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday ordered the law firm of Sabath, Perlman, Goodman & Rein, Greenebaum Sons Investment company, and Attorney Milton M. Adelman to show cause by Nov. 21 why fees totaling $8,100 allowed in connection with the reorganization of the Northwest Building corporation, 3335 Diversey boulevard, should not be vacated.

Beggar Agrees to Shorten Hours, So Judge Is Lenient

A disorderly conduct charge against Raymond Cissna, 28 years old, 1844 North Cicero avenue, blind beggar who "goes to work" in a chauffeur driven automobile of 1925 vintage, was dismissed by Judge R. J. Dunne yesterday on Cissna's promise to cease begging daily by 9 p. m.

CHARGES WOMEN IN MILLS FIRED IF THEY MARRY

Salem, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A charge women employés of the Pequot mills had been discharged because they married was made tonight by Wilfred T. Levesque, business agent for the Independent Sheeting Workers' union.

Levesque also said that in 1932 "quite a few married women were let go because of childbirth."

After a conference with J. Foster Smith, agent for the mill, Levesque said he was hopeful of a friendly settlement by the first of next week.

"I have nothing to say now," he explained when asked the status of the controversy, "because we want to give Mr. Smith a chance to straighten things out. According to my information, some women were let go as recently as a week ago because they married. In 1932 quite a few were let go because of childbirth.

"Since then, I think, very few have been let go for that reason."

Levesque said he felt certain any married women who have been discharged would be reëmployed.

Officials of the mills declined to comment on the union official's charges. Smith issued a statement declaring no employé had been discharged or threatened with discharge since settlement of a strike Oct. 21.

Joel McCrea and Frances Dee Parents of 2d Son

ARTISTS AT ELLIS ISLAND FOR SIX MONTHS; OUSTED

Boss Old Fashioned; Holds Workers Should Work.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Four mural artists and two models have been fired from a WPA project on Ellis Island, it was learned today. The reason for their dismissal is quite simple. They may be artists, but in the opinion of the authorities at Ellis Island they certainly are not workers. They were on the job for six long months, waiting for an inspiration that apparently never came.

The net result today seems to be completely negative. There is not a single indication of any artistic change—not one—on the walls of the dining room they were supposed to decorate with artistic murals.

Just Strip of Paper There.

The only thing Ellis Island has to remember these moody, inspiration-seeking artists by is an ordinary strip of paper about six feet long and four feet wide, tacked on the wall of the big dining room. This paper bears charcoal drawings of various figures and objects. Nobody can figure out just what the figures are supposed to represent. But it is supposed to be the rough sketch from which the artists were to paint their pretty picture. And that is all that is artistic about this particular project—all, that is, that the Ellis Island officials can detect.

The artists and the two models were withdrawn from the project yesterday at the request of Rudolph Reimer, district commissioner of immigration. Commissioner Reimer, a big man with a shock of white hair, is blunt, plain spoken. He doesn't mince words. He said he didn't want them around any more.

An Old Fashioned Boss.

Commissioner Reimer, moreover, clings fast to the idea, perhaps old-fashioned in some respects, that workers should work, even if they happen to be artists. He believes so firmly in that old-fashioned doctrin that he is determined to enforce it.

"All persons must be industrious if they wish to stay on the pay roll of the United States government while working at Ellis Island," Commissioner Reimer said.

OBJECT TO PLAN FOR LOCK NEAR MOUTH OF RIVER

Shipping and Property Interests Win Delay.

Shipping interests and involved property owners advanced objections yesterday to the Sanitary district's proposal to construct a flowage control lock in the Chicago river east of Michigan avenue. Representatives of these interests spoke at a public hearing in the new postoffice building before Capt. S. N. Karrick, acting district engineer of the war department, who sought information on which to recommend—a government permit for the project, or to advise rejection of the application.

Spokesmen for the property owners who have extensive dock and warehouse facilities on both sides of the river along the proposed site of the lock, declared that the $1,000,000 project would interfere seriously with the operation of their properties and in some cases would destroy, partly or entirely, the value of their investments.

Under Pressure of Court Order.

The plan proposed by the sanitary district is for the construction of two control gates, one 500 feet east of Michigan avenue, and the other 1,300 feet east of Michigan avenue. Control works of some sort are necessary at or near the mouth of the river, sanitary district officials say, to comply with a United States Supreme court decree requring the district to reduce diversion of water from Lake Michigan to 1,500 cubic feet per second by 1939.

Moreover, Ross. A. Woodhull, president of the sanitary district, told Capt. Karrick that control works are necessary to prevent the river reversing its current in times of heavy rainfall with consequent discharge of polluted water into the lake. He said that the gates would be closed only after heavy rains and probably not more than 60 hours a year. The two flood gates would be used as a lock to permit passage of vessels at such times.

Calls Plans too Sketchy.

Capt. Karrick informed engineers of the sanitary district that plans submitted were not sufficiently detailed to enable him to make a recommendation on the application for a permit, and at the request of most of the interested parties he continued the hearing until Dec. 13. As a result of objections on the part of property owners and shippers, who asserted that they had not been properly informed of the plan, he required that full details be made available ten days before the hearing is resumed.

Objecting property owners include The Tribune company, New York Central railroad, Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., Anchor Storage company, North Pier Terminal company, and Crerar Clinch Coal company.

Shipping interests contended unanimously that a lock in the river at the site selected would interfere with passage of vessels. They asked that additional time be given to permit a study of the proposal.

An Alternative Suggestion.

Col. Robert Randolph, president of the Mississippi Valley association, expressed a decided preference for an outer harbor development combined with river control works, rather than the lock in the river.

Such a substitute plan was submitted by the Chicago plan commission, through Hugh E. Young, its chief engineer. Many of those testifying, including representatives of the city, said the commission's proposal was more satisfactory to navigation and would not impair the use of private property.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], chairman of the city council committee on harbors, wharves, and bridges, asserted that although the city is anxious to see the control works completed and would prefer the comprehensive plan for the outer harbor, it would be unable to make any financial contribution.

Agreeable to Compromise.

Mr. Woodhull declared that the sanitary district is ready to coöperate in an outer harbor project but that the district's outlay must be limited to the amount which control works of the gate design would cost and that early action on a permit is necessary since the district must complete the control works by the end of 1938 to comply with the Supreme court order.

He urged that a permit be issued for the control gates and added that if the harbor plan is found practicable and can be financed in sufficient time, the district then might abandon its present plans and participate in the harbor development.

He estimated the cost of the control gates at about $1,000,000, and that of the outer harbor development at $4,800,000.

INDIANAN READY TO PUSH EASTERN TIME IN STATE ASSEMBLY

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—State Senator Ralph Jernegan, Mishawaka, said today he was prepared to offer a bill in the state legislature to adopt eastern standard time for all of Indiana.

He said, "Indiana is bounded on the east by Ohio, which has eastern time, and on the north by Michigan, which uses eastern time. Action of Chicago on advancement of time makes it necessary for South Bend and Mishawaka to adopt the change and I believe it would be a wise move for the entire state."

He said he would be ready to present the bill as soon as the assembly could meet in case a special session is called for an other matter.

CIGARET STARTS HOTEL BLAZE.

ORDER 2 INQUIRIES INTO RAMMING OF BRIDGE BY BOAT

Harbor Master William J. Lynch yesterday ordered an investigation into the ramming of the Wells street bridge on Thursday by the sandboat H. Dahlke, owned by the Ecorse Transit company of Detroit. Results of the inquiry, which will seek to place the responsibility for the crash, will be transmitted to the city's law department for proper action, Mr. Lynch said.

Mr. Lynch was informed by Peter Larson, inspector of hulls in the federal steamboat inspection office in Chicago, that that department will begin a separate investigation on Monday.

Acting City Engineer Loran D. Gayton estimated the damage to the bridge structure at $6,000 to $7,000. The east side of the span was crushed in, although the bridge was not thrown out of alignment, nor has the machinery been damaged, he said.

ART INSTITUTE'S DOG LOSES 10 LBS. MOURNING MATE

Sentry, one of the two German shepherd dogs which have aided watchmen in guarding the treasures of the Art institute for the last twelve years, had lost ten pounds yesterday in mourning the death of his female companion, Peggy. Peggy died last week in "puppy birth."

J. Francis McCabe, superintendent of the Art institute, said that Sentry refuses to sleep in his own quarters and insists on staying in Peggy's kennel at night. The two dogs were brought to the institute in 1923 and were trained by McCabe to watch duty.

Peggy was buried on institute property. During her tenure there she had given birth to 47 puppies. Guards recalled yesterday that when new statues were brought into the building they would have to allow Peggy to examine the statues before she would cease her barks of alarm.

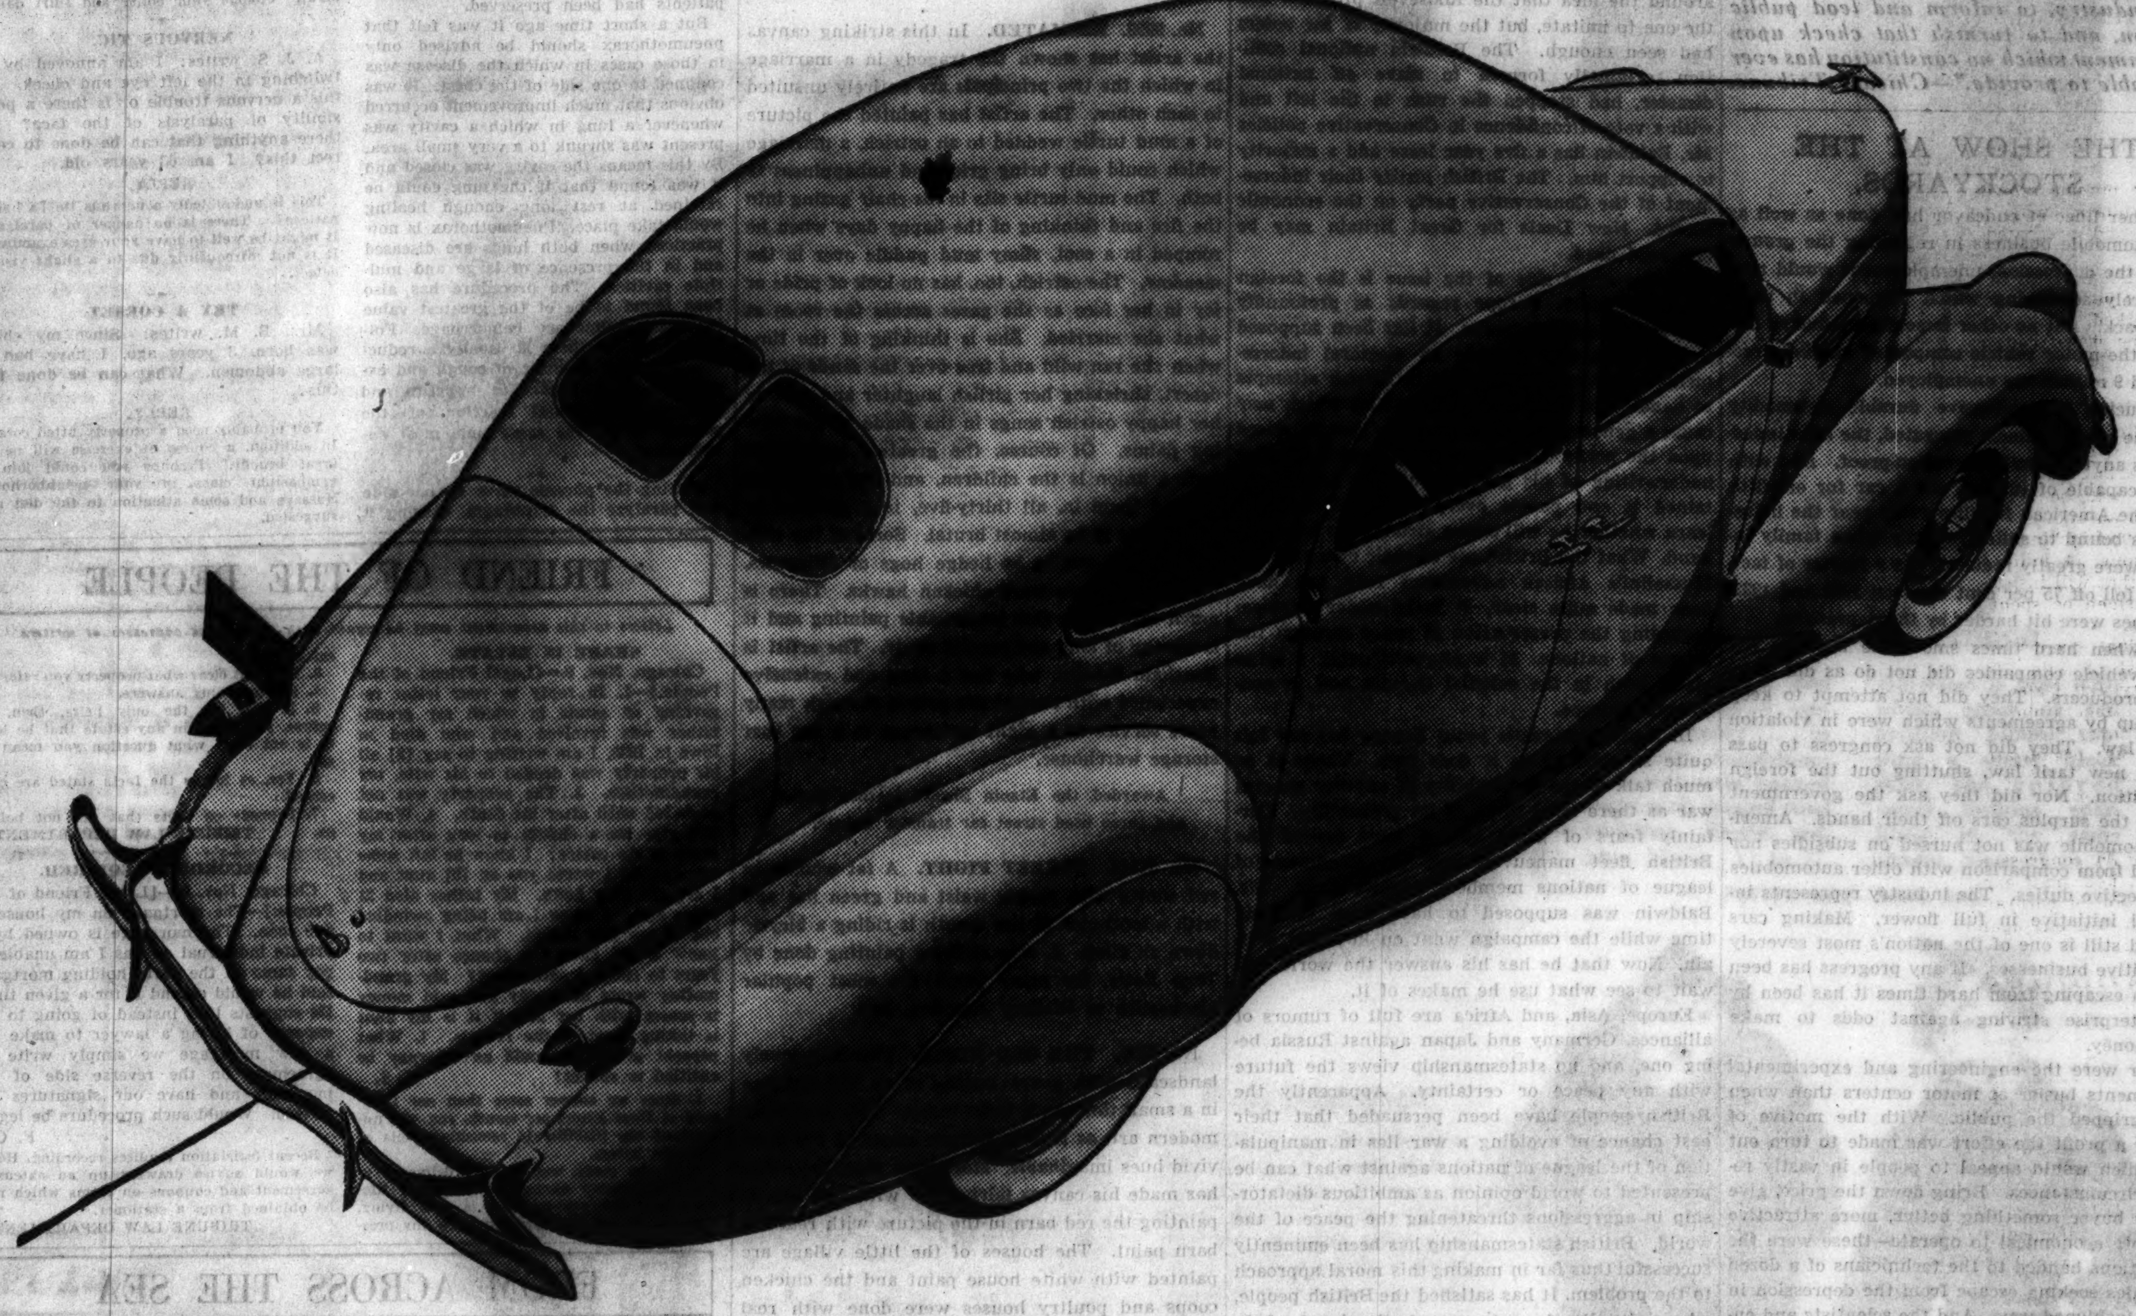
LINCOLN-ZEPHYR



The new twelve-cylinder car by Ford and Lincoln . . . new in beauty, new in performance, new in value in its field

YEAR AFTER YEAR, as Show follows Show, new models parade before an expectant, critical throng. . . . Designs, color schemes and ornaments may change, but how seldom is the whole car new! . . . This year the Lincoln Motor Company presents the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR. It is more than a new model. . . . It is a new car!

For nearly two years the combined engineering staffs of Ford and Lincoln have designed, revised, built, discarded, redesigned, rebuilt . . . before we were ready to exhibit the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR. . . . In the new car is the Lincoln tradition to build for quality without regard to price, and the Ford facility to give great value at a price. The new car is built in its own specially equipped division of the Lincoln plant by men trained for years in the Lincoln's famous precision methods.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR offers new ideas of beauty. Its streamlining is more pronounced, and more graceful, than the public has seen before. But smooth, flowing lines in this case are of vastly greater meaning than the "cut" or "fashion" of a car. Just as in the steel bridge, light in weight but great in strength, steel trusses determine the svelte curves of the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR body, and make possible its rigid strength. Body and frame are one, welded together. The body, like the bridge, rests on abutments, the front and rear springs.

Inherent in this construction, besides new safety, is new comfort. The wheelbase is 122 inches, the springbase 133 inches. Passenger weight is poised between the axles and cushioned by soft, transverse springs. The center of gravity is extremely low. Passengers step directly into the car, without the assistance of running boards. Gone from motoring in the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR are the disagreeable "up-and-down" motions, the jolts, the jounces that annoy passengers on a short trip and tire them thoroughly on a long one. The car rides gently with one passenger or with six. Many persons have remarked that the back seat rides as smoothly as the front.

In the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is new performance. The engine has twelve cylinders. It is of the V-type, proved so successful in the Lincoln and the Ford cars. It develops 110 horsepower, and is so powerful, in relation to car and passenger weight, that it sweeps along without sign of effort. It offers new alertness, new flexibility, a new motoring rhythm.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR offers new value and new economy in its field. A car of its size and power, so forward-looking in design, could not be sold at a medium price, did it not share all the combined Ford and Lincoln engineering experience, manufacturing ability and economic resources. It contains nothing experimental. Working parts are easy of access.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is new to the eye and the mind. Discover this fact for yourself at the Show! . . . It is new in performance and comfort. Discover this fact in a demonstration on the roads, soon after!

THE SHOW AT THE STOCKYARDS.

If other lines of endeavor had done as well as the automobile business in regaining the ground lost in the depression, unemployment would now be merely something which happened to us a while back. But no other important industry can match the motor vehicle companies' recovery record and 9 million are unemployed.

Producing an expensive durable commodity with the market almost saturated, the auto industry was anything but depression-proof. And with plants capable of turning out a car for one-fifth of all the American families every year the industry was bound to suffer severely when family incomes were greatly reduced. As a matter of fact, output fell off 75 per cent between 1929 and 1932. Few lines were hit harder by the depression.

But when hard times smote the business the motor vehicle companies did not do as did some other producers. They did not attempt to keep prices up by agreements which were in violation of the law. They did not ask congress to pass them a new tarif law, shutting out the foreign competition. Nor did they ask the government to take the surplus cars off their hands. America's automobile was not nursed on subsidies nor shielded from comparison with other automobiles by protective duties. The industry represents individual initiative in full flower. Making cars was and still is one of the nation's most severely competitive businesses. If any progress has been made in escaping from hard times it has been by free enterprise striving against odds to make some money.

Never were the engineering and experimental departments busier at motor centers than when panic gripped the public. With the motive of earning a profit the effort was made to turn out cars which would appeal to people in vastly reduced circumstances. Bring down the price, give the car buyer something better, more attractive and more economical to operate—these were the instructions handed to the technicians of a dozen companies seeking escape from the depression in the old-fashioned way. And the scientists and engineers got results. The technological progress in automobile manufacture was never greater than during the depression, particularly in the direction of lower prices and more for the money.

And the auto companies found no reason to prefer a different system for getting along. When the government sought to make automobile manufacturing less competitive under NRA the companies put up a vigorous and successful fight for the right to continue to be competitive.

Under the freedom of enterprise which the industry has won in battle the right to maintain it has conquered the depression as no other leading industry has. Production this year will be about two and a half times as large as in 1932. By the smart innovations in design, reduced prices and fuel economies the industry has won back 60 per cent of the ground lost in the depression. Employment has been proportionately increased, and wage rates are the highest in history.

In the annual show now in progress at the International amphitheater there are new evidences of what can be accomplished by free industry. Improvements have been introduced beyond those which won so much favor this year, the emphasis being upon refinements in riding qualities and safety. The time of holding the show is itself significant. It has been the custom to close down auto plants in the winter while the engineering and mechanical departments were completing work on the new models. As many as two-thirds of the workers at the factories have been laid off in the winter months. Plants did not get going again until late in the year, and the Chicago show has been held in January. In developing their new models earlier and holding the shows in the autumn the companies hope to keep their plants going throughout the winter. They deserve the hearty support of the public for this effort to reduce seasonal unemployment, as well as for the successful assault upon cyclical unemployment.

THE DRIVERS' LICENSE BILL.

A bill to license automobile drivers in Illinois has been introduced in the legislature at the request of the Keep Chicago Safe committee. The summary of the provisions indicates that it is a good bill both for what it attempts to do and for what it does not attempt. It ought to pass.

Every driver will have to have a license, but the licenses are to be issued without cost to the motorist and without examination. The applicant will be required, however, to fill out a form stating whether he has any physical or mental defect which might make him an unsafe driver and whether he can read road signs. Licenses may be revoked permanently for serious offenses such as driving while intoxicated and fleeing from an accident. Licenses may be suspended for a period up to six months for less serious offenses.

The bill will serve to eliminate at once a certain number of drivers who are physically or mentally incompetent to sit behind a steering wheel. There will be no graft at the expense of applicants and no shakedown by official examiners. There will be created a strong incentive to obey the laws of the road because the loss of a license will be a much more serious matter than a fine.

The summaries of the bill do not mention a provision making driving by an unlicensed person a serious offense. Presumably such a clause is in the bill. If it isn't, it should be.

BRITISH ELECTIONS.

Stanley Baldwin's government won the British elections and the consent of the country to continue along lines the Conservatives have indicated as their choice. Labor made some gains in representation and the Liberals lost. There are two sides to the setup, one domestic and the other international. Opposition to Baldwin was what Americans would probably recognize as New Deal. Part of the side which made so poor a showing was more than a little bit Rooseveltian. Lloyd George went to Washington for his ideas just as before the war he had gone to Berlin.

It was largely due to Lloyd George and the Liberals in those older days that Great Britain stepped out so far in advance of the United States in political ideas which waited until 1932 to gather their momentum here. By the time Americans were ready to outrun their British pacemakers the British were pulling their stride.

Great Britain, having preceded the United States in going on the dole, in going off gold, in trying a managed currency, in experimenting with collectivist ideas of social justice, pulled up about the time the Roosevelt New Deal tore loose. Lloyd George tried to rally the Britishers around the idea that the Roosevelt program was the one to imitate, but the majority of the voters had seen enough. The Baldwin national coalition, originally formed to stave off national disaster, had stopped the rush to the left and with a vote of confidence in Conservative policies Mr. Baldwin has a five year lease and a majority to support him. The British justify their indorsement of the Conservative party on the economic record. New Deals for Great Britain may be esteemed dead.

On the other side of the issue is the foreign question, which Europe regards as profoundly distressing and dangerous. It has been supposed that Mr. Baldwin wanted an electoral indorsement before he went further in British attempts to handle the European combustibles which may cause a general fire. It may not be that he seized upon the perils over the water to get a popular underwriting of his government, but he has obtained it and people everywhere will wait to learn whether he will take a stronger or a lighter hand. What the British see as their own stake in Mussolini's African adventures may not have been made quite clear. It lurks under altruism regarding the preservation of peace through the league of nations. It is unquestionably a large stake, both in the colonial domain and in continental Europe.

In many pessimistic years Europe has not felt quite so alarmed as it does now. There is as much talk of the inevitability of another general war as there used to be of its probability. Certainly fears of great import have caused the British fleet maneuvers and the alignment of league of nations members against Italy. Mr. Baldwin was supposed to have been marking time while the campaign went on in Great Britain. Now that he has his answer the world will wait to see what use he makes of it.

Europe, Asia, and Africa are full of rumors of alliances, Germany and Japan against Russia being one, and no statesmanship views the future with any peace or certainty. Apparently the British people have been persuaded that their best chance of avoiding a war lies in manipulation of the league of nations against what can be presented to world opinion as ambitious dictatorship in aggressions threatening the peace of the world. British statesmanship has been eminently successful thus far in making this moral approach to the problem. It has satisfied the British people, who naturally do not want to be involved in another war of ambition, and it has enabled the British government to go about its real purposes with a shining face. It is a supreme example of getting in right before you proceed to get possibly in wrong.

Editorial of the Day

CHEAP!

[Kansas City Star.]

The sarcastic comment of Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, that "the state of Kansas has never put up a thin dime for unemployment relief" and that Gov. Landon had been enabled to balance the state budget by "taking it out of the hides of the people" is just the cheap sort of thing that is not at all surprising in view of its source.

When it comes to a process of taking it out of the hides of the people with a vengeance the job can safely be left to Spendthrift Hopkins. But if the lavish administrator was in a mood for frivolous castigation of any state or governor he could have found an abundance of other and far more suitable material at hand, especially in the Democratic south.

Relief money in Kansas has not been put up in the name of the state for the simple and quite sufficient reason that its constitution provides that work shall be done by the counties. And the counties of Kansas have responded fully, complying at once with every request of the national relief administration. In a period of three years ending with last June, 31 per cent of the money spent for relief in Kansas came from nonfederal sources. In contrast, twenty-seven of the states contributed less than 25 per cent of their own relief funds, and the contribution from fourteen states amounted to less than 10 per cent.

That is the record and the standing of Kansas. It is the merest quibbling, of course, as to whether the money is put up in the name of the state or of the local subdivisions. And for what peculiar reason should Mr. Hopkins feel called upon to single out Kansas and its governor when there were so many other states and governors—practically all of them within the New Deal party ranks—that were doing much less for relief of their unemployed?

And whose money is it that Mr. Hopkins is spending so freely and with such bombast? Whose, indeed, but that of the states and their taxpayers, including those of Kansas?

The real hides that are touched in this incident are those of the national administrator and his fellow spenders at Washington. It is perfectly understandable that those gentlemen should feel shamefully exposed by the economy and budget showing of Kansas and its governor. That is what really hurts.

ART

Being a list of the most notable paintings in the Line o' Type or Two's own private art exhibition of 1935. A list of the pictures with brief description of each canvas:

No. 2222. LOVERS IN A COOP. A very lovely painting representing romance in a coop of Rhode Island Red chickens. Criticisms of this painting have generally been to the effect that if the poultry were Rhode Island Reds then they should be red in color, but instead of that some of the hens are green, while others are blue with yellow polka dots. But art cannot be measured by hard and fast rules; its goal is beauty, and since green hens and blue hens with yellow polka dots are more beautiful than ordinary Rhode Island Reds the artist painted them that way. The artist is one who knows his poultry, as he is none other than Joshua Sniggs, who has worked at calcimining chicken coops for over twenty-five years.

No. 7777. MAN WASHING HIS EARS. A delightful bit of genre. Reminds one very much of the best work of Reynolds or Constable. That is, if you look at it that way. The picture is so strikingly realistic that the name of the brand of toilet soap held in one of the man's hands can be easily read. This proves that it's either a fresh bar of soap or that the man doesn't wash his ears very often. More probably the latter. Anyhow, it raises a question that art lovers must settle for themselves. Painted by John Monkeywrench, a plumber and steamfitter.

No. 9999. MISMATED. In this striking canvas the artist has shown the tragedy in a marriage in which the two principals are entirely unsuited to each other. The artist has painted the picture of a mud turtle wedded to an ostrich, a marriage which could only bring grief and unhappiness to both. The mud turtle sits in his chair gazing into the fire and thinking of the happy days when he romped in a cool, slimy mud puddle over in the meadow. The ostrich, too, has no look of pride or joy in her face as she gazes across the room at what she married. She is thinking of the time when she ran wild and free over the sands of the desert, shrieking her girlish laughter and trilling her happy ostrich songs in the shade of the waving palms. Of course, the greatest tragedy of such a union is the children, and the artist has painted them in, all thirty-five, in a manner so truthful as to be almost brutal. Some of the children turned out to be hedge hogs or alligators, but two or three were chicken hawks. There is much tragedy in this remarkable painting and it is worthy of long and careful study. The artist is Brusham Yowler, who has a long and extensive experience with animal life gained through many years service as a night watchman in a fur coat storage warehouse.

Awarded the Etaoin Shrdlu leather medal and three used street car transfer tickets.

No. 41144. STREET FIGHT. A fat woman in red shorts with purple waist and green hat and with a toothpick in her mouth is riding a bicycle down an alley. A very striking painting done by Togo Botts, for many years the most popular blacksmith in Hickory Junction, Ind.

No. 5555. THE OLD HOME. This is a lovely landscape with genre setting of an old mansion in a small town as it looks today. This is strictly modern art, as it is in sixteen colors of the most vivid hues imaginable. More than that, the artist has made his canvas fairly glow with real life by painting the red barn in the picture with real red barn paint. The houses of the little village are painted with white house paint and the chicken coops and poultry houses were done with real whitewash. The cement road past the house is done with real cement carefully laid on. We see in this lovely picture the changes that have come with the years to the old home, which was once a palatial mansion. A large sign tacked to the front of the house says "Tourists' Rest, Bath and Garage." One of the front rooms of the mansion carries a large sign "EATS," while the room at the other corner is a "Beautie Shoppe." A filling station stands in the front yard, and the other half of the yard is a picnic ground in which merry groups are sitting on the greensward picking pickles out of glass bottles and ants off the custard pie. To make the picture even truer to life a railroad train on a track just behind the old home is about to pass and an automobile at full speed is trying to beat it to the crossing. It is a picture full of human interest and reflects great credit on Ira Dauber, who, being a hog raiser, has never painted a picture before and who did this one on a bet.

Oh, I am empty now in sorry truth.
Come and twine daisies for my bending head.
I could have followed gleaners down with Ruth,
Or wept to see Elaine's last lilied bed
Or torn a jeweled buckle from my shoe
To give the headsman, Monsieur Paris, saying,
"Have the blade sharp. Be quick. It is her due."
—And turned my eyes from where the queen was
I weep for women as I weep to see
Some splendid star go plunging down the sky,
Effulgent, terrible, and piercing me
With the sure knowledge beauty too must die,
And leave no witness but the words of men
That cannot make lost beauty live again.

SURGERY AIDS LUNG REST.

WE know that in the case of a fractured bone the only way to promote healing is to join the fragments so firmly that movement is impossible—in other words, compel complete rest. Lying down, that is, rest in bed, requires the lungs to do less work than when the individual is walking or running, but it does not rest the lungs completely. In fact, as long as life continues the lungs must maintain a certain amount of activity—enough to supply oxygen to the tissues. Hence absolute rest is impossible. But we can rest a portion of the lung—when it is diseased—through the employment of any one of several methods, chief of which is pneumothorax or collapse therapy.

Pneumothorax has been used for many years and consists in introducing air into the pleural space which forces the lung [in the absence of adhesions] to collapse. Although the introduced air is gradually absorbed, many days may elapse and, in the meantime, the lung has secured considerable rest. Experts in tuberculosis who have had extended experience with the procedure are most enthusiastic about it. It is a close approach to "splinting" the lung or fixing it so that the minimum of movement will occur.

In a recent report of a tuberculosis hospital of 300 patients nearly 50 per cent were treated with some form of collapse therapy. Of these, 80 received pneumothorax, 53 some interruption of the phrenic nerve, 10 had surgical removal of the chest wall, and 5 more or less extensive rib removals for one reason or another. In most of the cases the disease was far advanced and had involved both lungs. The director of the hospital, in reporting on the value of the treatments instituted, felt that through the program of enforced [surgical] rest the lives of many of the patients had been preserved.

But a short time ago it was felt that pneumothorax should be advised only in those cases in which the disease was confined to one side of the chest. It was obvious that much improvement occurred whenever a lung in which a cavity was present was shrunk to a very small area. By this means the cavity was closed and it was found that if the lung could be retained at rest long enough healing would take place. Pneumothorax is now practiced when both lungs are diseased and in the presence of large and multiple cavities. The procedure has also been found to be of the greatest value in severe pulmonary hemorrhage. Following its use there is usually a reduction in fever, lessening of cough and expectoration, and gain in appetite and weight. The mental reaction of the patient is at the same time most encouraging.

Cutting the phrenic nerve on one side will paralyze the diaphragm, causing it to rise in the chest cavity on that side, and partially constrict the lung. It is sometimes of considerable help in supplementing pneumothorax. By some authorities it is regarded as relaxation of the lung rather than collapse or constriction.

Extensive removal of one side of the chest wall [thoracoplasty] has been advocated for the last few years and the method is probably advancing as rapidly as any single phase of lung surgery. There are certain cases that will not yield to either pneumothorax or paralysis of the diaphragm; chiefly those with firm adhesions between the lung and the chest wall. Lung rest, therefore, can only be insured by the removal of sections of the ribs, thus allowing the chest wall to "cave in."

A convenient mechanical method of aiding lung rest is achieved by placing the patient in bed with bags of shot so arranged as to retard the expansion of the chest. These weights rest on the chest over the affected part of the lung and are gradually increased until the patient can bear 12 to 15 pounds. While lung rest, under this plan, is not absolute yet movement is restricted and diseased areas are known to heal with marked amelioration of symptoms.

Rest—by whatever method it may be accomplished—is the way to aid nature.

WASH NECK.

G. M. writes: Several years ago I contracted an infection from a metal collar button and the abcess had to be lanced. Since then this spot itches, and when I scratch it the skin breaks out. I have applied alcohol and sulphur but the condition remains.

REPLY.

Scrupulous cleanliness of the neck will accomplish more than any other form of treatment. Follow thorough washing with the application of a 25 per cent alcohol solution. Use tincture of green soap morning and night. Change your collar and shirt daily.

NERVOUS TIC.

A. J. S. writes: I am annoyed by a twitching in the left eye and cheek. Is this a nervous trouble or is there a possibility of paralysis of the face? Is there anything that can be done to correct this? I am 63 years old.

REPLY.

This is undoubtedly a nervous tic [a habit pattern]. There is no danger of paralysis. It might be well to have your eyes examined. It is not infrequently due to a slight visual defect.

TRY A CORSET.

Mrs. B. M. writes: Since my child was born, 3 years ago, I have had a large abdomen. What can be done for this?

REPLY.

You probably need a properly fitted corset. In addition, a course of exercise will be of great benefit. Perhaps you could join a gymnasium class in your neighborhood. Massage and some attention to the diet are suggested.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In reply to your letter regarding an estate in which my grandfather was involved and who died in Iowa in 1933, I am writing to say [2] all his property was deeded to his wife, my grandmother. 3. The property was not probated until after his death. 4. Would this give me a chance to look after my share of the estate? I know he left some money. As I wrote you an [5] aunt and I are the only heirs. My father died 21 years ago. I know I am being swindled out of my just rights. What I want to know is [6] have I a chance after two years to claim a settlement? My grandmother wrote me today and said money is scarce with her and if it is my aunt is taking most of the rentals. 7. What percent of estate would an attorney be entitled to collect? B. S.

1. Since we answer more than one thousand of these letters per month, you will understand our inability to remember facts of previous letters.
2. If the deeds were validly delivered to the grandmother during the grantor's lifetime and the grandmother is still living, then we do not see how you have any present interest.
3. It is not clear what property you refer to.
4. See preceding answers.
5. If you are the only heirs, then, of course, you share in any estate that he left. It is not clear what question you mean to ask.
6. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.
7. Depends on facts that are not before us.

RECORDING REQUIRED.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The mortgage on my house is due soon. The mortgage is owned by a private individual and as I am unable to pay same off the party holding mortgage said he would extend it for a given time. He suggests that instead of going to the expense of hiring a lawyer to make out a new mortgage we simply write an agreement on the reverse side of the mortgage and have our signatures notarized. Would such procedure be legal? F. C.

Recent legislation requires recording. Hence we would advise drawing up an extension agreement and coupons on forms which may be obtained from a stationer.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—The prospects of a new South American republic, to act as a buffer between Bolivia and Paraguay, continue to expand, just as the hopes of peace emerging from the Chaco conference in Buenos Aires continue to fade.

The new republic, if it materializes, will consist of the present Bolivian provinces of Santa Cruz de la Sierra and El Beni in the heart of the Bolivian state as it exists today.

The Paraguayans threatened the neutral delegations in Buenos Aires, including that of the United States, to encourage the creation of this new state if their peace terms are not accepted.

They demand the exclusion from present negotiations of all Chaco territory awarded them by President Rutherford Hayes when he was called upon to arbitrate. They refuse to repatriate 30,000 Bolivian prisoners of war until terms are signed on this basis. Bolivia has only a few thousand Paraguayan prisoners.

The only progress registered at the Buenos Aires conference since the protocol of June 12 was an agreement to constitute an international commission to decide war responsibility. This allows Paraguay and Bolivia to nominate one member each. The members must be high court judges of any Latin American country.

The third member will be nominated by the Supreme court of the United States. He will be the president. This commission will have about 18 months to hear arguments and deliver its verdict. If one side disagrees with the verdict, then the world court at The Hague will be called upon to give an arbitrary judgment.

The complication of the threatened new state, however, is the chief concern of the neutral delegations, which have just reassembled in the Argentine capital to make a last appeal to the Bolivian and Paraguayan representatives to get together.

It was known for some time that a separatist movement was progressing in the city and neighborhood of Santa Cruz, but evidence is now forthcoming that Paraguay is prepared to give it military backing.

Paraguayan sources are circulating propaganda in favor of the new republic in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Peru—the neutral countries which would be principally affected by the creation of an eleventh South American republic.

Bolivians were indignant because of Paraguayan efforts to deprive them of two of their richest provinces, but were confident that local patriotism would nullify any seditious attempts.

The population of Bolivia is just under 3,000,000. If the buffer state succeeded, Bolivia would lose approximately one-eighth of these inhabitants. It would also lose 370,000 square miles of territory, which is nearly half the size of the republic.

Santa Cruz, where the chief separatist movement prospers, measures approximately 220,000 square miles with a population of 350,000. It is chiefly agricultural. Santa Cruz is the capital town with less than 50,000 inhabitants.

Beni, which takes its name from the Beni river, is tropical, with 150,000 square miles and only 50,000 population. It is traversed by more than 30 navigable rivers, and the intervening land is extraordinarily fertile.

The principal industry is exploitation of the rubber trees on the banks of the Beni and its tributary streams. The zone is admirably adapted for the production of cacao and tobacco. Trinidad, with approximately 10,000 inhabitants, is the capital.

Although confident that there is sufficient local patriotism to stem the Paraguayan promoted separatist tide, Bolivia is alarmed because the armistice terms provided for the retention of Paraguayan positions on the Villa Montes-Santa Cruz road, which would be favorable for any separatist strategy supported by the Asuncion government.

Separatist sentiment is also encouraged because these Paraguayan positions cut off Santa Cruz access to a big southern market, which causes economic discontent. On the other hand, Santa Cruz city is linked with La Paz, the federal capital, by rail via Cochabamba.

Paraguayans seem confident that the new republic will be called into existence. They already have named it Santa Cruz state and provided it with an independent emblem—a flag with green, white, and red horizontal bars, with a white star near the staf.

THE SWEITZER VERDICT.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Isn't the verdict in the Sweitzer case discouraging to the average guy who carefully parks his car within the prescribed distance from fire hydrants; who makes accurate and proper account on his income tax of the few dollars he made during the year; who is respectful to policemen and cheers the flag when it goes by? Isn't it discouraging to the average mutt who tears up street car transfers because a printed notice thereon warns him of the criminal consequences of discarding them intact; who walks across on the green light only; who quakes in guilty recollection of the time in an emergency when he dropped a slug in a nickel phone; who meekly restrains his impulse to kick a gum vending machine that doesn't react? Isn't it discouraging to the guy who pays for a newspaper taken from an unguarded stand; who doesn't steal milk bottles from back porches; who doesn't kick blind men or pick flowers in the public parks?

Isn't it discouraging?

SERVICE—JUST SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Your issue of Nov. 7 carried a story describing a meeting of the Association of Workers in Public Agencies, an organization of employés in the county relief administration, at which Miss Bertha Reynolds spoke.

Your headline, "Relief Workers Act to Organize as Labor Union; Seek Perpetuation of New Deal Spending," was incorrect. No action whatsoever in the direction of organizing a labor union was taken. One or two speakers merely voiced favorable sentiment toward this idea.

Our concern is not to "seek perpetuation of New Deal spending," nor is it the "perpetuation of the welfare workers' jobs . . . regardless of the future reductions in the unemployed rolls," as you report. Our concern is to insure adequate relief for the unemployed and the retention of a staf large enough to provide for the needs of the unemployed without constant delay. We maintain that the present staf is not sufficiently large to meet adequately these needs and we will therefore actively oppose the contemplated drastic personnel reduction. If the fulfilment of our concern means the "perpetuation of New Deal spending" and the "retention of jobs for all of us," then we shall work to that end.

ELI COHEN,
Vice Chairman, Association of Workers in Public Agencies.

REGARDING ALBERT BALLIN.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—In THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 9: "The Hamburg-America liner Albert Ballin came into port today under another name. She is now the Hansa. Albert Ballin, whose name the ship originally was given, was a Jew."

From the Americana Encyclopædia: "When he [Albert Ballin] joined the Hamburg-America line its capital was $3,750,000. At the outbreak of the European war it was $37,500,000. Whereas in the early years of his administration its gross profits were $625,000, in 1913 its gross profits approached $15,000,000, while the company's pennant floated from the mastheads of 180 vessels. From a total tonnage of 60,000 for the whole fleet twenty-five years before one single vessel in 1913, the Imperator, had alone a tonnage of 50,000."

ALEX FRIEDMANN.

REPLY FROM THE FARM.

McNabb, Ill., Nov. 9.—I have read letters from city people expressing their ideas in your column regarding the AAA. Now I think it time I, a farmer, enlighten some of these would-be crusaders, these piteously crying pen-holders.

In President Coolidge's and Hoover's administrations the farmers got very little for corn, oats, hogs, or any other farm products—not enough to even begin to cover expenses. The following items are listed as expenses on a farm: Wire fencing, tractor, binders, wagons, hayracks, corn elevators, plows, horses, mowers, corn planters, disks, harrows, manure spreaders—these and many more cost money. We pay taxes on this machinery and taxes on the land we own.

In the latter part of the Hoover administration we received as little as 19 cents for a bushel of corn; all other farm products correspondingly low. Farmers, myself included, burned corn [it was cheaper than coal], but I didn't see any letters in your paper about the farmers being given a decent price, so we could sell it for those poor, starving city people.

We didn't have a telephone, something as essential to us as to a city dweller, for we do not have next-door neighbors in case of fire, illness, etc.; no radio, of course, for we should be too tired to listen to it and far too dumb to try to keep up with news, especially events that would benefit our cause. We didn't own a car, but then, again, we didn't need a car. You think them just for city people to take those pleasant, lovely Sunday afternoon drives, viewing the beautiful country scenery. We couldn't buy a paper; seemed no pennies were available.

Talk about clothes! We certainly didn't need them. As far as we went, a gunny sack served the purpose nicely. We didn't buy paint to keep our buildings in repair. You say they look better without it; sort of antique?

The sad part of all this is: I didn't hear a word of what the city people thought of the situation, although every one of the items we couldn't buy meant some one was doing less work in your city.

The farmer has organized, as every factory employé is doing. We are shutting down on production as every manufacturer has done and will continue to do when he sees the necessity. Through the noble efforts of President Roosevelt and the farmer himself we now have the AAA. We like it; we believe in it.

My advice to you is to study the situation, then write your letters. Write to me, if you care to, for more information. I am not merely signing my initials. [MISS] FLORENCE M. IOERGER.

WAS HER FACE RED?

Chicago, Nov. 11.—For nine years now I have been trying to get my husband to visit the Art institute with me. Finally success. Then to my horror I had to bring him in on the so-called American art exhibit. Truly, I did not hear one favorable comment on any side of me. Still, there were hundreds of Americans around us.

Who are these artists with such grotesque imaginations?

To top it off, I pick up my morning TRIBUNE, scan the "Voice of the People" column, and find "She Liked It." Of course, every one to his own liking. Did she really see beauty, humor, pathos, fun, etc.? Maybe I'm wrong, blind, or dead.

However, after you push through the Sunday crowds you can sit down and rest in one of the Early American rooms and feast your eyes on one, mind you, only one painting, and feel more than paid for your visit.

Woman Tells Methods of Natty "Naprapath."

Harry G. Trestrail, who describes himself as a "naprapath" and said modestly on the witness stand that he was "only a masseur," was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail and fined $500 yesterday by Municipal Judge John J. Lupe in the city hall on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Trestrail is the second defendant within two days to be found guilty of medical quackery. Kenneth W. Barron, operator of the Madison-Western clinic at 2418 Madison street, was sentenced on Thursday to one year in the county jail and fined $500 for practicing medicine without a license.

Judge Lupe declared that Trestrail was endangering the life and health of persons needing medical attention. The defendant would have received a lighter sentence, however, the judge declared, except for the "flagrant perjury" which he said Trestrail committed in denying that he ever had seen Mrs. Charlotte Hermes, investigator for the state department of registration and education, who testified against him.

Suggests Grand Jury Action.

Judge Lupe suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of the grand jury.

Assistant State's Attorney Jacob L. Sheer in a brief closing argument declared that the testimony of the well dressed young "naprapath" was "the rankest case of perjury I ever heard in a court."

Motions for a new trial and motion for arrest of judgment were overruled. Defense Attorney Ray E. Lane was allowed thirty days to file a bill of exceptions with the Appellate court.

Pending appeal, Trestrail's bond was increased from $1,000 to $2,500. On his attorney's representation that he would produce the defendant in court this morning to supply the larger bond, Trestrail was released on the old one.

Woman Describes Treatment.

Trestrail, who operates an office at 3325 Lincoln avenue, and a smaller office in his home at 3359 North Oak Park avenue, was arrested last August by Inspector A. J. Meadel of the department of registration and education.

Mrs. Hermes' testimony related how she first visited Trestrail on June 14 at his former office at 1837 Adams street, where a sign on the window announced it was "Dr. Trestrail's Health Institute." The sign later was removed. There he explained to her that "naprapathy" meant a special kind of chiropractic in which a nerve in the spinal column was massaged.

He had her don a hospital gown, which was open in the back, and lie on a table. Then the work on the spine began. Kneading her spine at one point, he said, according to Mrs. Hermes' testimony: "Sure, that's tender. That means you have stomach trouble."

Warned Not to Drink Milk.

When he declared he never saw her, and a woman office assistant employed by him supported his testimony, the state was allowed to introduce evidence of all seven visits which Mrs. Hermes paid Trestrail.

She described minutely his office on Lincoln avenue, with its four dressing rooms, three booths, a private office, and waiting room.

He prescribed diets for her, telling her to eschew milk and meats. Milk, he told her, should not be drunk after infancy, "despite what Dr. Bundesen and other doctors say."

GRAND JURY TO QUESTION A NEW ROGERS WITNESS

West Chester, Pa., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A grand jury investigating the death of blonde Evelyn Hoey, Broadway blues singer, decided today to question a new witness in the case.

County officials confirmed reports that testimony would be sought Monday from George B. Campbell of Phoenixville, a former county detective who is reputed to have made a private study of the affair.

District Attorney William E. Parke was asked to subpena Campbell after the jurors had virtually completed their inquiry into the fatal shooting of the singer, which occurred in the farm home of Henry H. Rogers III., heir to a part of his father's oil fortune.

Deputy Coroner Harvey Cox and the six jurors who returned an open verdict in the case also were instructed to return on Monday.

KANSAS CITY DOCTOR BEGINS SEVENTH YEAR OF DAILY PLANE TRIPS

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Dr. John D. Brock, aviator-sportsman, began his seventh year of daily flights today by going aloft for his 2,191st consecutive time, but he was forced to return to port because of a snowstorm.

In order to keep up his record for getting off the ground daily, the "flying doctor" had taken off despite menacing clouds which formed an almost zero ceiling. He had planned to fly to Oklahoma City where he was to be a guest of the chamber of commerce along with Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, and Eugene Vidal, director of air commerce.

Dr. Brock's determination to fly daily has led him into many unique and sometimes hazardous experiences. He has flown to every state capital in the United States, has won race trophies and other honors and even learned to shave while flying his ship in order to save time.

URGES DOCTORS TO FIGHT PERILS OF SOCIALIZATION

Calls Social Security Act a 'Wedge.'

Physicians must awaken to the dangers of socialized medicine, Dr. J. Tate Mason of Seattle, Wash., president elect of the American Medical association, declared yesterday in an address at the annual conference of association secretaries in the Palmer house.

Dr. Mason said the physician has been "too busy attending to his own business" to take notice of a "big drive to socialize him." The New Deal's social security act, Dr. Mason added, is an opening wedge in the socialization movement.

"Entangled with Politicians."

"I think medicine today is represented by the average practitioner, and the idea of socialized medicine has not appealed to him as his concern," Dr. Mason said. "He does not realize that he will be entangled with politicians, and that his indiviuality, his idealism in treating his patients in his own way, will be taken away from him.

"The average practitioner thinks that such matters are the concern of the American Medical association. He is right, but he should recall that, through his local medical organization, he is a member of the American association. When individual doctors realize that socialization would lower medical standards in the country, they will act. I do not think that we should ever go into politics except when we feel that politics affects the health of the people."

Another Warning Added.

Socialization of medicine also was opposed in an address by J. G. Crownhart of Madison, Wis., secretary of the Wisconsin Medical society.

"The alleged benefits of compulsory sickness insurance are extoled," Mr. Crownhart said. "The glaring defects and failures abroad are ignored. There is the constant baiting of the hooks with the spurious promise of increased income for the practitioner."

The entire problem of the social security act and its affect upon the medical profession is scheduled to be discussed during the closing session of the secretaries today.

BAKER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

OFFICIALS UNITE TO STOP LITTER OF BILL POSTERS

Police Get List of 300 Law Violations.

City, county and police officials joined with the Metropolitan State Civic council yesterday in its campaign to enforce laws regulating the posting of bills on public and private property. John C. Bowers, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, and Capt. John C. Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police, were the principal speakers at a meeting of the council in the Chicago Federated Advertising club at the Hote La Salle. Officers of women's federations and major civic organizations constitute the council's membership.

"Property owners and the real estate board are vitally interested in stopping unlawful posting of printed notices," Mr. Bowers said. "Such practices make the city unnecessarily dirty. Just a few signs posted on telephone poles and buildings in a neighborhood will contaminate the whole district because they invite other signs."

Promises to Jail Violators.

Capt. Prendergast pointed out that most unlawful sign posting is accomplished during the night. "We have the power to jail violators and we will do it," Capt. Prendergast said. He accepted a list of more than 300 locations in the city where the council has found unlawful postings and told the members he would have the police department investigate each place.

John C. Metcalfe, president of the council, read letters from organizations supporting the campaign. One of the communications was signed by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court. He expressed willingness to confer with the council president on plans to instruct Municipal court judges in the handling of posting violation cases.

Other pledges of support for the movement were read from Judge Joseph B. Hermes, Judge Gibson E. Gorman, and Judge Eugene J. Holland, all of the Municipal court; Sherif John Toman, Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board; H. Wallace Caldwell, county commissioner; Capt. David Flynn, head of the police trafic division; Arthur M. Wirtz, vice president of the Stadium corporation; J. E. Morrison of the General Outdoor Advertising company, and the following aldermen: James R. Quinn, James J. Cusack Jr., Dorsey R. Crowe, Roger J. Kiley, G. D. Kells, George W. Robinson, and Berthold A. Cronson.

Coöperation Is Asked.

It was announced that theatrical companies, dance halls and other amusement places using poster advertising have been asked to coöperate in the campaign by refusing to permit posting agencies to place signs on buildings, fences, telephone poles and other objectionable places.

An educational program designed to acquaint property owners with the campaign was adopted. Mr. Metcalfe explained that property owners must coöperate in the drive to save their own districts from illegal posting. Appeals will be made to political central committees to instruct their candidates not to permit posting of campaign literature on properties. The council contends such advertising arouses ill feeling among property owners and organized groups, often resulting in loss of votes for candidates.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 15.—Miss Jean Battem of New Zealand, the first woman to fly alone across the South Atlantic, arrived in this city today after being forced down yesterday in a salt swamp about 53 miles north of here on her hop from Natal, Brazil.

Miss Batten arrived in another plane and upon landing discovered that she had set a new speed record for the route from Dakar, Africa, to Natal. She flew the distance in 13 hours and 15 minutes. The previous record was 13 hours and 37 minutes. It was established by Pilot Guillaumet of the French trans-Atlantic air line.

The aviatrix, who is 25 years old, was forced down in the Brazilian salt swamp because her plane's fuel tank was leaking. The plane tipped over on its nose and the tip of the propeller was bent. She was located by three army planes.

NURSERY SENDS KERCHIEFS IN A PLEA FOR FUNDS

Many Chicagoans in various parts of the city received letters this week soliciting contributions for the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery at 1424 South Albany avenue. Inclosed in each letter were two handkerchiefs embroidered with the recipient's initials and a plea was made by the nursery "to accept these handkerchiefs in the name of these parentless children and send your donation to help in this work."

The letters contained references to the "fond memories of childhood," and said that the nursery in "its humble way" had been endeavoring for the last 17 years to aid poor orphans. Many of those who received the letters said they had not heard of the nursery and wondered how their names appeared on its mailing list.

Telephone calls to the nursery yesterday disclosed that the names of the recipients of the letters "were given by some one or other of our 5,000 members, we don't know just who."

Committee to Study Plan for Simplification.

The first meeting of a special city council committee appointed to investigate the City club's proposal to simplify Chicago's system of street names will be held in the city hall at 2 p. m., Monday, Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th] said yesterday. The meeting will be in the nature of a hearing open to club representatives and experts from the city's street department. Public hearings on the plan will follow later.

The plan to simplify the street name system by eliminating duplicate names and giving one name to uninterrupted streets now broken up with several designations, has been before the council in various forms for the last 22 years. While the council was not averse to changing street names for political purposes—such as changing Crawford avenue to Pulaski road—to date it has turned a deaf ear on the simplification proposal.

Urge Action Now as Economy.

Last spring the city council asked the Works Progress administration for $392,000 to remark the city streets and the project was approved. This action caused the City club to renew its campaign, and it came before the council two weeks ago with a proposal that the simplification plan be adopted now when it can be carried out without additional cost.

If it is delayed until the WPA project has been carried to completion, the club pointed out, it would cost an additional $40,000 to end duplications and eliminate "broken link" streets after the system has been remarked. The club further pointed out that present confusion in the system increases delivery costs $500,000 a year, which in turn is added to the general price of goods, and thus is borne by everyone.

Ald. Terence F. Moran [16th], chairman of the council's committee on local industries, streets and alleys, reluctantly agreed to name a subcommittee to investigate the proposal. Ald George W. Robinson [36th], vice chairman of the committee, called for immediate favorable action on the plan.

Terrell Pledges Action.

After he was again approached by City club representatives, Ald. Moran announced the naming of the subcommittee, including Ald. Terrell, Ald. Robinson, and Aldermen Harry E. Perry [18th], Dorsey R. Crowe [42d], Roger J. Kiley [37th], John J. Lagodny [21st], and Edwin F. Meyer [45th].

Ald. Terrell declared yesterday that the subcommittee will not further delay the street name plan, and that it will make a recommendation to the council.

"I firmly believe that the simplification should be accomplished now," he said. "I think ward interests should be disregarded for the good of the city. I am informed that Mayor Kelly favors simplification of street names, and I hope that he will have opportunity to appear before the committee in support of it."

AMERICAN WINS HUGHES MEDAL OF ROYAL SOCIETY

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Dr. Clinton J. Davison of the Bell Telephone laboratories, New York, today was awarded the Hughes medal of the Royal society for his discovery of the physical existence of electron waves. The discovery came after long researches on the reflection of electrons from crystal planes of nickel and other metals.

With the approval of King George, the royal medal of the society, one of the most coveted awards of British science, went to Prof. Charles Galton Darwin, grandson of the great Charles Darwin, fc his researches in mathematical physics, especially in the quantum mechanics of the electron and in optics.

Another royal medal was awarded Dr. Alfred Harker of Cambridge in recognition of his distinguished work as a petrologist.

Pete Llanuza, Cartoonist, Asks Profit on M. Mouse

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Charging appropriation of his idea for animated cartoon films, Pedro [Pete] Llanuza, newspaper cartoonist, formerly of Chicago, brought suit today against Walt Disney, creator of Mickey Mouse, and three film corporations. Llanuza seeks an accounting of profits, "exceeding $500,000," and an injunction restraining the defendants from utilizing his suggestion. Other defendants were Columbia Pictures corporation, Winkler Film corporation, and the United Artists corporation.

A declaration by Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, chancellor of New York university, that educational institutions are the only means through which democracy can function for the individual, followed administration of the oath of office by Dr. James R. Biddle, chairman of the board of trustees.

"I confess that I grow impatient with some of my friends who stress the value of a highly selective and restrictive process of education," Dr. Chase said. "It is contrary to the genius and temper of the American people; it is one sure way to create a caste system in this country."

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—"A new era in American journalism has begun," declared John E. Stempel, of the New York Sun, president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, at the opening session of the 20th annual national convention on the University of Illinois campus today.

"Rising newspaper receipts, currently reported, will mean wider use of the most recent mechanical developments in newspaper production, enlarged stafs to improve news coverage and interpretation to meet the challenge of radio and the films, and improved conditions of newspaper work."

A stag smoker given by the local chapter was held at the Champaign County Country club tonight. A model initiation will be held late tomorrow afternoon during which Philip Kinsley, feature writer of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and Charles H. Dennis, editor-emeritus of the Chicago Daily News, will become associate members of the local chapter. The convention dinner will be held tomorrow night.

PLAN TO SPLIT UP NOBEL CHEMISTRY PRIZE WITH AIDS

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Prof. Frederick Joliot of France and his wife, daughter of Mme. Marie Curie, codiscoverer of radium, will share their 1935 Nobel chemistry prize with their assistants in the development of radium substitutes. Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie, whose parents received two Nobel awards before her, let her husband do the talking today.

"We will use the money [around $40,000] to live better," he said. "That will help because we won't have to worry about tomorrow's money. We also will reward our laboratory aids who are not paid enough."

Prof. Joliot said he regarded the prize, awarded yesterday, "as a tribute to science rather than to us personally. "He expressed hope the award would demonstrate that science "is not the cause of unemployment."

The Joliot-Curie experiments will be continued with a view to making possible the production of radium substitutes in sufficient quantity to be of use in medicine and biology, he added.

RING RETURNED TO MISS BARRIE BY BARRYMORE

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)—John Barrymore is under no obligation to Miss Elaine Barrie, his erstwhile protégé-fiancé, and has her signature in black and white to prove it, Frank Aranow, Barrymore's attorney, announced today.

The diamond ring, which Miss Barrie said plighted their troth and which Mr. Barrymore said merely sealed their friendship, will be returned to the young student actress, Aranow said.

A statement couched in legal terms announced the end of the romance that began in a hospital, was nourished by sea breezes on a yacht trip to the Caribbean, and was climaxed by Barrymore's cross-country flight with his "Ariel" in full pursuit.

Action "Quite Expected."

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The action of John Barrymore's attorney was "quite expected," Miss Barrie said here today.

"After all, why shouldn't the ring be returned? It's my ring," said Miss Barrie.

INJUNCTION BANS 3 PCT. SALES TAX ON CITIES' WATER

Circuit Judge Walter J. La Buy issued a temporary injunction yesterday restraining Knowlton L. Ames Jr., state director of finance, and John Stelle, state treasurer, from collecting the 3 per cent sales tax on municipally furnished water, gas, and electricity in 110 cities and towns throughout the state. The order is similar to one entered recently by Judge La Buy restraining state officials from collecting the sales tax on water bills in Chicago. Attorneys for the municipalities contended that the utility tax act, an adjunct of the sales tax law, is "unconstitutional and inapplicable" to municipal corporations which operate their own utility plants. The temporary injunctions will allow the situation to remain in status quo until there has been a hearing on motions for permanent restraining orders.

Indians Will Autograph Book on Blackfeet Tribe

As a feature of National Children's Book week, opening today, Chief Big Left Arm and Chief Yellowhead of the Blackfeet tribe of Glacier National park will be at Marshall Field's book section to autograph with Indian sign writing copies of the new Blackfeet Indian book. The Indians will be present throughout the week. Two well known Indian authorities produced the book. Frank Linderman is the author and Winold Reiss furnished the illustrations.

BOOKS

Miss Shea Praises Many Nonfiction Titles.

ONE of the most encouraging trends in the publishing of juvenile books of the last few years has been the number and excellence of the nonfiction titles presented. A survey of the present year's output shows this policy being continued with many valuable titles in various fields. For the 9 or 10 year old who enjoyed "Wagtail" and "Ringtail" last year there is another fascinating science story by Alice Gall and Fleming Crew. It is called "Flat Tail" [Oxford] and tells of the adventures of a young beaver in the second year of his life. His adventures in the strange darkness, his fears as he listens to the weird cry of the hungry coyote seeking him, and his meeting with the other animals on the journey make good reading.

Similar in type is Agnes Atkinson's "Blinky" [Viking], the story of a young ringtail, which is the result of a study of small animals made by the author, whose generous display of food in the garden brought the shy creatures into it so that observation and photographs might be made of them.

For the slightly older group there is a book on bees called "Cities of Wax," by Julie C. Kenly [Appleton-Century]. This gives a full account of the various activities of the hive and of the difficulties which beset it.

Handicrafts, too, are occupying a prominent place in our education today, and Edwin T. Hamilton's "Popular Crafts for Boys" [Dodd] and Carolyn S. Bailey's "Children of the Handcrafts" [Viking] will be welcomed by both teachers and pupils working along this line. The first is one of the most complete and usable books on popular handcrafts for boys of which we know. Instructions are simple and definite, with one article in each group carried through to completion. The author has kept in mind boys' resources and expenditures are indicated with this in mind. Included among the crafts are maskmaking, soap sculpture, paper mosaic, tin can craft, trick photography and many others. The second is an account of the handcrafts of Colonial days and of some of the famous children who practiced them, including Lora Standish, Paul Revere, Henry Thoreau, and others.

For the practical minded boy or girl who is particularly alert to the things going on about him John Floherty's "Guardsmen of the Coast" [Doubleday], Franklin Reck's "Automobiles from Start to Finish" [Crowell], and Jeannette Eaton's "Behind the Show Window" [Harcourt] will rate high in informational value. The first tells briefly and concisely the facts about the coast guard and the second is the story of automobiles, both for the fourth and fifth grade reader.

Miss Eaton's book is for the upper grade child and gives information on various industries, the interrelation between their management and prices, facts on adulterated food, etc. This is a new type of book for this author, but is as important and valuable in its field as were her earlier ones.

Biography is represented on the year's list by Elizabeth Gray's "Young Walter Scott" [Harcourt], a book which is much more than simply an account of the boyhood of Walter Scott, for it is a story of sheer grit and perseverance on the part of a handicapped boy that should set anybody's blood tingling. Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Youth's Captain" [Longmans] is a story of Ralph Waldo Emerson's life, and "Chiyo's Return," by Chiyoono Kiyooka [Doubleday], is the very interesting account of the return of an American educated Japanese girl to her native land. Mrs. Kiyooka is the daughter of Sugimoto, author of "Daughter of the Samurai," and young people familiar with the latter will be especially interested in comparing the attitudes of the two generations toward the customs of their homeland.

An important biography of the year for young people is, of course, Winifred Wise's "Jane Addams of Hull House" [Harcourt]. Not only is this a picture of Jane Addams and her great accomplishment but it is also a record of the American scene of her day. New ideals at home and abroad, broader conceptions of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, growing acknowledgment of the interdependence of one people with another, all these characterized the story of the period in which Miss Addams played such a leading part. It is a biography which is assured a place on our young people's shelves.

For the poetry lover there are Louis Untermeyer's "Rainbow in the Sky" [Harcourt], an excellent collection for younger as well as older children, and "Sung Under the Silver Umbrella," a collection of verses for little children prepared by the Association for Childhood Education [Macmillan]. For the Catholic reader, child or adult, who is interested in poetry about the church and saints, Blanche Thompson's anthology "With Harp and Lute" [Macmillan] would make an excellent selection. It is an attractive, inexpensive little volume containing selections from Joyce Kilmer, Padraic Colum, Marguerite Wilkinson, and others, as well as by many sisters of various orders.

A particularly appropriate selection for Christmas giving might also be John W. Wilder's "His Name Is Jesus" [Reilly & Lee]. This is the story of Christ's childhood by a Chicago layman who drew upon his own understanding of the Bible story for his own children. In addition to incidents and quotations carefully reproduced, the author has attempted to reproduce for children a picture of the times in which the childhood of Christ was spent.

M. P. Shiel Writes Despite Rough Going

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—A curious and pathetic interest attaches to the publication of one new book of the autumn season in England. First of all, the publisher is Grant Richards, whose name has lately appeared seldom upon the title pages of books which he has not written. Secondly, the book is the work of M. P. Shiel.

Now, Mr. Shiel has been praised in superlatives by almost every writer of notes in our day. His novel "The Purple Cloud" is a book genuinely unique in brilliance and boldness of invention. Another book of his, "The Manstealers," sold no fewer than 37,000 copies in Great Britain alone.

A few years ago a determined attempt was made by Victor Gollancz to create a popular demand for a collected cheap edition of all Shiel's novels, while "Prince Zaleski" has always been recognized as a detective story of the first water. And yet Mr. Shiel has just been granted a civil list pension by the British government, which is a sign that for all his genius he lacks the support of readers.

Not at all discouraged by that fact, he has written a new long novel called "The Invisible Voices," and it is this new work that Mr. Richards will publish during the coming season. All will wish it well. Mr. Shiel is an Irishman. He has been compared with Carlyle, Coleridge, Conrad, and Dumas. His gifts are those of a latter day Edgar Allan Poe, but Arthur Machen once wrote that "he tells of a wilder wonderland than Poe dreamed of," and Carl Van Vechten that he "will satisfy any reader who cares for George Meredith or Herman Melville."

Meanwhile the publisher of "The Invisible Voices," Mr. Richards, will publish with Cassell his own new novel, "The Amiable Charles." That sounds as if it should provide good light entertainment, and arouses hopes that Mr. Richards will at least equal his delightful "Caviare."

Calling her book "Cheerful Giver" [Peter Davies], Mrs. Harold Williams has written a biography of her husband, who for some years after the war was foreign editor of the London Times.

Harold Williams was one of the most lovable men I have ever met; and the story of his life ought to be as charming as he was, for Mrs. Williams, a Russian, is in her own tongue a distinguished writer and in English an experienced and able commentator.

Williams touched life at many points, always with an odd combination of scholarship and boyish high spirits. He was an extraordinary linguist, a wise, sensitive, and attractive man; it is an excellent thing that there should be a "life" of him.

I have previously mentioned that a new instalment of Miss Dorothy Richardson's novel "Pilgrimage" is to be brought out this year by Messrs. Dent and the Cresset press.

It will be the eleventh volume of Miriam's saga; and all ten volumes of the past set are now taken over by these two publishers, who meditate a new edition in a slightly different format. Volume eleven is called "Clear Horizon," and in it much that has been obscure is made plain.

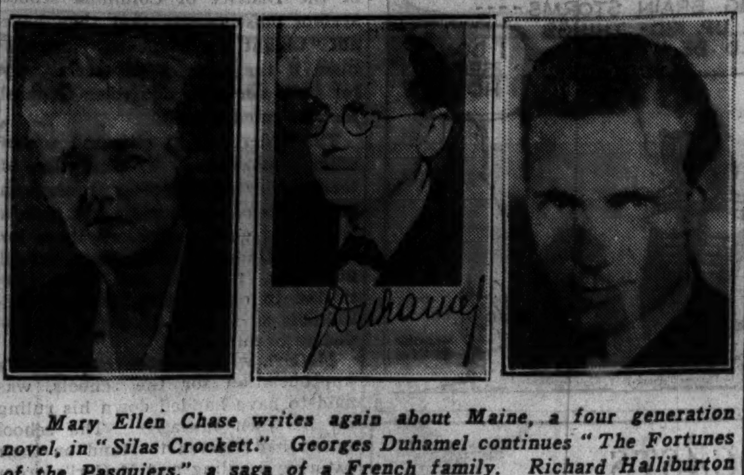
SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Their New Books Reviewed Today



Mary Ellen Chase writes again about Maine, a four generation novel, in "Silas Crockett." Georges Duhamel continues "The Fortunes of the Pasquiers," a saga of a French family. Richard Halliburton writes another of his circus stunt travel books in "Seven League Boots." All three of the books were published this week and are reviewed today.

More Family Sagas Added to Book List

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Seven League Boots," by Richard Halliburton. [Bobbs-Merrill.] Published yesterday.

"SILAS CROCKETT" begins in the year 1830, with the return from Canton and other far ports of Silas Crockett, masterful, handsome, debonair young sea captain, laden with gifts for Solace Windship, soon to be Solace Crockett. Young Silas was a dashing son of a dashing father, and Crockett was a name spoken with pride by men and women all up and down the Maine coast.

Solace goes to sea with her young husband, bears a dead child in mid-ocean, and waits twenty years for another. Nicholas, although born on land, had sails and the sea in his blood and found his life on a schooner a happy though financially limited one, although prosperity might have awaited him on a steamship. Steam conquered sails for his son Reuben, who captained a small passenger boat up and down the coast of Maine until another turn of fortune left him only a ferry boat to command. And his son Silas [Silas Crockett II.] had to be content to work in a herring factory for his contact with the sea.

"Silas Crocket" is a saga of the downfall of a great seafaring family of the days when the New England coast was one of the great maritime centers of the world. It is also the saga of New England womanhood, for of the wives and the financées of the Crocketts three of them were as stanch and sturdy and as proud in buffeting the storms of life as were the proud winged boats owned by the great Crocketts against the elements.

Solace Crockett sailed for twenty years with her husband, bore and bred his son and raised his grandson with a fine, firm hand on herself as well as on her household and truly fulfilled her name.

Huldah Crockett was paralyzed at the birth of her son, but she was a loving and beloved wife to her husband Reuben and to her son Silas. And Ann, soon to be a wife to Silas as the book ends, had the same fine qualities which had characterized the other Crockett wives. Only Deborah, wife of Nicholas and mother of Reuben, was heedless and selfish.

"Silas Crockett" is in the traditional manner of such sagalike tales, with everything done very well and properly technical, and nothing done with any ultradistinction. It is not, to my way of thinking, so vivid a book as was Miss Chase's "Mary Peters."

Another Volume on Pasquier Family.

Concerning an entirely different kind of family but also mirroring their background as well as their characters is Georges Duhamel's "The Fortunes of the Pasquiers." "Papa Pasquier," published last year, began the chronicles of a French family arrogantly ruled by a debonair father who thought that more education would make a better man of him and so tried subject after subject and as high handedly ruled by the hope of an inheritance which eventuated tragi-comically. In this further chronicle of the fortunes of the Pasquiers the father is working for his degree as a doctor most of the time, and money, or the lack of it, holds its same grip on the family affairs, and this time the father's amours color the pages tragi-comically.

There is something so nostalgic and so tender as well as sharply vivid about the pictures which M. Duhamel draws that one cannot but think that perhaps the first person narrator must be, if not actually the author, a young man whom the author knew as well as he knew himself.

The saga of the Pasquier family is as French as a pot of flowers on a houseboat on the Seine. It has a certain rich humanness that blinds the reader to the author's literary surgery. His characterizations have the sharpness of a scalpel, as they should, for M. Duhamel was trained as a doctor and served during the war as a surgeon. His experiences there resulted in two of the greatest books written about the great war and about war in general, "The Life of the Martyrs" and "Civilization."

Halliburton Crosses Alps on Elephant.

Richard Halliburton's latest circus stunt travel book is "Seven League Boots," and in it he as fairy-tale-ishly steps from continent to continent [in airplanes] as did Hop-o'-My-Thumb in his purloined boots.

Each one of Mr. Halliburton's trips has some spectacular stunt to highlight it. The stunt of this year's "fleaing" over the globe was a trip across the Alps on an elephant. The author wanted to duplicate Hannibal's crossing of the Alps, so he hired Elysabethe Dalrymple, a circus elephant, from the Paris zoo [with keeper], and rode the engaging creature through the St. Bernard pass, and, incidentally, the stunt was nearly the death of her. He also dined with Haile Selassie and his European bred daughter, clad in a Paris evening model.

He played father confessor to Peter Ermakov, a man who said he was one of the three who murdered the czar and the ten members of the royal family and entourage in Ekaterinburg.

Mr. Halliburton didn't put on a stunt there and get murdered himself. He visited a leper colony, but he did not catch leprosy. He married a wife in Leningrad and was divorced in the next room, but that apparently wasn't catching, either; nor was Ibn Saud's plague of supporting a hundred and fifty-odd wives. He was for a week a monk in Athos, where there are 4,000 men and not a female within eyesight, anything but roosters, bulls, and rams being considered too painfully reminiscent, he infers, to the pious men who have mostly gone there to escape from women.

He got himself all dressed up like a pious Moslem and tried to beat his way into Mecca, but that didn't work. He did borrow a coat of mail and dress up like a warrior to get his picture taken, but he immediately shed the armor for an open-faced blue shirt. And his contact with the oldest man in the world served only to prove that even at the ripe age of 35 he is still the little boy barnstorming adventure. His childish glee is not only irrepressible but to most readers a beautiful poppy dream of vicarious adventure.

Mr. Halliburton started this "Seven League Boots" journey with a commission to "go anywhere in the world I wished and write about whatever pleased me," an assignment which would turn anybody Paris green with envy.

Author Stern Traces Rise of Fiction Women

G. B. Stern, author of "The Matriarch" and other rich and lusty tales of family life, was in Chicago this week and she gave a delightful lecture on family life in fiction from the days of conventional Zeus and Hera and their highly modern offspring to the days in her own "Shining and Free" of the very modern matriarch and her old fashioned offspring.

She told gleefully of the downfall of "Pappa" and the emergence of "Mamma" through the late nineteenth and early twentieth century pens. "The Matriarch," she confessed, was her own great-aunt. Afterward, when every one was crowding to tell her how irresistible that old woman was to them [and how engaging her grand-niece had been!], some one said, . . . "Well, my favorite of all your books is 'The Dark Gentleman'" [which is one of the best dog stories ever written], to which G. B. Stern replied, "That is my favorite, too, among my stories of family life."

Everybody wonders what the G. B. stands for. Gladys Bronwyn, officially. But never since her school days has any one called her Gladys. Her friends call her "Peter," after the heroine of her first novel, "Twos and Threes," and her literary intimates "Tinx," a nickname given her by H. G. Wells. "Tinx," she says, "is a cross between a tigress and a sphinx."

Miss Stern is giving only eight lectures in America. She returned to New York yesterday afternoon to have luncheon with Somerset Maugham today. Next week she will spend in South Carolina with Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Doubleday [of Doubleday, Doran & Co.]. She will go later to Hollywood, where she may do some films, probably one for Grace Moore.

Janet Ayer Fairbank told her about the bravery of a beautiful and famous soprano we all know who dramatically lost her voice and as dramatically reclaimed it by two years' unbroken silence . . . . perhaps that will be the next Stern-Moore release. . . . And, speaking of the films, G. B. Stern said that H. G. Wells had recently declared that he would never write anything again except scenarios for films.

DR. MAX HENIUS.

Dr. Max Henius, president of the Wahl-Henius chemical laboratory and brewing institute, 2374 Lincoln avenue, internationally known chemist and expert on fermentation problems, died yesterday in his boyhood home at Aalborg, Denmark. He was 76 years old.

Dr. Henius was born on June 16, 1859, and received his education in Germany. He came to the United States in 1881 and with Dr. Robert Wahl formed the Wahl-Henius institute, which analyzes beer and yeast products and annually graduates a class of brewmasters.

Research in Brewing Methods.

Particularly interested in the chemistry of fermentation, Dr. Henius was responsible for many improvements in brewing. During prohibition he turned his attention to yeast processes in bread making. After repeal, he advocated promotion of temperence through a 5 cent glass of 4 per cent beer.

Dr. Henius' home in Chicago was at 4533 Magnolia avenue. He was a leader among Danish-Americans and was active in many other Chicago affairs. He served as director, vice president, and president of the public library board from 1911 to 1917 and again from 1925 to 1930. He assisted in the Danish contributions to A Century of Progress.

Dr. Henius made frequent trips to his homeland. In 1883 he married his childhood sweetheart, Miss Johanne Heiberg, in Aalborg. Mrs. Henius died in July, 1934. Dr. Henius is survived by his daughter, Gerda, who accompanied him last April on the trip to Denmark that ended in his death, and by two sons, Emil, who lives at 537 Aldine avenue, and Henry Henius of Buffalo, N. Y.

Buys Park for Denmark.

In 1911 Dr. Henius purchased a tract of land near Aalborg and turned it over to the Danish government as a park site. That same year he received the rank of commander of the Order of Da Na Brog from King Frederick of Denmark in recognition of his efforts in promoting Danish-American amity.

During the war he organized Danish-Americans in Chicago for patriotic service. In 1919 he was the first American to enter Schleswig-Holstein in Germany from Denmark, buying his way past German sentries. In 1930 Dr. Henius opened an American historical library in the castle of Sohngaardsholm, which is part of the park he established near Aalborg.

Military Funeral Today for Richard Altman, 39

A military funeral will be held this afternoon for Richard Altman, a pressman for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for 14 years, who died on Wednesday. He was 39 years old. The Medill-Tribune post of the American Legion, assisted by a firing squad from the Board of Trade post, will have charge of the services. Services will be conducted at 1:30 p. m. from the home, 3205 Archer avenue, to the Holy Cross Lutheran church, 31st place and Racine avenue. Burial will be in Bethania cemetery.

Truck Driver Burns to Death; Smoking in Auto

Irving Klewin, 26 years old, 2012 Fowler street, a truck driver for an ice concern, was burned to death last night in an automobile in a garage in the rear of 1445 North Talman avenue. Police said Klewin evidently had driven the car into the garage and gone to sleep with a lighted cigaret in his hand. Klewin was divorced a month ago from his wife, Mae, who lives at 1445 North Talman avenue.

Hurricane Season's Over; Weather Bureau Says So

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 15.—(AP)—So far as Uncle Sam is concerned the hurricane season for 1935 is over. There will be no more of the 24 hour vigil for storm signs by the weather bureau here. LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Mr. Trance, Alias Little Seizure

B-BUT WHAT ABOUT MY PICTURE? I CAN'T GET IN TO SEE MR. KOLOSSAL- NOBODY'LL EVEN TAKE TIME TO TALK TO ME-
11-16-35
COME ON, ANNIE- LET'S TAKE A WALK-
BUT ALL THAT MONEY WASTED- THOSE SWELL SETS JUNKED- AND MY BIG CHANCE, THAT SEEMED SO SURE- ALL GONE, JUST LIKE THAT-
SURE- THAT'S THE WAY IT GOES- I TOLD YOU THIS IS A COCK-EYED BUSINESS, ANNIE- YOU'LL GET SO YOU WON'T MIND, IN TIME-
YEAH? NOT ME- I DO MIND- SAY- WHO IS THIS BIRD, TRANCE, WHO CAME BUSTIN' IN WITH HIS BIG IDEA AND WRECKED MY BIG CHANCE?
HE'S A SCENARIO WRITER- KOLOSSAL THINKS HE'S A GENIUS- MAYBE TRANCE IS A GENIUS, BUT FOLKS ON THE LOT CALL HIM "LITTLE SEIZURE"- HE'S ALWAYS HAVING BRAIN STORMS---- CHEER UP, KID- THINGS COULD BE WORSE-
I DON'T SEE HOW-

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A few hours before their scheduled weekly appearance on the NBC Campus Revue hour last evening in Chicago, the Mills brothers received a telegram from New York informing them that their sister, Margaret Mills, had died in a New York hospital. Despite this they went through with the show, singing in their close harmony. No listener could have noticed any difference from their usual blithe style as they sang "Some of These Days" and Art Kassel's new "I'd Like to Bounce Around with You." They left immediately after the broadcast for New York.

Their sister was taken to the New York hospital from her home in Bellefontaine, O., during the last week. John Mills Jr., one of the singing team, is still confined to his bed in a New York hospital. The father of the four boys, John, a sometime Piqua, O., barber and their original tutor, sang with them last night as he has for several weeks since the one son has been ailing.

Mary Pickford has been engaged as hostess for a new sponsored series, "Pickfair Parties," to be aired from her home in Hollywood once a week beginning late in January. A name band and notable guest stars will also be used. The program is to be sponsored by the ice industry. Network and time are yet to be chosen.

Gene Arnold is leaving the Weener Minstrel hour, aired Monday evening on NBC, after the next show. He will be succeeded in the rôle of interlocutor by Gus Van, of the once famous team of Van and Schenck. Gene has written this show for seven years. It started on WENR from which it got the name Weener. For four years it has been sponsored on the network by a gasoline concern.

Charlie Correll and Freeman Gosden [Amos 'n' Andy] leave for Virginia today for a week of quail and duck shooting. Their broadcasts will be relayed to the network from stations nearest their hunting grounds. Gosden, incidentally, has given up flying for the winter and is giving his attention to amateur radio. As soon as he is assigned call letters he will be ready to gab with other "hams." Gosden was a radio operator in the navy during the war.

William Miller, tenor with the Northerners on W-G-N, is to be heard as soloist in the concert version of "Tristan and Isolde" to be presented by the Chicago Symphony orchestra from Nov. 21 to 26 at Orchestra hall. Other soloists: Lauritz Melchior, Dorothee Manski, Kathryn Meisle, Fred Patton, Chase Baromeo, and Howard Preston.

Alice Joy, who has been singing in the southwest for a year, will return to local airlanes Monday, singing over WCFL-NBC on the National Farm and Home hour. Margaret Ayer Barnes, Chicago novelist, is to be interviewed on this program by Helen Stevens Fisher. . . . Irene Rich is to appear in a new Broadway production written by a brother of Anne Seymour, star of radio's "Grand Hotel."

Under the title, "Tea at the Ritz," a new commercially sponsored program in which society leaders of New York will be interviewed over the air as they gather informally at the Ritz-Carlton hotel is to be launched over CBS at 3:45 Monday, Dec. 2. Margaret Santry will do the interviewing and Harold Stern's orchestra and Jerry Cooper, baritone, will provide music. You may expect some of this personal indorsement business that you see in cigaret and toiletries advertising.

Body of Edgar Ryan, Who Died in Bermuda, Arrives

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The body of Edgar Ryan, 86, well-known retired business man of Davenport, Ia., arrived here from Bermuda on the liner Monarch of Bermuda today, accompanied by a daughter, Miss Julia Ryan. Mr. Ryan died at his Bermuda home, Casa Rosa, on Nov. 10 of heart disease. The funeral will be in Davenport Sunday afternoon.

Woman Makes Death Tent to Die by Asphyxiation

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Setting an alarm clock so that it would awaken members of the family, Mrs. Rosell G. Jordan, 51, socially prominent here, ended her life early today in the kitchen of her home by using bed clothing to form a tent over four open gas jets of a stove and thrusting her head beneath the cover.

Lewis Haase, Theatrical Executive, Is Dead at 68

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Lewis Haase, 68, for many years in theatrical executive work in London, Seattle, San Francisco, Louisville, and Atlanta, died here today. He returned to Atlanta, where he had resided for 20 years, less than two weeks ago. His body was sent to New York tonight for funeral services.

"CHICAGO ANN" GLEASON, FAMED AS CROOK, DEAD

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Annie [Chicago Ann] Gleason, once notorious as an international crook and known years ago as one of the most beautiful women in the underworld. She died Wednesday in Mercy hospital at the age of 63.

All her life Chicago Ann had been a crook and a consort of crooks, although police lost sight of her a year ago after she was acquitted of participation in a $2,500 jewel theft here. She had been living at 2537 South Halsted street.

She told her life story to police on the occasion of her last arrest, May 10, 1933.

"I married Mike Gleason out on the south side when I was 14," she said. "He was an expert pickpocket and we made enough to go to Europe in 1908. Mike was arrested in Germany in 1908 and served seven years. I went to England. He later joined me there and went to prison in 1916 and died in jail.

"I served three years in Old Bailey in 1905 and again from 1911 to 1925. Then I came back and served a little time in Auburn and returned to Chicago in 1927.

"I have blown safes in Baltimore, stolen pearls in London, and lifted fur coats in Berlin."

Services will be held in Sheehy's undertaking parlors, 7653 South Halsted street, tomorrow morning and in St. Leo's church at 10 a. m., with burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

OLD PROPERTIES OF THE ESSANAY STUDIOS ARE SOLD

All the dusty old properties that were used a couple of decades ago in production of moving pictures at the Essanay studios, 1333 Argyle street, have been disposed of in the last few days. The studio has been taken over by the Wilding Picture Productions and will be devoted to the making of business films.

An old fire engine, a 1910 horse drawn patrol wagon, a prarie schooner and other solid articles were sold for small prices to persons who said they could use them. The scenery and costumes, which cost thousands of dollars in the years when Gloria Swanson, Wallace Beery and Broncho Billy Anderson were getting their start toward stardom were burned.

The studios, it was announced, will be modernized throughout for the taking of sound films by the Wilding company.

J. A. MARSHALL, RETIRED PONTIAC PHYSICIAN, DIES

Dr. James A. Marshall, 74 years old, head physician of the Pontiac reformatory for 35 years, died in the Passavant hospital here yesterday following an operation two weeks ago. Born in Ontario, Canada, Dr. Marshall had lived in Pontiac for the last fifty years. Three years ago he retired from the reformatory medical staf. He was formerly president of the Illinois State Medical society, and once headed the Pontiac school board. Dr. Marshall is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Jenson of Minden, Neb. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church in Pontiac.

Continue Inquest to Study Dr. A. R. Reynolds' Death

A coroner's inquest into the death of Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, 81 years old, 2150 Lincoln Park West, former city health commissioner who died of mysterious injuries on Thursday, was continued yesterday until Dec. 3 to allow further police investigation. Dr. Reynolds was found unconscious in front of 2026 North Clark street on Tuesday, and police have been unable to determine how he incurred a skull fracture and other injuries. Dr. Henry J. Reynolds, 218 South Michigan avenue, brother of the former health commissioner, was the principal inquest witness yesterday.

Wounded on Hunting Trip, Veteran Dies in Hospital

Shot accidentally while hunting near Bonfield in Kankakee county on Saturday, Elmer Snodgrass, 40 years old, 1907 Cornelia avenue, a war veteran, died in the Hines hospital yesterday. Coroner A. E. Kerger of Kankakee county announced that he would investigate the wounded man's removal to Cook county without notification of Kankakee county officials.

Fannie Thompson, Resident of Batavia 70 Years, Dies

Mrs. Fannie Thompson, 72 years old, a resident of Batavia for 70 years, died there yesterday in her home at 67 East Wilson street. She was the widow of James T. Thompson, who was one of Batavia's leading merchants. Mrs. Thompson was one of the oldest members of the Batavia Baptist church.

Frederick Trapp, Former Scully Estate Chief, Dies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Teachers and other employés of the District of Columbia school system must certify that they have not "taught nor advocated" communism if they expect to receive pay for their services, Controler General McCarl ruled today.

The order caught city and school officials unawares. The question of teachers instructing their students in the tenets of communism has been a subject of wide controversy here for weeks. Under a ruling from school attorneys, teachers had been permitted to outline the facts of communism so long as they did not advocate or support it.

McCarl, who controls the District's appropriation for the schools, was said to have handed down his ruling on his own initiative. The school board had elected to stand on their attorney's ruling and McCarl's order brought the problem again into prominence. The controler outlined the form of pledge which he said school personnel must sign in the future.

McCarl's ruling called attention to a rider in the school appropriation act of last June which read as follows:

"Hereafter, no part of any appropriation for the public school shall be available for the payment of the salary of any person teaching or advocating communism."

TABULATE BIDS FOR 24 ILLINOIS ROAD PROJECTS

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The state division of highways today opened bids on 24 highway improvement projects to be constructed in 10 Illinois counties at a total cost of $1,698,516.47. The proposed work includes 10.24 miles of pavement, 18.31 miles of grading and twelve bridge sections.

Subject to final checking, apparent low bidders and other details of the projects in Cook county were announced by Ernest Lieberman, chief highway engineer, as follows:

S. A. Route 162—1.47 miles paving on 39th street from Halsted street to South Parkway in Chicago; Ready Coal and Construction company, Chicago, $195,515.75.

S. A. Route 166—.97 mile paving on Archer avenue from 47th to 42d street in Chicago; J. A. Ross & Co., Chicago, $130,984.37.

Longmeadow Club Will Be Host to Landlords.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE LONGMEADOW HUNT is giving its annual landowners' party Monday night at the Shawnee Country club, and judging by the number of farmers and their families who have accepted the invitation it may be that the hunt members will have to dine at home so that there will be room enough for the guests in the great dining room of the club.

There had been 398 acceptances yesterday morning, which pleases the hunters immensely, for it proves that the owners of the land over which the hunt rides to hounds have had a good time at the previous landowners' parties.

After dinner there will be dancing and entertainment, of which Ernest S. Ballard and Hill Blackett are in charge. Joseph W. Hicks is general chairman of the affair and Thomas I. McKearnan is chairman of the reception committee. Assisting him will be Mrs. Ballard, Mrs. Blackett, Mrs. Frederick Burnham, Mrs. Donald F. McPherson, Miss Veronese Beatty, and Miss Jane Noyes.

Dennison B. Hull has planned the decorations and John D. Pollock is in charge of refreshments, which, after dinner, will consist of a dozen barrels of beer.

A week from tomorrow the Longmeadow Hunt, of which Clark J. Lawrence is the M. F. H., will be host to the Wayne and Du Page hunts in a meet over the Longmeadow course, with the Longmeadow hounds. This will be the third time this season that the three hunts have had a joint meet, for last Sunday the Wayne hunt was host and the Sunday before the Du Page.

The Mill Creek hunt, of which Austin H. Niblack is M. F. H., had its annual landowners' party last Sunday, hunter trials and a luncheon, and tomorrow it will have its regular 11 o'clock Sunday meet, followed by breakfast in the clubhouse.

Walter Kirks Will Give Cocktail Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk have cards out for a cocktail party next Wednesday, "after 4:30" in their new apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. The party is for Mme. Edith Mason.

Invitations to the Assembly on Friday, Dec. 6, in the ballroom of the Blackstone, have just been issued, and so have invitations to the Bachelors and Benedicts ball on Thanksgiving eve in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. Small cards asking that guests be no later than 11:30 were enclosed in the invitations issued by the governors of the Assemblies.

A Gay Week-End for Debutantes.

The debutantes have a merry week-end ahead of them beginning with a party that Miss Ethel Johnston and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, are giving tonight at the Racquet club for Miss Pauline Palmer, Miss Cornelia Ranney, and Miss Barbara Stanley, and ending at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, where several dinner hostesses will take their young guests to the hocky game.

Just the debutante set and members of the Honore White-William B. Cudahy wedding party, in which Miss Johnston will serve as bridesmaid next Saturday, have been invited to dine and dance at the Racquet club. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney, parents of one of the buds for whom Miss Johnston is entertaining, will celebrate their 27th wedding anniver-

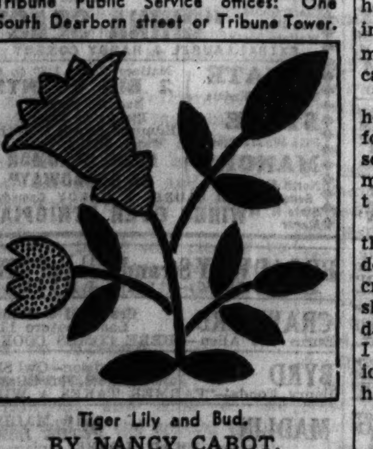
Simple Applique Quilt Block Has Variety of Uses

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Tiger Lily and Bud.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here is a simple applique block which is desirable as a color spot on a tea towel, a pillow top, or as a quilt design. When used as a quilt pattern the entire coverlet requires 20 applique blocks and 22 plain ones. A 3 inch border matching the flower finishes the quilt. Red-orange, yellow, and green on a white ground make a most effective coverlet.

For a period of 30 days, ending Dec. 2, Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group [12 cents by mail]. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

Miss Geraldine Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Foster, made her debut yesterday at a reception at the home of her parents in Astor street. She wore a stunning gown of emerald green crêpe, accordion plaited, with a wide girdle of gold and the same trimming outlining the high, round neckline. There were no sleeves, but the bodice was cut to cover the upper arms.

Mrs. Foster was smart in dark red uncut velvet. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Foster took their daughter and her assistants and their other daughter, Mrs. Leopold S. Fetcher of Cincinnati, and an equal number of young men to the Mayfair room in the Blackstone to dine and dance.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The panicky, unpremeditated and entirely unmalicious "kidnaping" of the "richest woman in the world" by three tenement kids is the unique core situation of the Palace's current movie.

"Three Kids and a Queen" is a serio-comic melodrama that's often pretty funny. If the smart pace of part of it could have been kept up through the rest of it, the piece would have been a wow. At times the director appears to have lost control, and there are spells of sloppy sentimentality that I found very trying.

Opening scenes show wealthy, irascible and par eccentric Mary Jane Baxter returning from Europe to face a number of doctors called in by her relatives for the purpose of proving that the old lady has lost her mind. They are sure she has, because——

Over in Europe she'd purchased a hotel and had bought out the house for an opera performance for the selfsame reason that the respective managements had refused admission to her beloved pet spaniel . . . !

Mad as a hornet, Mary Jane faces the physicians and proves beyond doubt that she's far from being crazy. . . . And so on till one day she and the pooch set out for their daily carriage ride in the park. Yes, I said "carriage." A real old-fashioned carriage drawn by a pair of handsome horses.

So rides the "queen"! And along come the "3 kids"—whom you've met in previous sequences—in a rickety, rackety car, which presents such a strange appearance and makes such an awful noise that the horses lose their heads, take the bits in their teeth, and dash away from the impending evil. . . . Mary Jane is thrown out. . . . The kids, scared but commiserate, pick her up and hustle her to their home, never dreaming of the enormity of their action nor the thunderous skies said action will bring down on their heads. . . .

The scenes in their home [they're the adopted children of a big hearted Italian barber—amusingly portrayed by Henry Armetta]—[you can see him in person on the Palace stage this week] are intriguing, excepting the maudlin interludes before mentioned, and the action is hilarious and exciting, rounding out to a goo-ey finish.

May Robson is delightful as Mary Jane. Henry Armetta as the barber and Herman Bing as his friend are most amusing. The "kids" are brightly portrayed by Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, and a dear little fellow named Billy Burrud.

Chicago Girl of 12 Wins Big Role in Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Bonita Granville, 12 years old, from Chicago, has been signed for the part of Mary Tilford in the film titled "These Three," which is being made from the stage success "The Children's Hour." She will be one of four principals in the cast, including Joel McCrea, Merle Oberon, and Miriam Hopkins.

Little light brown haired Bonita is the daughter of Bernard [Bunny] Granville, formerly of Ziegfeld Follies, "No, No, Nanette," "Rose-Marie," and other stage productions, and Rosina Timponi Granville, both from Chicago. Bonita's uncle, Rollo Timponi, is a Chicago theater manager and her maternal grandfather was the late Francis Timponi, Chicago orchestra director.

The child already has appeared in several films, in one of which she was recently noted by the writer carrying off her share of honors against Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery, and Spring Byington in "Ah, Wilderness," which has just been completed.

She also played here in "Cavalcade," "Silver Dollar," "Life of Virgie Winters," and "Cradle Song."

"These Three," which has been adapted to the screen by Lillian Hellman, who wrote the story originally as "The Children's Hour," is being produced by Sam Goldwyn for United Artists.

For "The Good Earth," Karl Freund, ace cameraman, has forgotten his ambitious and new career as a movie director. He will return as cinematographer for the M-G-M version of the Pearl Buck Chinese classic. Freund recently directed "Mad Love."

Unlike many actresses Mae West has no "past" in the film colony for temperamental flareups, but she made one the other day and caused the dismissal of Jimmy Duggan as assistant director on her picture "Klondike Lou." Mae seemed to think Duggan talked out of turn around the studio. Duggan says she was mistaken.

When the picture started Miss West asked expressly to have him given her as assistant director. One thing that sets Mae's teeth on edge is to be alluded to as "Westie."

Among a group playing minor parts in "Song and Dance Man" with Paul Kelly, Claire Trevor, and Ruth Donnelly at Twentieth Century Fox are Margaret Mann, elderly star of "Four Sons"; Irene Franklin, former musical comedy and vaudeville star, and Bull Montana, once famous as a wrestler and the only ex-iceman and ex-grappler in Hollywood who supported both a valet and a chauffeur during his flush days.

African Negro Art Held Base for Modernist

Club Exhibit Is Intensely Serious One.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There is no beat of the war drum nor chant of the Congo in the austere and extremely dignified exhibit of African Negro art, which is the first exhibition installed in the Arts club galleries this year.

The exhibit opened yesterday and presents many points of interest, particularly as much of the modernist sculpture of today is based on this primitive culture. It is, in a fashion, a melancholy exhibit. A touch of nostalgia seems to linger about these strange little figures, as if the very sincerity in which their execution was rooted makes them the more sensitive to our atmosphere.

These curious figures of men and women, we have called them from their high places [many of them were gods in Africa] to pander to our curiosity about the savage. Ceremonial masks and dress trappings, figures used to ward off evil, hair ornaments and girdle buckles, weapons revealing the limitations of the war chest, weights for measuring gold dust, here are the elements of a civilization that is still in rompers.

Like the American Indian who wove his blankets and made his pottery and traced pictures on the soft back of deer skins, the African tribes lived as a necessary accompaniment to life itself the art which today the modern art lover puts upon a pedestal. So pathetically poor were these natives, so narrow their vision, so limited their ability! But no matter the difficulties with which they were beset, these jungle craftsmen did their best.

The careful execution of the various objects is obvious. The intention back of each conception is clear. Almost spontaneously one can feel behind these carved figures of men and women and beasts, the person of the sculptor crouched on his thin shanks working with blunt tool to fix an ideal.

The idols were not funny nor quaint to the African Negro. They were gods. We look at their art objectively, but to them [or so these pieces say] these things were part and parcel of their soul. Even the little beasts were made for a purpose, probably to stand upon or near an altar.

The lack of humor and the strain of effort attest the primitive. Life was too near death for laughter in the early civilization. The exhibit brings the feel and the smell of Africa close; it commands our respect. It is, however, distinctly separate from occidental growth; to imitate its crudities is to enact an anachronism.

The exhibition will continue to Dec. 7 and is worth seeing.

Stuttering Has Both Subtle and Obvious Causes

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Under great strain—emotional, maybe, or physical—we give way at our weak point. One person will develop a heart condition, another nervous indigestion, a third lose his ability to sleep.

Under mismanagement—or under unhappy circumstances—each child's behavior will be different. Or we might say, different children will show different psychological responses to the same situation.

So a child who is watched every second for any little offense may become sullen; one who is distressed by the separation of his parents may become nervous and unmanageable, and another who is frightened by tough boys in a tough neighborhood may become a young hermit. We cannot see into the mystery of personality deeply enough to know why each child responds individually as he does.

But, oddly enough, these circumstances have been known to bring about something as seemingly unrelated as stuttering. Emotional disturbances are a frequent cause of speech defects.

Of course there are some instances when the cause is more obvious and direct—I mean where a struggle or disturbance over the speech itself results in a settled and bad habit of speech. It is unwise, for instance, for parents to make much of the small child's stammering and stuttering. This is usually a passing phase, and is best treated by being ignored.

Even if a child when he is older begins to stutter, it may be only a temporary condition. Certainly parents should "take it easy," ignore it, and keep the general atmosphere as happy as possible, removing all possible strain. Concentrating on it may fix the habit.

And don't interfere with your child's natural speech tempo. If he is a rapid talker let him alone—likewise if he is a slow talker.

The points enumerated today cover pretty much, though briefly, the causes of stuttering, with the idea of enabling you to help your child.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

For the smart woman who would be beautiful as well: A new cream rouge in walnut and gold container in four beautiful shades; a lipstick to match and, for evening, a special slender stick cased in genuine ivory studded with rhinestones.

You're always in the mood for beautiful makeup accessories, we know, so we offer you these three today:

A dry rouge in four devastating shades that has a magic flattery of its own. This being an aristocrat among makeup aids, you may be certain that it has special charms. It's extremely fine and seems to us an admirable choice for the woman who wants softness of effect when she puts color on her cheeks. The medium shade is our preference, but you because of your own coloring may like the others. The medium looks a little gay in the container but on the cheeks is very soft-rose-petal indeed.

The round container will thrill you if you like well bred, well tailored things. It's of Circassian walnut, plain and pretty, with a pink gold colored metal top with a peak in the center. Ritzy in a severe way.

The lipsticks, in the same four shades, have a creamy base that you'll appreciate if you're one of the thousands who suffer from lip splitting. It clings like mad without doing queer color tricks on you. These, too, have tops of Circassian walnut with a small oval plaque of the metal. Restrained elegance again.

And these sticks are perfumed with the famous, beautiful scent that gives them their name. It's still just about tops with us, that perfume.

Then, for evening use, this same house has a dress-up stick, getting away from the severity of walnut and gold to burst forth in ivory [genuine, by gosh] with a collar around the bottom and the bottom of the container itself paved with hand set rhinestones. Expensive, yes, but a jewel, and one that will dazzle your friends and enemies in a big way. This comes in seven shades, and the lip rouge itself is all you ever asked one to be—creamy, true in shade and quite indelible. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Nightly Beauty Care Safeguard of Loveliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Want to know how a queen of night club entertainers, with a social background, survives the late hour test night after night? We speak from the beauty angle, of course.

Eve Symington is one of those young matrons with aunts, and uncles, and cousins, and in-laws with names which society requires for support, but with a voice she chooses to make do a little of her own supporting. An ornamental person naturally, this queen of entertainers. Nevertheless, there's a routine pursued assiduously since, it appears, no voice these days is greater than the scene from which it issues. Meaning, of course, that you must keep those looks or the gilded notes fall upon unresponsive ears.

Eve Symington tells that no matter how late she works at night she gives 30 minutes prior to retiring over to skin care. She adds powdered oatmeal to the warm water in which she washes her face, she tells. A rough wash rag is used and this coarse mealy cleanser is vigorously rubbed over the skin. To prevent any possible immediate or early future sagging, Miss Symington doesn't drag the cheeks down in this scrubbing process. The movements are on the up and out. Skin calisthenics these movements, or so the noted singer calls them.

After drying the face it gets an additional cleansing with a favorite cream. The face must be kept as clean as a surgeon's hands if it is to be healthy and beautiful she wisely argues. This application of cream is done with the same pushing upward of the muscles and includes a vigorous massaging around the mouth, nose and eyes. This second cleanser is removed, and cotton wads, dipped in an astringent lotion, are patted on the face.

Follows the last complexion rite for the night: A thin film of tissue, or nourishing cream, spread over the face to be left on indeterminately. With which the singer concludes she has paid her skin preserving toll for that calendar day.

WEDDING

Miss Ruth Cain, daughter of Rolly M. Cain of 1519 Hinman avenue, Evanston, and Rudy Lamont Ruggles, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Ruggles of Brookline, Mass., have chosen Dec. 14 for their wedding day. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston. The Rev. Paul Wolfe will officiate.

Miss Cain is a graduate of the Mary A. Burnham school in Northampton, Mass., and of Smith college, where she finished last June. Mr. Ruggles is a graduate of Harvard university and of the Boston university school of law where he completed his courses in 1934. He founded the Intercollegiate Model World court. He was Harvard's delegate in 1929 to Geneva where he worked under Salvador de Madariaga, the Spanish ambassador to France, and head of the Italo-Ethiopian commission. Mr. Ruggles is associated with a Chicago law firm.

Tom Mix Will Seek New Frontier in South America

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Tom Mix is going to head for South America—he calls it the last frontier—deciding: "I've been getting so many bum steers in Hollywood, I'm going where they have some good ones." Mix, a real cowboy and sherif before he played those rôles in the movies, said today he planned to sail from New York Dec. 10 for Buenos Aires with his wife and her sister, Irma Ward, both circus aerialists. "I want to see some real undeveloped country again, some real cattle, and some real people who have to work for a livin'," he said.

Robes, Hostess Gowns Finds for Saturday

Buyers Can Get Style at Bargain Prices.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Finds for Saturday!

Flannel robes with the appearance of good-looking house gowns. The kind you can wear down to dinner, lounge around the fireside, and still feel decoratively dressed for the most critical company. They come in dusty pinks, deep madonna blue, pale green, and a few darker shades.

One model has wide sleeves that taper slenderly to the wrist and double wrap around skirt with a long satin sash in front with the slickest hip fitting silhouette imaginable. Besides that, the skirt flares in the back and ends in a short train.

Another shop has a grand collection of velvet hostess gowns that are most attractively priced for slim budgets. Long sleeves, long clinging streamlines, and plenty of sleek black beauties are what make them the big buys of the week. The flame colored model is a honey, the sleeves are full and picturesque and then gathered into a narrow cuff. The neckline is high and flattering. The price tag is more than satisfactory for all such pictorial splendor.

The black affairs are equally effective as well as practical, with two or three very interesting styles from which to choose — short flowing sleeves and some fitted sleeves and the full cuffed sleeves as in the scarlet success.

This seems to be the week-end to spend your cash for good-looking velvet house gowns or the flannel robes, with prices that will keep you smiling for days.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The average beauteous movie star spends $100 to $200 a month staying that way, a man's survey disclosed tonight. Some spend a lot more.

The high cost of keeping beautiful was brought out the other day when a judge told Mrs. Lloyd Bacon, wife of a director, $25 a month was enough for beauty treatments. In her alimony plea she asked $200.

Perc Westmore, operator of a Hollywood beauty parlor, says the average actress gets three $3.50 facials a week. If some special imported cream is used, the price is doubled. Many have facials daily.

And a permanent wave [she needs one at least every three months] is $25.

She gets three manicures weekly at 75 cents each—$1.50 if she wants hot oil. Composition nails, which last a week, are $2.50 a set.

Then there is the eyebrow arching, the dyeing of eyebrows and eyelashes, marcels, electrolysis [for removal of superfluous hair] at $3 an hour, massages, shampoos, and hairdyeing.

There are numerous other incidentals, if milady can afford them.

Westmore says that "competition is so keen that the star cannot afford, even for a day, to appear any other way than her best."

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently having been thrown from her horse Siwash, which she had taken from Thwaite's Riding academy for an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, a teacher and student of criminology and friend of a noted inspector, is taking her dog Dempsey for an early stroll when she hears broadcast from a police radio car the finding of a body on the bridle path and proceeds to the scene. Miss Withers recovers the horse, which had run off after the tragedy, and discovers a splotch of blood on his thigh. A park attendant, who discovered the body, heard a car drive away. Miss Withers' friend, Inspector Piper, arrives just as she is, aided by her dog, searching a small pool.

INSTALMENT VI.
AN UNUSUAL GARDEN TOOL.

In spite of himself the inspector was caught into the spirit of the affair. Wading a little farther into the mud, he caught sight of an abandoned garden hoe among some other relics and took it up by the handle.

"Here!" he shouted to Burke. "Try raking the bottom with this." He tossed the hoe out to the dripping detective, who caught the heavy implement and sloshed obediently at the bottom of the pool, stirring up great roils of mud. Then Dempsey barked, took a deep breath and dived out of sight, with his short legs churning the water like paddle wheels.

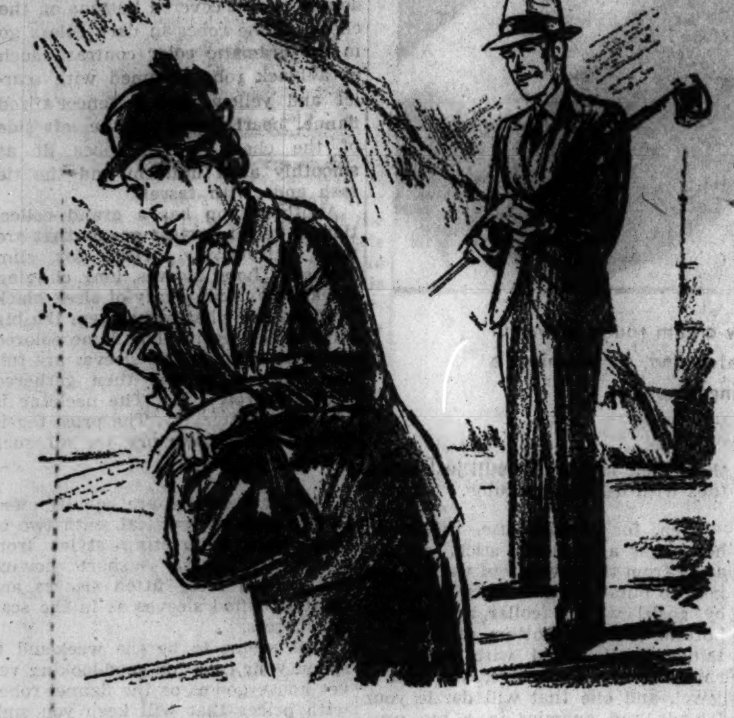
She was just about to plunge in to the rescue when the little dog reappeared with a shapeless something gripped firmly in his jaws.

Dempsey gave himself a brisk shaking which drenched the inspector's trouser legs, and then, with an air of duty well done the little dog deposited at the feet of his horrified mistress a very deceased looking turtle.

There was a long and painful silence, broken by the splashings of an irate and bedraggled Burke, shoreward bound.

Miss Withers, as was usual when at a loss for words, sniffed. Then she dragged Dempsey away from his prize in disgrace and started toward the roadway with all the dignity she could muster.

But Sergt. Burke was the type of person unable to leave well enough alone. "Look, ma'am," he shouted after her, "do you want I should bring the murder weapon along?"



One glance told her it was a briar pipe.

Miss Withers turned to see him poking at the comatose turtle with his hoe. She stopped, and her eyes widened. She took a step closer, and then suddenly let Dempsey slide to the ground.

"I don't suppose it would strike either of you two master minds," she pointed out, "that the garden implement in the sergeant's hand is just a little—unusual?"

The implement which had at first appeared to be an ancient and discarded garden tool now showed itself to be, as the school teacher had pointed out, a very unusual hoe indeed. The rusty blade had been bent sharply back, and through holes punched in the iron four screws held firmly to its lower surface a bright, unrusted horseshoe!

"Put there for luck, I don't think!" said the inspector.

Miss Withers reminded him that there were different kinds of luck.

"I only wish we knew what it meant!" Piper continued, studying the odd device.

"Come on and we'll find out," Miss Withers counseled.

They returned to the scene of the crime to discover a new arrival bending over the body of Violet Feverel. This personage was lean and dyspeptic-looking, and he affected loose English tweeds and a bowler which happened to be a size too small for him.

"I think we've already met," said the school teacher. "It was some years ago, at the aquarium, wasn't it?"

"Ah, the lady with the hatpin!" But Dr. Bloom had no desire to talk over old times. He tugged nervously at the wisps which remained of a once luxurious beard, and frowned down at the body as if by dying Violet Feverel had incurred his displeasure.

"You can move her any time you like," said the doctor. He scribbled upon a pad.

"They crushed the back of the skull, and were supposedly made by a horse's shod hoof!" Miss Withers eagerly prompted. "Isn't that right?"

Dr. Bloom smiled wearily. His heavy-lidded eyes took in the hoe which the inspector dangled in one hand.

"You're suggesting that this was a murder fixed to look as if a horse had done it—and really involving a weapon improvised from a horseshoe?"

Miss Withers nodded eagerly. "There was a story in a magazine——"

"Dear lady," said Dr. Bloom patiently, "I read my Chesterton, too. Though I must say the device is well known to medical jurisprudence. There was a case in Calcutta—another in Texas. But this time I'm afraid the answer is no. There are no wounds on the body!"

"But—but she's dead!" protested Miss Withers.

"A superficial examination such as this is only enough to show that this young woman died from internal hemorrhage. As a matter of fact, blood filled her lungs and she strangled to death!"

"But it was murder?" the inspector hopefully demanded.

"Officially, I don't know," the doctor told him testily. "I can tell you better after the autopsy. My private opinion, however, is that if this is not murder I've never seen one!" And the medical examiner beamed like a happy child.

"I knew it was murder," Miss Withers chimed in. "Just as soon as I saw that splotch of blood on the side of the horse."

"Remarkable," Dr. Bloom congratulated her. "Particularly since the spot to which you refer is not human blood, but horse's. I had one of the officers bring me a sample on a bit of paper, and applied a primary test." His firm white teeth clicked decisively.

"But—where was the horse wounded?" Miss Withers begged.

"That is just what worries me, dear lady," said Dr. Bloom, and he brushed mud from his trousers. "The horse shows no wound at all! And now, if you'll excuse me . . . ." He took up his bag and scurried toward his car.

"Well, here we are!" said Oscar Piper. He hefted the oddly-weighted hoe as if about to hurl it back into the shrubbery. "It was a swell idea, anyway."

"Not so fast," Miss Withers stopped him. "I've just had another idea. Do you suppose that we could find one untrampled hoofprint in this vicinity, and make a little comparison?"

The body of Violet Feverel was already being lifted into a wicker basket by two white clad men from the morgue wagon.

Perhaps a dozen feet from where she had lain, outside the trampled circle, the inspector caught sight of a comparatively smooth bit of path which showed the delicate circular mark of a horse's hoof.

He lowered the hoe, so that the horseshoe fastened to the bottom touched the soft earth. It fitted the print, fitted with a microscopic exactness. "Well, I'll be ——" He turned suddenly and found that Miss Withers was not beside him.

The squadron of detectives and police had begun to break up, but the angular schoolma'am still lingered over the spot where the dead girl had lain.

"Never mind looking for the missing cuff link," called the inspector over his shoulder. "It doesn't happen nowadays. Come over here, this is really important!"

Miss Hildegarde Withers did not answer. She took a quick look around to make sure that she was unobserved, and then bent down and hastily drew from the soft mud which still bore the impress of the dead body a warm and pungent smelling object which she thrust into her handbag.

One glance had told her that it was a briar tobacco pipe, battered and blackened. As Miss Withers joined her co-worker her lips softly formed the words—"People's Exhibit A." She nodded, prophetically.

Boys Often Are Badly Spoiled by Hospitality

BY DORIS BLAKE.

About the young men who take everything and give nothing. Lida has a good deal to say. She's not speaking for herself alone, but for a whole group of girls who are pretty weary of the ingratitude shown for the hospitality extended young men.

"They call up too late for a movie. They come and smoke our cigarets, always just out of them themselves, or perhaps there'll be one or two in the crumpled package they meagerly extend. Midway in the evening they hint about a little drink. As for bringing the makings of a little drink with them—gosh, they'd die at the thought. If you serve them a midnight snack they may tell you while they're eating it what a swell girl you are. If there are dances to which they might wangle from us a free invitation, do they get to work? We'll not only say they do. We'll swear on the witness stand they do. 'How about using the Dad's car, or some borrowed car' is their way of escaping a possible taxi ride.

"Have we spoiled the fellows, or were they born spoiled and nurtured in a spoiled atmosphere?

"We girls aren't asking you, Miss Blake, what we should do. We know what we should do, and now that we've gotten together we're going to freeze them good and plenty.

"We're not hard boiled about money. But when we see other girls getting the money spent on them we in our folly having saved said young men, we've decided to strike. If they run and never return that's our luck, and I won't mention which kind of luck, either. But we have a question, nevertheless. How can young men be such pikers?"

Young men, how can you be such pikers? Answer the girls, won't you?

Longmeadow Club Will Be Host to Landlords.

sary tomorrow, but they are not doing anything to mark the occasion.

Tomorrow afternoon Miss Peggy Hambleton, Arthur Meeker Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Paget Cady will receive a few of the old friends of Mrs. Dudley Root, and many of the debutantes and their beaux at a party they are giving for Mrs. Root's debutante daughter, Denyse, in the Cadys' apartment at 39 East Division street.

Miss Marie Louise Gardner and Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps will give hocky parties tomorrow night. Mrs. Phelps will take sixteen guests from dinner at her home to the Stadium at a party she is giving for Miss Nancy Ryerson and Miss Barbara Hutchins. Miss Gardner, who is entertaining for her cousin, Miss Ruth Brown, and Miss Nancy Bastien, has invited her guests to dine at the Casino.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Kent S. Clow and Miss Elise Clow to a dance at the Blackstone hotel on Friday, Dec. 20. This will be the formal presentation to society of attractive Miss Clow, who is better known as Peggy than as Elise.

German Ambassador Entertained Here.

The German ambassador to Washington, Dr. Hans Luther, arrived in Chicago Thursday on a flying visit which will take in a good part of the middle west on what the consulate calls an unofficial visit—one to make the ambassador acquainted with this territory. Dr. Rolf L. Jaeger, the German consul-general, gave a reception yesterday in his apartment at 3000 Sheridan road for Dr. Luther, at which Dr. Jaeger and the guest received informally.

Charles S. Dewey gave a luncheon at the Chicago club for the ambassador yesterday noon, and last night Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift entertained his excellency at dinner in their Lake Shore drive apartment.

Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum will give a luncheon for Dr. Luther today at the Casino, after which Dr. Luther and Dr. Rolf will leave for Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, New Ulm, Minn., which is quite a German settlement; Madison, Des Moines, and Davenport. It will not be much over a week before the ambassador has returned to Washington.

Lawrence-Harshe Nuptials Today.

A bride of today is Miss Mildred Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick K. Lawrence, whose marriage to William R. Harshe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Harshe, will take place at noon in the Lawrences' apartment at 190 East Chestnut street. The Rev. Duncan H. Brown of St. James Episcopal church will read the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families, and relatives.

The bride will not have any attendants. The bridegroom will have his father for best man. After a toast to their health, Mr. Harshe and his bride will leave for French Lick Springs where they will spend their honeymoon. They will make their home at 1400 Lake Shore drive.

At 5:30 o'clock this afternoon in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Plamondon Jr., in the Ambassador East, their niece, Miss Jean Ruth Smith, daughter of Mrs. Emily Wilk Smith of Evanston, will become the bride of Franklin Perry Shockey, son of Mrs. William P. Shockey of Oak Park. Just the immediate families will witness the ceremony.

Miss Smith will be attended by her cousin, Miss Marilyn Prussing of Birmingham, Mich., and her brother, Robert F. Smith, will give her in marriage.

Janet Fairbank Will Give Tea.

Miss Janet Fairbank will entertain at tea next Saturday afternoon in the North State street residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Kellogg Fairbank, for Miss Miriam Winslow and Miss Mary Campbell of Boston.

Miss Winslow will make her dance debut here with a company of four the next afternoon at the Studebaker theater. Miss Campbell, who is the accompanist for the Winslow dance group, will be Miss Fairbank's house guest while she is in Chicago.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory was reelected honorary president and Mrs. Harry A. Sellery active president of the Arden Shore association at the annual luncheon held yesterday. Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming is taking over Mrs. Ewing Webb's duties as chairman of the Chicago committee and Mrs. James C. Cathcart is taking Mrs. Robert S. Hotz's place as Lake Forest chairman.

Miss Anna Belle Ferrier, in her usual enthusiastic and inspiring way, made the principal talk of the day, telling of the activities of the summer camp for mothers and children and of the winter one for undernourished boys.

Tomorrow night Maj. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, the Kent Clows and the Ernest Byfields at dinner at the Tavern before taking them to the hocky game at the Stadium.

Invitations to the lecture that Le Corbusier will give under the auspices of various architectural societies on Wednesday, Nov. 27, will not be out until Monday but already there are more than 800 reservations for it, so it will be given in the Stevens hotel instead of in the Architects' club, as planned originally.

The talk, to be given in French by the famous architect, with a running translation by Robert Jacobs, will be on "City Planning" and will be preceded by dinner at 6:30 o'clock.

Girls Sail Today for Travel School.

There will be quite a group at the pier today when the Ile de France sails to say au revoir and bon voyage to three young Chicagoans who will spend this winter traveling with Miss Helen Stout and then next season will make their debuts.

The young ladies who are sailing are Anne Winston, Betty Keith, and Annie May Henry and those who have accompanied them to New York to see them off are Mr. and Mrs. Farwell Winston, Mrs. Stanley Keith, and Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry. The quintette will remain in east for about a week before returning home. Mr. Keith was unable to accompany his wife and daughter east.

Also sailing on the Ile de France today are Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Woods who will spend six weeks touring France, Germany, and England.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Chancellor, who were at the Ambassador for about a week, have left by motor for the east where they will spend several weeks seeing relatives and friends and some of the football games. They will return to their house in Hollywood only to dismantle it and to make arrangements to ship their furniture to Chicago for they plan to return here later in the winter to live.

Mrs. Grover Tagmose Home from Abroad.

Mrs. Grover Tagmose and her daughter, Diana, have returned from two months in Europe and Diana is in school at Stuart Hall in Staunton, Va. Mrs. Tagmose and her mother, Mrs. Thomas Grover, are at the Seneca for the winter.

The John R. Hurleys have come in from their Wheaton home and are at 222 East Delaware place for the winter.

The Franklin M. Millers have changed their address from 1500 Lake Shore drive to the Lake Shore Drive hotel, having rented their apartment for the winter to the Kenneth Smiths.

Mrs. Philip L. Elting has left for New York to be away until Christmas.

The Oscar W. Johnsons, who have been at the Ambassador East since early autumn, are leaving on the 25th for Palm Beach, where they have taken a house for the season. The Farley Hopkinses are occupying the Johnson residence on North State parkway.

Dressy Frock Simple to Make

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a dress that simulates a two piece ensemble, and is youthful with its "little boy" collar. It is easy to make. The sleeves are cut in one with the shoulders, and that always is simpler than setting them into regular armholes. You will find the sewing guide, that comes with every pattern, a great help. Silk, wool, velveteen, lame, and velvet are suitable materials.

The pattern, No. 2784, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Official thunders rolled through the administrative offices of the National Opera today with the result that an order was given suspending from the opera troupe for one month the famous dancer, Serve Lifar. The opera is subsidized by the government.

Lifar last night refused to appear in a gala performance celebrating the French West Indies and in official eyes aggravated his offense because the president of the republic was in attendance.

Lifar said he did not like the drop curtain being used for the act. The élite of Paris, who were attending, thought this a joke when it was announced by the manager. Lifar walked on the stage and in good round terms denounced the management for giving him unworthy scenery and repeated his decision he would not perform.

"Tips on Tea Parties," a booklet of afternoon tea suggestions, menus, and recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

A number of readers, Mrs. E. S. of Chicago among them, have asked us to print a recipe for Italian Ravioli. And, over a period of several months, we've answered individually so many requests for other Italian recipes that we are turning over the entire column today to the reprinting of several of the more popular dishes.

Ravioli.

[Paste.]

2½ cups bread flour
2 eggs
3 tablespoons cold water
⅛ teaspoon salt

Sift all of the flour into a heap on a bread board. Make a dent in the center of the pile and break the whole eggs into it. Add the water and salt to the eggs and mix all together lightly with a fork until the flour is well blended with the other ingredients, and you have a paste that may be rolled. Roll the paste very thin—"as thin as a dime," reads our more authoritative source of information.

[Meat filling.]

1 cup cooked meat or fowl
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 tablespoon butter

Mince the meat very finely and blend with the remaining ingredients. Take a teaspoon of the mixture and place on the rolled paste, about two inches from the edge. Place another spoonful about two inches away from the first and continue until you have a row of filling dots across the paste. Then fold over the narrow edge of the paste to cover that row and cut off the whole strip. Cut into small squares, with the meat in the center of each square, and press down the edges with the tines of a fork. Continue in this fashion until the filling and paste are used.

Drop the ravioli into boiling, salted water, a few at a time, and cook gently for ten minutes. Serve hot with tomato sauce or with melted butter and grated Parmesan cheese.

This sweet, hot, fluffy dessert is another for which we've received many requests. Any sweet wine may be substituted for the Madeira. This particular recipe serves only one, and while it can be increased the dessert is best made in fairly small quantities.

Zabaione.

2 eggs
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup Madeira wine

Beat the eggs with a rotary beater until very light, add the sugar, and continue whipping. Pour in the wine and cook in a double boiler, scraping from the sides and bottom of the pan as the mixture thickens. Remove from the heat, beat vigorously with the beater for another full minute, and serve hot in a tall glass.

Of all the interesting Italian recipes for preparing vegetables fried squash and fried pumpkin seem to excite the most inquiries. Both vegetables are peeled and sliced very finely for this operation, and the pumpkin is boiled for a minute in salted water. Then the vegetable is dipped in flour, then in beaten egg, and fried quickly in deep, hot fat. The pumpkin usually is served with a sprinkling of grated Parmesan cheese and melted butter.

According to CULBERTSON

UNWARANTED CONCEIT.

It is a common experience for a fine bridge player, coupled with a mediocre partner, to curse himself for accepting at face value and in their proper implication leads or plays that have no meaning whatsoever. The expert does not expect—does not even hope for—true skill from his partner, but he does feel, legitimately, that he is entitled to an elementary sort of coöperation. Thus, when his partner leads an eight spot against a three no trump contract, and he can account for, under the "rule of eleven," five higher cards in his own hand and dummy, marking the lead as "phony," not fourth best, he is apt to be more than a little aggrieved when it develops later (too late) that the lead was from A 10 8 6 3.

This sort of thing is traceable directly to the root of a great deal of evil—conceit. The beginner would not perpetrate this outrage, nor a player who knew himself to be just "fair." It is exactly the type of "fancy business" persisted in by players whose opinions of their own bridge skill are far from justified by fact. They have seen acknowledged experts effect various types of "swindles" by unorthodox plays, and they would rather die than admit to themselves that they are not capable of the same thing. They are like indifferent swimmers going far beyond their depth because their best girl is watching. In bridge games, life guards are conspicuously absent.

A Swindle.

It is rank cowardice for a player to accept defeat of one trick on an undoubled, invulnerable contract when he has at his disposal a play that will either make the contract or set him two or three tricks. The extra 50 or 100 points are negligible compared to the possible reward.

East-West vulnerable.

♣J 2

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	4♠ (final bid)

Opening lead, ♦ king by West.

South saw at a glance that he would have quite a job on his hands to avoid the loss of four tricks—two clubs and two diamonds. A successful heart finesse—unless, by a miracle, the king were to drop on an early round—would afford him only one discard in the dummy, and this could do no good.

His one chance was a "swindle." He drew only one trump, not wishing to give the defenders a chance to signal in other suits if either one "failed" in trumps. Instead, he promptly led the deuce of hearts up to dummy's singleton jack.

West was caught napping. He could not tell how many club and diamond tricks his side could take, and probably figured that his partner's one entry (for a lead-through in clubs) was the heart ace.

After this, the hand was a laydown. After a second round of spades, South led the heart ace, discarding a club from dummy. He followed with the heart queen, ruffed West's king, returned to his hand with a trump, and discarded another club on his ten of hearts, after which he conceded two diamonds and one club.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: If your partner makes a takeout double of an opponent's one no trump bid, what must you have to pass for penalties?

Answer: Ordinarily, you should pass for penalties if you have about 1½ honor tricks. You should take out the double, however, even if you hold 1½ honor tricks, if your entire strength is in one long suit. For example, pass the double with an ace in one suit and a king in another, but take out in a suit if you have a suit such as K Q J x x x and nothing else.

Acts of Child Are Ruled by Its Instincts

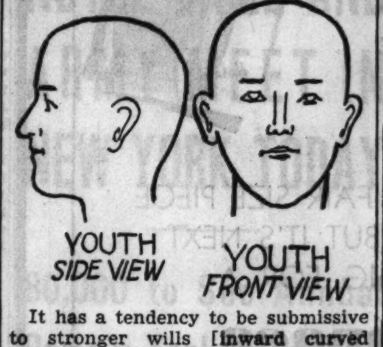
BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

Since most of us are a combination of childish, youthful, and adult traits, even though we may have reached a considerable age, it is important for us to know the various characteristics belonging to each of these three distinct stages of development.

The child's actions are decided by instinct [forehead protruding in the middle] and lead to blind trials with many errors. It knows right and wrong simply as something good or bad for its own wellbeing. It learns only through its own experiences, and its store of knowledge therefore is limited. Its decisions are influenced greatly by feelings [lower part of forehead depressed], a satisfactory way, however, because its interests are purely personal.

In spite of its uncertain mental development the baby is well qualified for the demands of life in its own sphere. Its very weaknesses serve to induce a protective attitude on the part of older persons. It shows a tendency to be trustful and attracted by new things [open eyes], but at the same time to be shy [weak eyebrows] and apprehensive of danger from the actions of others [upward slanting nose].



YOUTH SIDE VIEW
YOUTH FRONT VIEW

It has a tendency to be submissive to stronger wills [inward curved nose] and easily discontinues an action when outer resistance becomes too strong for safety [backward sloping chin]. The fate of others leaves it unconcerned [long upper lip] and it is tolerant of adverse conditions [rounded nose tip in the side view] although strongly aware of them when they have a bearing on its own interests [fleshy nose tip in front view]. It is disinclined to overcome obstacles by force [narrow jaws] and prefers to play safe by evading responsibilities [pointed chin].

During this period of growth the human being is exposed, more than at any other time, to those influences from environment which promote or hinder the full development of hereditary traits. It is the time of training and education during which success or failure in occupational life largely is decided, and the most typical characteristics, midway between tendency and ability, are found sufficient mainly to fill the needs of a transitory stage.

The gradual forgetting of self decreases the self-centered urges of the child and interest in outside matters for their own sake arises. It becomes less dependent on internal cravings to prompt action and needs less physical and more mental care from others. The only outstanding desire is for independence and freedom [a straight nose], permitting progress toward the next stage of development.

Qualapaca Overcoat

The Qualapaca coating is a blend of 4 wools—Alpaca, Llama, Guanaco (another member of the camel family), and kid Kashmir—each one famous in its own right and accustomed to hobnobbing with fancy prices. Together these 4 wools make a fabric of luxurious feel and appearance, which at the same time is generous with practical qualities. It is rain repellent, wear resisting, and wrinkle proof—and provides its warmth without cumbersome weight.

TWO HIGH FASHION NOTES IN NEW

AT ONE LOW PRICE

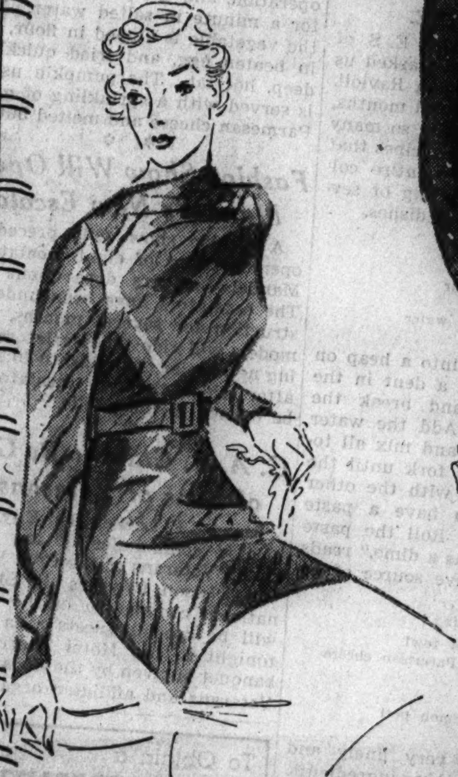
THE WIDE STRAP

A popular favorite because of the flattering effect it gives to the foot. It comes in patent leather—as shown here—and grey or black suede. Smartly perforated and stitched, with a large buckle and high boulevard heel. $7.50 pair.

ON THE SQUARE

They're immensely smart— the low heel and toe that are squared in this gay little pump with a Colonial look. It has a high tongue, one-eyelet tied with grosgrain ribbon and comes in grey suede and black or light tan calf. $7.50 pair.

Shoes, Third Floor.



Speciall Lame Tunic

$10.95

An unusually low price for a lame tunic of this exquisite quality. And glittering tunics are a topnotch fashion! Combine it with a street length skirt for dressy afternoon, with a longer one for a dinner party. In silver, gold, or steel color, or rod. Sizes 32 to 38.

Sorry, No Mail Orders.

THE LONG OR SHORT OF IT

Cape Gloves

Hand-sewing in white gives dash to these gloves. Of softer, more supple cape—in a short style with one leather button and in a longer slip-on type. They're washable, too, and rain and snow won't spot them. In black or brown.

Gloves, First Floor.

Women's Moderate Price Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Hot off the griddle—a new off-the-face hat. The brim sweeps down on one side, effecting an irregularity of line that makes the hat not only smarter but easier to wear. A rhinestone ornament in front provides the gleaming accent so important this year. Excellently tailored, in black, brown, and a wide choice of colors. All headsizes.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

Metal-stripe crepe fashions a dressy street-length frock. Just the thing for luncheon, tea, or the little evening bridge party. Leaf clips and a flexible belt help to carry out the metallic theme. Gores effect a low flare in the skirt. The sleeves are full at the elbows and tighten smartly at the cuffs. Blue, wine, green, black. Sizes 16½ to 24½. At left. $10.95.

For day-in and day-out wear you'll find no better hose than this full-fashioned chiffon with a double picot top and shadow hem. It's well reinforced, too, at every point of wear and has the important toe lock. The season's newest colors. Prices are on the increase, so we stress the value. Better buy in quantity while they are 75c pair.

Crinkle Crepe Collar Sets

$2.25

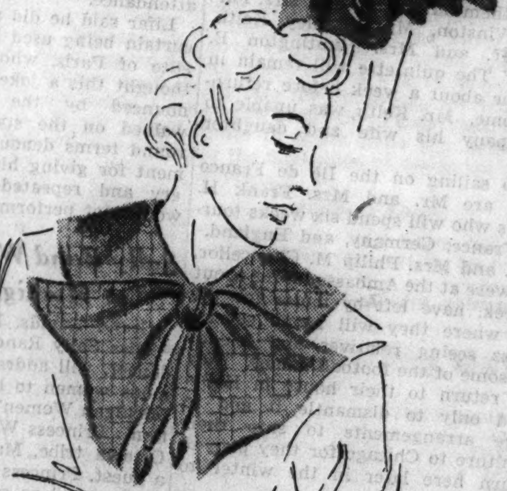
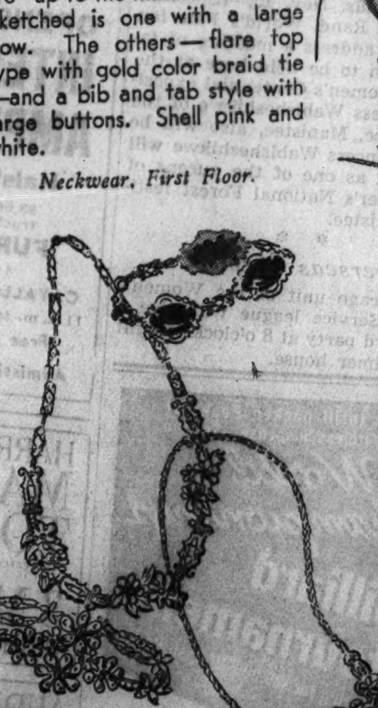
Neckwear, First Floor.





Marcasite Jewelry

$2.95

Set in sterling silver. Necklaces and bracelets entirely of marcasite—others marcasite combined with onyx or carnelian—they're real stones, of course. All set in delicately patterned designs. Specially priced at $2.95 each.

Jewelry, First Floor.

Frog fasteners keep this Teenya frock in step with the military trend, but the transparent velvet ascot, the shirred back, and the slightly flaring skirt have a feminizing effect. Note the perky little peplum. In the new high shades—emerald and raspberry with black ascot; black with green, grey with fuchsia. 11 to 17 $7.95.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Maroons of the University of Chicago and the lads from Indiana university will assemble at Stagg field this afternoon to fashion the twenty-fifth chapter in the football story the two schools have been weaving since way back when.

How the compiling of the current chapter will be done and who will do most of the compiling is something else. The Maroons, through their spokesman, Coach Shaughnessy, admit they haven't a chance to stage a thriller before an anticipated turnout of 15,000. And not wishing to be eclipsed as a pre-battle moaner, Coach McMillin of the Hoosiers came to town last night with a tear drenched yarn of how he expects the Maroons to run his charges out of wind. It seems that the two coaches are worried about injuries, some of which may be genuine.

Reason to Moan.

Most of the woe with which Coach Shaughnessy has surrounded himself is due to Capt. Jay Berwanger, the sterling back who can pour grief into the opposition when he isn't ailing and into his own team if he doesn't happen to be physically perfect.

The bear stories originating on the Midway have it that the sensational athlete is somewhat out of joint as the result of his heroics against Ohio State last week. He has taken no practice during the week. Coach Shaughnessy says his one man menace may not start.

But, while Berwanger may not be among the starters, he'll be in there sooner or later employing his passing and running skill against a team that has dealt unsuccessfully with him in the past. In the two previous years he scored three touchdowns against Indiana and threw a pass which resulted in the fourth.

Fareed Also Ailing.

If Berwanger is out, the Maroons' aerial attack may be riddled unless Shaughnessy has some secrets under his hat. His other known passer, Omar Fareed, who started as half back against Ohio, spent the week in the hospital to recover from bruises inflicted by the Buckeyes and is not counted on for even a limited appearance this afternoon.

Because of the injuries the Maroons may kick off against the Hoosiers with a back field made up of only one of the quartet which started against Ohio. The lone survivor is Warren Skoning at full back. Ewald Nyquist, quarter back against Ohio, is physically intact, but has been moved out to left end on offense and back up the line on defense. Fred Lenhardt will operate at quarter, and Bob Fitzgerald, Adolph Schuessler, Paul Whitney, and Ned Bartlett at the half posts. Some one of these fellows will have to attend to the punting and passing.

Hoosiers Claim Injuries.

The Hoosiers, who claim to be handicapped because of real or fancied injuries to Capt. Kelso, center; Dal Sasso, a tackle, and such back field experts as Eads, Peistand, Fowler, and Walker, will be shooting for their first conference victory of the season. Their chief consolation thus far is that 6 to 6 tie with Iowa, preceding which they were bumped off by Michigan and Ohio State.

Out of the 24 games played in the Chicago-Indiana series, the former owns 20 victories and one tie. One of Indiana's triumphs was a half game affair played in 1931 as part of a charity round robin.

TACKLE'S FIELD GOAL DEFEATS TULSA, 3 TO 0

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A 20 yard field goal, kicked from a difficult angle by Capt. Harry Deming, a tackle, tonight gave George Washington university a 3 to 0 victory over Tulsa university of Oklahoma.

Scoreless for nearly three periods, the clubs seemed too evenly matched for a decision until Deming, who previously had missed one attempt, made his second attempt in the third period.

Ray Hanken, an end, forced the break that gave George Washington its score by blocking and recovering Dennis' kick on the fifteen yard line.

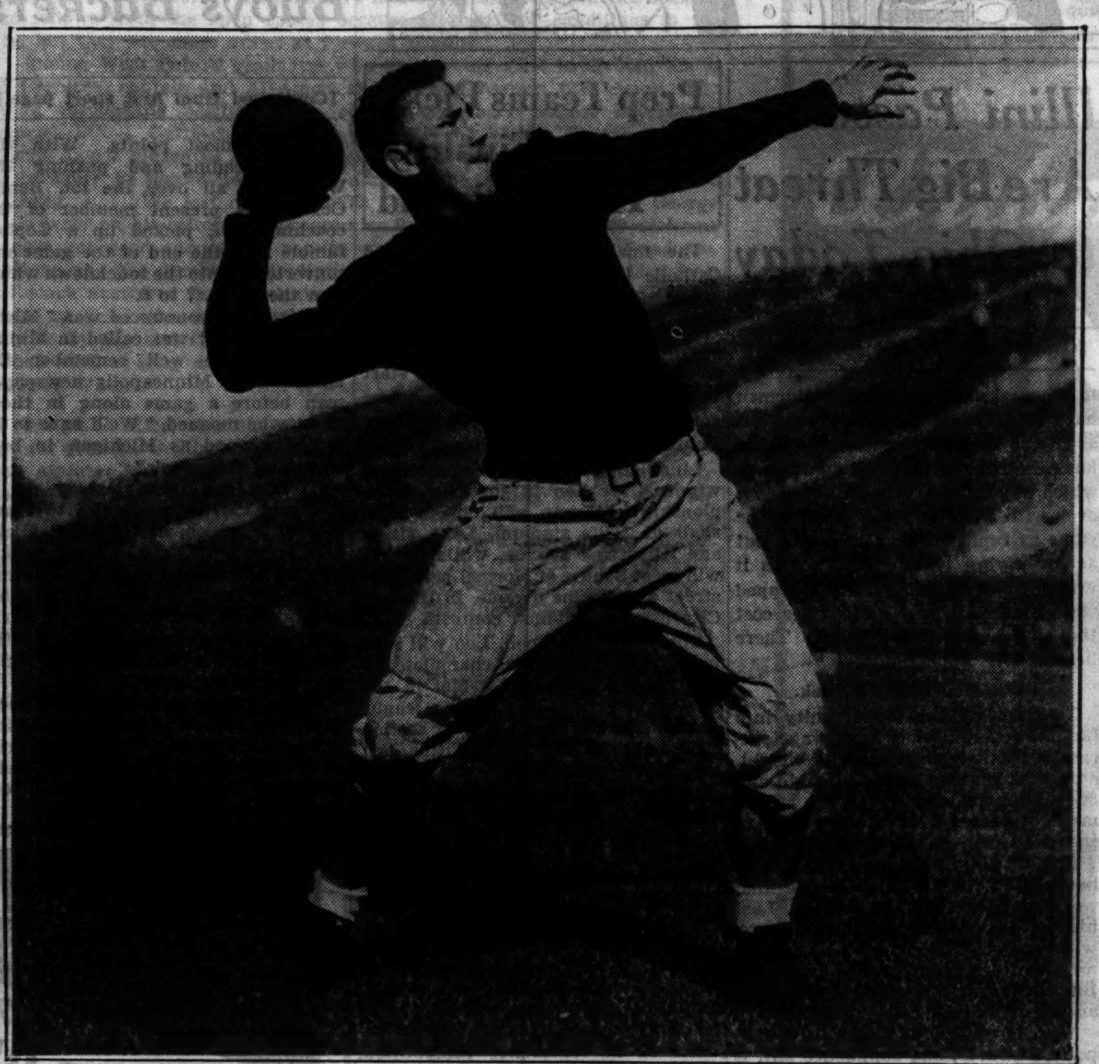
IN LAST STAGG FIELD GAME



Jay Berwanger, University of Chicago captain, who will play his last game today at Stagg field, where the Maroons will meet Indiana's Hoosiers. Berwanger has been ailing this week, but will see action in part of the game.

Past Success Buoys Michigan Backers for Minnesota Game

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 15.—Tradition, good old hoary tradition, rather than 1935 comparative records to date, is being requisitioned by Michigan partisans to buoy their hopes for victory against Minnesota in the twenty-sixth contest between the two elevens at Memorial stadium tomorrow afternoon. Advance ticket sales indicate attendance of 40,000, perhaps more if prevailing leaden skies brighten.

On basis of tradition, the Wolverines have more than an even chance. On cold, unromantic present day figures the Gophers are odds-on choices. On their way to a second conference title unless stopped by Michigan or Wisconsin, Minnesota has an unbroken sequence of 15 triumphs. It has contested in 22 games since being vanquished. It last was defeated by Michigan—yes, Michigan—when Harry Newman place kicked a field goal on Minnesota's frozen turf in the final issue of the 1932 season.

Reach Greatest Efficiency.

Minnesota, a power eleven with probably the best line in the conference from tackle to tackle, has been forced to experiment with substitutions nearly all season. In its more recent games it has reached its greatest point of efficiency. Not as strong in offense as its 1934 champions, its process of experimenting brought out Tuffy Thompson, a fleet, elusive sophomore back, who makes another man to be watched by opponents. Its ends, though capable, are not relatively as strong. Its passing attack is fair, with Roscoe projecting most of the aerials.

Yet Minnesota has been scored against by every opponent except Tulane, those seeking excuse for a Michigan rainbow argue. Only a courageous stand on its 2 yard line prevented disaster from Nebraska, although Minnesota, man for man, admittedly was the better eleven. Against Northwestern and Iowa the Gophers had to come from behind to maintain their unbeaten record. Power and fierceness of play wore down the Wildcats and Hawkeyes in the second half.

Drill for Speed.

In the matter of weight, Michigan has nearly a 9 pound per man advantage in the line with a stalwart forward wall of 205 pounds. In the back field the advantage is with the visitors by 3 pounds per man. But unfortunately for the Wolverines, its weight is not as fast as that of its opponents. Against Illinois, the coaches called their men statues with the lighter Illini playing in the Michigan back field most of the afternoon. Drills for speed have been part of the three day secret practice from which Coach Kipke barred even newspaper men.

It seems reasonably certain that Michigan will not try line puncturing as offensive tactics but will rely largely on the deft right arm of Capt. Bill Renner. Its defensive problem will be against the line plunges of Sheldon Beise, a human catapult who is an extremely effective blocker and backs up the line, and the tricky running of George Roscoe and Tuffy Thompson.

Kipke Tries Experiments.

Coach Harry Kipke sizes up the situation thus: "We could win. Odds must be conceded against us. We have tried some experiments in personnel which I can't discuss in advance, but which you may see in the game. If we get the breaks and play heads up football, we may add another upset to the many of this season."

Now, then, for the stimulus of tradition. Of 25 previous contests, Michigan has won 18, Minnesota 5, and 2 were tied.

Minnesota has not scored on the Wolverine gridiron since 1927, when the Gophers triumphed, 13 to 7. [The 1934 disaster of 34 to 0 was at Minneapolis.] Then there was that game at Minneapolis in 1926 when Minnesota did about everything except

PURDUE HURLS FULL STRENGTH AT IOWA TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 15.—"Something ought to be done about this."

That's the cry echoing along the banks of the Wabash since Purdue's Boilermakers suffered their third consecutive defeat against Wisconsin. The "this," of course, consists of the longest losing streak Purdue has endured since 'way back in 1923. The Boilermakers have not been in the habit of having a potentially grand football team, such as this year's, lose on successive Saturdays to Carnegie, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

The "something" in that battle chant ringing through Lafayette on this fateful eve before the struggle with Iowa's Hawkeyes at Ross-Ade stadium, is something again. It has been many a day since the citizenry of the town has been so thoroughly worked up about a football game. There have been the customary pep rallies before other games, but none so stirring as that which Lafayette presented tonight. The spirit of desperation overhanging the campus as the Hawkeyes approached with their 220 pound line, their slippery hipped Oze Simmons, and their ever valuable captain, Dick Crayne, had completely escaped the collegiate borders.

They Whoop It Up.

That feeling of "Purdue must win!" had crossed the Wabash into the business district, and at 7 o'clock tonight it reached its climax with a clamor that must have tweaked the ears of the Iowa team, bivouacked 25 miles southwest of here in Kramer, Ind.

At that hour every factory whistle in the town began to give forth its fullest screams. This strident musicale was the signal for the folks to gather at 9th and South streets for a veritable circus parade which eventually reached Stewart field, where the need of a victory for Purdue was set forth by the town's ablest orators.

This was no mere gathering of students, but a rousing display of civic pride. En route to the field, fire engines, preceded by state policemen on motorcycles, detoured into

But 50,000 Think Things Will Be Normal.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 15.—The University of Illinois football team, in whose ledger this season a series of surprising figures in both black and red has been written, arrived this afternoon, ready to knock Ohio State out of the Western conference race in the Bucks' homecoming battle tomorrow, just as one week ago the Illini flopped Michigan's Wolverines on their backs.

No one knows yet whether the Illini brought red or black pencils, but a crowd of 50,000, predominantly Ohio State in makeup, the advance guard of which now is celebrating, will watch the scrap tomorrow, firmly convinced that no matter what the Illini did to Southern California and Michigan, they can't do it to the Buckeyes.

The fight for Illibuck, a wooden replica of a turtle, emblem of this Big Ten rivalry, is just a fight for a wooden turtle as far as Illinois is concerned. Ohio State would like to regain the turtle, of course, but the Buckeyes also are shooting for a share of the conference title, which will be balm for those still suffering from the Notre Dame debacle two weeks ago.

Critics Give Illini Two Scores.

Most commentators so far have thought of the game as a fight between two highly geared attacks. They have said that Illinois is certain to score one or two touchdowns and that Ohio State can win only by putting on a spurt, such as was unleashed last week against Chicago. Illinois' record, however, doesn't bear out the assertion.

Illinois was held scoreless while Ohio university punched out a one touchdown verdict. Then the Illini whipped a second rate Washington university team, 28 to 6; dazzled a slow moving Southern California team, 19 to 0, and since that time has scored two field goals in three western conference games.

Where is this superlative air attack? Illinois did quite a bit of marching between the 10 yard lines against Iowa, Northwestern, and Michigan, but didn't cross a goal line. The Hawkeyes won, 19 to 0, and while Illinois was within Iowa's 20 yard strip four times, that phrase tells all. Illinois battled the Wildcats until the last period, but lost, 10 to 3. Last Saturday three points whipped the Wolverines. It would seem that Illinois' best offensive so far is its defense.

Offense Best Defense?

Some one now will arise and say that Ohio State's offense is its best defense. Correct. Six opponents, including the Drake Bulldog, which was hamstrung, 85 to 7, have crossed the Bucks' goal line. Indiana led Ohio State, 6 to 0, and lost, 28 to 6. Chicago held a 13 to 0 advantage and lost, 20 to 13. Only against Notre Dame did this offense is defense theory fail, and then because Bill Shakespeare, the Merchant of Menace, did such a neat job of punting that the Buckeyes were playing inside their own 10 yard line when in possession of the ball. All of which set the stage for Andy Pilney and his accurate forward passing.

One other inference may be made from the records. Ohio State's defense against passes has been shown

Germans Lose Bicycle Lead, but Regain It

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bill Honeman, for two years the American sprint champion, and his partner, Mike De Fillipo, a youth who has done well chasing motorcycles in paced races, last night momentarily knocked the surprising Gustav Kilian-Heinz Vopel team out of the lead the Germans had held continuously from 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Kilian and Vopel lost the lead in the midst of the 9 o'clock sprints, but quite a while before the 11 o'clock sprints began they were back in first place, though tied in mileage with four other teams. Their total of 244 sprint points made them the technical leaders.

The 14,000 who attended the next to last night of Chicago's 34th six day race saw some of the toughest riding of the week. The riders all had doped the strength of their individual adversaries and were challenging and jockeying accordingly. The German youths seemed to have their most feared competitors, Torchy Peden-Jules Audy and Gerard Debaets-Bobby Thomas, groggy, and anticipated little difficulty in wearing down the others in the windup today and tonight.

81 Hour Lead Interrupted.

An 81 hour uninterrupted leadership of Kilian-Vopel ended at 9:28 o'clock when Honeman-De Fillipo went into the lead by a margin of one lap. However, the Germans previously had been tied in mileage during jamming in the first of the 9 o'clock sprints, maintaining a nominal lead by virtue of their point standing.

At one minute after 9 o'clock Cohen Echevaria went into a mileage tie with the leaders, but were second in the standings, the Germans having 224 points to Cohen-Echevaria's 173. At 9:05 the Hill-Rodman pair joined the leaders in mileage, but were third in the standings with 131 points.

Schaller-Yates made it a four way mileage tie at 9:12 o'clock and Honeman-De Fillipo made it a five team matter shortly after and rose to second in the standings by virtue of sprint points.

Walthour Turns On Speed.

There was another big jam at 9:28 o'clock in which Honeman-De Fillipo forged ahead all by themselves, while a second flight was composed of Kilian-Yates and Hill-Rodman. At this juncture the highly touted team of Peden-Audy was four laps back and the equally ballyhooed team of Debaets-Thomas sank into last place, behind McNamara-Walthour, who had improved their standing by sneaking a batch of laps during lulls. During these outbreaks Walthour, though not seriously challenged, put on some of the most spectacular racing of the week.

In a span of furious riding between 10 and 10:10 o'clock Honeman-De Fillipo were knocked back into a five team mileage tie and Kilian-Vopel resumed the technical lead on points.

The worst spill of the evening suspended the jamming for 15 minutes just before the 11 o'clock sprints began. Dempsey, Journey, and Ritter piled up and Ritter had to be carried to the Stadium hospital. The jamming was resumed as soon as Ritter had been revived and patched up.

After the 11 o'clock sprints Rodak and Ritter rode into a tie on mileage and occupied second place on points. At this stage eight of the 12 teams were in a milage tie for the lead.

The race will end at midnight tonight with an hour of sprinting. First place in each sprint will be worth 72 points.

Results of 1 a. m. sprints:

2—Rodak, Debaets, Dempsey, Audy.
3—Audy, Grimm, Debaets, Yates.

NOTRE DAME AND ARMY MEET IN NEW YORK TODAY

80,000 to See Annual Game in Yankee Stadium.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 15.—The subway alumni of Notre Dame will have their homecoming at Yankee stadium tomorrow. Along with the supporters of the United States Military academy, they will make up a crowd of 80,000 that will see the twenty-second annual clash of football's oldest intersectional rivals.

Despite the fact that both contestants have been defeated, the rush for tickets is terrific. Officials of the two schools say they could have disposed of twice as many seats as Yankee stadium contains. Notre Dame's story book finish against Ohio State accounts for much of the hysteria. There will be thousands in the stands tomorrow who haven't heard that Northwestern knocked off the Irish a week ago.

Pilney Out for Year.

Year in and year out Notre Dame and Army are the mightiest and mellowest of the gridiron's intersectional opponents. Despite the rising stars of colleges in the east and middle west, despite bigger student bodies and soaring stadia, this game is the one for glamor, interest, and tradition that grips the nation.

Elmer Layden and 36 players detrained this morning at Harmon, where Joe Byrne, Notre Dame's premier rooter, who has been getting up at unheard of hours to meet Notre Dame teams for years, was waiting at the station with a fleet of cars to take the party to the Westchester Country club in Rye, where the players had their final workout this afternoon.

Andy Pilney, who was carried out of college football forever when they carted him off the field at Ohio State on a stretcher after turning in the most amazing individual performance of the season was in the Notre Dame party. Coach Elmer Layden, however, said there was no chance of him getting into the lineup against Army tomorrow or Southern California, which comes to South Bend next week-end for the final game on the Notre Dame schedule.

Northwestern and Wisconsin, who played victorious rôles in two of the major football upsets of the season last Saturday, will meet at Dyche stadium today before a Dad's day crowd of 25,000. The comebacks staged by both teams after a round of defeats has served to quicken interest in the game.

Today's engagement marks a renewal of one of the oldest gridiron rivalries in the middle west. The first game was staged in 1890 when Northwestern won, 22 to 10. After that opening victory the Wildcats failed to win until 1929 when Hank Bruder led the tmo a 7 to 0 victory. Northwestern won again in 1930 and then made it three in a row by winning, 7 to 0, last year. The series stands 14 victories for Wisconsin, four for Northwestern, and four tie games.

They Fight Letdown.

The Wildcats, overjoyed at turning back the Irish last Saturday, have been fighting all week against overconfidence. Coaches have let no opportunity pass to warn against a letdown. The players are fully aware that the Badgers will prove a stubborn opponent. The morale of both teams should be of the best. The Badgers' victory over Purdue, following five straight lickings, will serve to perk them up for bigger and better things, while Northwestern is equally desirous of improving upon its ninth place rating in the Big Ten standings.

Against Purdue the Badgers presented an unyielding line that repeatedly turned back the Boilermakers' great backs. These forwards are a husky lot, averaging 205 pounds from end to end. They will outweigh the Wildcats 12 pounds per man.

Jankowski Worries N. U.

In Ed Jankowski Wisconsin has a hard running back who has been causing opponents considerable worry all season. He is supported by a pair of capable mates in Emmett Mortell and Glenn Tommerson. Mortell, who does most of the passing, is reported to be on the ailing list, having received a leg injury in the Purdue game.

Northwestern will pin its hopes on its speedy backs, Don Heap and Wally Cruice, and the plunging of Hugh Duvall, veteran full back. Bob Swisher, who has shared the left half back job with Heap, is not expected to play. He is still bothered by an ankle injury received in the Minnesota game.

Purple Will Pass.

The Wildcats are expected to make considerable use of the forward pass, a weapon that has come to their aid in recent games. In the last three games they have completed 11 out of 22 passes, climaxing this effort with a touchdown pass, Cruice to Longfellow, against Notre Dame.

Athletic Director K. L. Wilson announced yesterday that 5,000 general admission tickets at $1.10 will be placed on sale at Dyche stadium today. The New York Giants, professional champions, who play the Bears at Wrigley field tomorrow, will be guests of Wilson today.

SIXTO ESCOBAR WHIPS SALICA TO WIN TITLE

Lifts Bantam Crown in New York.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Sixto Escobar of Porto Rico won the world's bantamweight boxing championship tonight, defeating Lou Salica of Bath Beach, at Madison Square Garden, to gain the recognition of the New York state athletic commission and the National Boxing association.

Salica, who stepped into the championship by outpointing Escobar last August, absorbed a terrific beating. Knocked down for a nine count in the third round and battered about regularly throughout the greater part of the contest, he seemed to have only his brave fighting heart to pit against his challenger's merciless attack.

Body Attack Deadly.

Escobar wagered a steady, methodical fight that enabled him to hold the upper hand throughout. The crowd of more than 8,000 cheered time and again as he evaded Salica's desperate rushes and speared him with pile driving rights to the head and body.

It was his application to Salica's midsection, particularly, that brought Escobar victory. He subjected Salica to a devastating body fire and more than once it semed the champion was about to collapse under this punishment. Salica had all he could do to come up for the start of the 15th round.

Salica Stages Rally.

Badly beaten as he was, however, it was Salica that provided the greatest thrill of the fight. After having been punched all over the ring in the seventh and eighth rounds, he staged a rally in the ninth.

He came out with both fists flying, bounced two rights to the chin. Escobar blinked and fell forward into a clinch, but the champion shook himself free and proceeded to send a barrage of lefts and rights to the jaw. Escobar, almost out on his feet, could do little but defend himself.

Notre Dame and Army in Annual Game

physically in some positions, it nevertheless will be the first time in almost a month that the team has had its full strength on the field. Lieut. Gar Davidson, who is quartered with his squad at Knollwood Country club, said Capt. Bill Shuler, who did not play against Pitt, will be back at end. While he would not concede his boys a chance to whip Notre Dame, Lieut. Davidson did admit they were in the best shape they have enjoyed since defeating Harvard and Yale.

Neither team has any reason to hold back. Both have been defeated and there isn't anything more important than winning from the other. Neither has had a particularly impressive running attack, so the fans are anticipating a forward passing battle. This style of play will be handicapped, however, by the weather man, unless he relents on his prediction of light rain. When Army gets to throwing the ball around it will depend on Monk Meyer, left half back, who is said to be the most accurate chucker in football. With Pilney out, most of Notre Dame's tosses will be by Bill Shakespeare, whose kicking and all around play have attracted attention of All-American pickers.

Cadets to Parade.

The cadet corps will leave West Point at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and, after ferrying over from Weehawken, will be taken to the vicinity of Yankee stadium in buses. It will parade the last few blocks and will put on some military maneuvers for the early arrivals inside the park.

The Army players will be permitted to remain away from the Academy until Sunday night, but the corps must be checked in by midnight tomorrow.

The Army-Notre Dame game always is an excuse for an elaborate social week-end. The West Point Society of New York launched the program tonight with a smoker at the Astor and tomorrow night the festivities go formal with dinner-dances by Notre Dame at the Pennsylvania and by the Army at Astor.

30,000 WILL SEE PITTSBURGH PLAY NEBRASKA TODAY

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Nebraska's football squad raced through a final drill at Shadyside academy today and then went into seclusion to await its annual game with Pitt tomorrow.

Approximately 30,000 are expected to turn out tomorrow, if the weather man gives them a break. The Pitt squad also held a light workout today. The men have been working most of the week on a defense to halt the Husker backs, led by Lloyd Cardwell.

Purdue Hurls Full Strength at Hawkeyes

the streets of the residential sections, summoning all Purdue minded householders to the rally. These were aided in their Paul Revere act by a fleet of cars furnished by merchants and equipped with sirens.

While all of this spirited gathering was going on, the most perplexed man in Lafayette was Noble Kizer, the young man who in the last five years has piled up a record which places him above any other coach in the Western conference. Mr. Kizer had reason to be puzzled, not to say vexed, over the fortunes of his football team.

O, Jugglers, Eh?

That team, after winning three games, then underwent three defeats through a baffling combination of errors and injuries. An almost certain tie in the Carnegie game was nullified by the dead ball rule. A holding penalty recalled a 98 yard dash for touchdown by Sophomore Tom McGannon against Minnesota, which, incidentally, did not see Purdue at its full strength. The Boilermakers gained 130 yards against Wisconsin's 26 in losing, 8 to 0, last Saturday.

The answer? Much of it can be found in the number of fumbles Purdue has made. Sixteen were scored against them in the last two games, with only one recovered.

Kizer's hopes for tomorrow's battle rest on a back field which has proved itself to be one of the best ball carrying units in the conference, barring the fumble mania of the last two weeks. The boys may have to be introduced to each other, for the Iowa game will be their first together as an able bodied detail since the opener against Northwestern. The starting quartet will include Wayne Gift at quarter back, McGannon and Cecil Isbell at the halves, and John Drake at full back. The last named is expected to match the plunging talents of Iowa's Crayne, while McGannon will be the answer to the elusive Simmons. The Boilermakers' front line is practically intact.

They'll Open Up.

Tomorrow is Dad's day at Purdue, and all of the paters present are guaranteed a wide open ball game between two teams which go for everything in sight, neither of them ever having been guilty of conservatism. Statistics for their six games thus far reveal a few startling comparisons. Despite the fact that they are almost even in total yardage, with 1,630 for Purdue and 1,628 for Iowa, Coach Ossie Solem's lads have outscored the Boilermakers 18 touchdown to eight. Iowa leads in yards gained from scrimmage, but Isbell's pitching gives Purdue the edge on passing.

Kizer put his hands through a final brief workout tonight, while Solem was doing likewise at Kramer, which the Hawkeyes will leave by bus tomorrow morning in time to arrive for the game. Solem brought 33 players, not the least of whom is Simmons, the colored sprinter, who had scored five touchdowns this year on runs of 50 or more yards.

Iowa holds the edge in the series, winning seven to the Boilermakers' six. Purdue has won five of the last six, the only Hawkeye victory in that stretch coming two years ago, when Joe Laws almost personally upset the home club.

JOHN KEYS, NEWS SPORTS WRITER, DIES SUDDENLY

John W. Keys, 38, of 328 Lake avenue, Park Ridge, a Chicago Daily News baseball writer, died suddenly at the home of a sister late yesterday, following his release on Wednesday from St. Luke's hospital, where he had gone shortly before the close of last season.

Keys, who was born in Kansas City, Mo., and started his newspaper career there, had gone to the hospital to undergo treatment for lung trouble which developed after he had been gassed in the war.

He apparently was recovering, after several years of illness, when he suffered a relapse yesterday. He had been a member of the News editorial staf for 10 years, serving as a rewrite man until 1932 when he began reporting baseball. He covered the 1932 and 1934 world's series, in which the Cubs participated, but confined his other work to Chicago games because of his health. He had accompanied the teams to California the last three springs.

Although he had been given a 100 disability rating by the government, he insisted on performing his regular duties for the News. He is survived by the widow, Virginia, and a daughter, 2 years old, who is at the home of Mrs. Keys' mother in Los Angeles.

DE PAUL FIVE RENTS STADIUM FOR HOME GAMES

De Paul university's basketball team will play all its home games at the Chicago Stadium, it was learned yesterday. Jim Kelly, De Paul athletic director, has leased the west side building for the season. The Blue Demons will open their schedule against Purdue, Big Ten champions, on Dec. 14.

Four other Western conference games are on the De Paul schedule. Among the games booked for the Stadium are Illinois, Dec. 20; Wisconsin, Dec. 23; Minnesota, Dec. 30, and Indiana, Jan. 3.

BRANDTS PLAY CARDINALS.

MICHIGAN STATE MEETS LOYOLA ON COAST TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Moving into Los Angeles in the midst of what passes here for cool autumn weather, Coach Charley Bachman's Michigan State football team went through a short practice at University of California at Los Angeles field today for its game with Loyola of Los Angeles in Gilmore stadium tomorrow.

Tom Lieb, Loyola coach who went to Notre Dame after Bachman and wiped out the latter's discus and shot put records there, sent his crippled squad through its last drill today.

Lieb has experimented all week with a new line. He plans to start a pony back field. Michigan State visited a movie studio today and will entrain for Lansing a few hours after the game tomorrow.

Will County Grand Jury Absolves Racing Officials

The Illinois racing commission was absolved of "high handedness" in the handling of racing in Will county in the final reports of the grand jury made to Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson in Joliet yesterday. State's Attorney Will R. McCabe had asked the jurors to investigate racing affairs. "The jury is satisfied," the report said, "that Christopher J. Fitzgerald and George H. Foster . . . have exerted every effort to maintain clean and honest racing." Fitzgerald is racing steward and Foster secretary of the commission.

Illini Passes Are Big Threat to Ohio Today

to be weak. Only when the linemen have continued to harass the passer, as in the first half against the Irish, have the boys in the back field known which way to turn. The Illini passing, even with Lowell Spurgeon out of the game as reported, may be just about as mystifying to the Buckeyes as it was to the Trojans. Passing whipped Ohio State last year and passes cost the game with Notre Dame. There lies Illinois' opportunity.

Illinois Has Tough Task.

To translate this opportunity into fact, however, Illinois must wage successful battle against superior weight, stop such runners as Dick Heekin and Joe Williams, and cover an assortment of passes from the flat zone to the deep center.

Tonight the Buckeyes, after Illinois had visited the stadium for the final workout, reviewed their defense. Last night was spent in light scrimmage, with emphasis on power as the best means of crushing the invaders. The Bucks are in good physical condition and every regular can play, if needed.

The squad hasn't recovered mental poise, however, and confidence still is lacking, not only because of what Pilney and Jay Berwanger accomplished, but because Illinois time and again has turned in miraculous upsets.

Only once in 25 years has Ohio State scored more than two touchdowns against the Illini, and that was in 1931 when Ohio State ran wild, 40 to 0. Victory over Illinois tomorrow will send the Buckeyes to Michigan for the season's final, believing they will win a Big Ten championship.

Prep Teams Pick League Finalists This Week-End

The finalists for the public and Catholic High school football championships and the West Suburban conference titleholder for the 1935 season will be determined over the week-end. The title drives will start this afternoon with two semi-final games being played for the Chicago Public High School league crown.

Lindblom, defending champion and winner over Leo in the city championship last year, will oppose Marshall at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, while Parker will meet Schurz at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue, in the two City league semi-final contests.

Tomorrow afternoon, Leo will seek to gain the east section championship and qualify to meet St. Mel in the final round for the Catholic league crown. St. Mel won the west section title by defeating St. Ignatius last Sunday.

De Paul academy, second place team in the east division, also has a chance to win the sectional title, however. Victory for De Paul over Loyola at De Paul field, while Leo loses to De La Salle at Shewbridge field would give De Paul the sectional championship.

Maine will attempt to add another West Suburban conference championship to its list against Riverside on the latter's field today. Maine is undefeated in conference competition, having won six consecutive games. Riverside is in second place with five triumphs and one defeat.

One Catholic league game is scheduled for today. St. Philip and Weber will close their west section schedules by meeting at St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets. St. Philip will be after its second victory in the league campaign.

Elmhurst Ends Season Against Lawrence Today

Elmhurst college will close its 1935 football season today against Lawrence college of Appleton, Wis., at Elmhurst. Elmhurst has won five, lost one, and tied one. Lawrence has won four, lost one, and tied two. Elmhurst will be at full strength, except for Bill Heise, who was was taken to the Elmhurst hospital Monday to have his appendix removed.

St. Benedict's and St. Viator Meet Tonight

A pair of football teams that include several former Chicago high school players in their lineups, St. Viator of Bourbonnais, Ill., and St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kas., will meet tonight in the only indoor collegiate game of the season at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Jim Masterson, a Chicagoan who prepped at Campion academy and who is rated one of the outstanding defensive men on the squad, heads the St. Viator back field. Masterson will be at full back, while Abe Rohinsky and Bill Walsh have been named by Coach John McNamara to start at the half back positions.

Joe Saia, a native of Greenville, Miss., former half back, will be at quarter back. Coach McNamara was forced to use Saia at the position when three quarter backs were sent to the side lines because of injuries.

Coach Larry [Moon] Mullins, former Notre Dame player, will lead the St. Benedict's team into Chicago today.

Past Success of Wolverines Buoys Backers

score the most points. With the Gophers leading and pushing the Wolverines all over the lot, Benny Oosterbaan, present member of the coaching staf, picked up a Gopher fumble near the end of the game and converted it into the touchdown which won the game, 7 to 6.

In fact, so pronounced was "Michigan luck," as it was called in Minnesota, that we well remember the lament of a Minneapolis newspaper man before a game along in those years, who moaned, "We'll have to be twice as good as Michigan to beat them and their luck."

So Michigan took close games in 1929 and 1930 by score of 7 to 6 and 7 to 0, to which, at the time, Michigan replied, "A good eleven makes its own breaks and capitalizes them."

MARQUETTE AND TEMPLE READY FOR DUEL TODAY

Undefeated Hilltoppers Out for 7th Victory.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Marquette university's unbeaten and untied football machine arrived here tonight at 7:39 o'clock from Washington, where it held its final workout in preparation for the battle with Temple tomorrow afternoon.

The Hilltoppers appear fit for the battle with the Owls and, while Coach Frank J. Murray is not predicting a victory, he said "Temple will have to play its best game of the year to defeat Marquette."

Marquette's starting lineup will be the same as the one which faced Michigan State last Saturday, Murray figuring Al Guepe's addition to the back field enhances the speed and deception of the attack.

Owls Are Ready.

Temple is ready. Aided by the return to the starting lineup of Capt. Jimmy Russell, standout right tackle, and with Dave Smukler and Chet Messervey ready to go in at full back and center, respectively, on a moment's notice, the charges of Pop Warner are in better all round condition than at any previous time this season.

Rebounding after the loss to Michigan State's Spartans, the Owls figure they can stop the aerial sorties of the visiting aggregation. Special defensive tactics have been set up by the Temple coaches this week in an attempt to halt Ray Buivid's spectacular forward passes. Marquette's other six foes were unable to stop the Port Washington half back and Temple, even with its new defense, may have the same difficulty.

Pop Is Very Blue.

Warner, as usual, predicts defeat for his eleven, but the players think otherwise. Rain is the forecast for tomorrow, although if the thermometer stays as it was this afternoon there may be snow instead. Lineup:

Tiff Denton	1	7	10	41

1:30 p. m.—Arthur Thurnblad vs. Otto Reiselt.

3 p. m.—Willie Hoppe vs. Jay Bozeman.

9:30 p. m.—Allen Hall vs. Tiff Denton.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The first real good sound spanking in the play at the Sherman hotel for the world's three cushion billiard championship was handed out last night by Welker Cochran of San Francisco as he rolled along to his sixth straight victory.

He draped young, red haired Jay Bozeman, his neighbor from Vallejo, Cal., over his knee and spanked him to the tune of 50 to 20 in a spectacular match. Cochran's victory in 33 innings was the second shortest game of the tournament, and his high run of 10 in the 21st inning was the second high run made during the title chase.

Cochran Nears Title.

The triumph put Cochran within three games of the title and was the finest game he has played since he started his quest for the title. He will play Johnny Layton, the present world champion at 8 o'clock tonight. If he shoves Layton back, he will be a 1 to 2 favorite to go on and capture the title, despite the fact that he will meet Arthur Thurnblad and Willie Hoppe in his last two matches.

Cochran's game was invincible. After eight innings, he was leading 10 to 4, and the difficult angles he was able to negotiate, together with his deft touch of the cue ball, had Bozeman in a siege of the jitters early in the game. Bozeman never recovered. Relentless, Cochran never loafed for a second nor did he falter. He went right on playing in the fashion of a man who has his ambition definitly set on winning this title.

Hoppe, Thurnblad Take It Easy.

Hoppe and Thurnblad, the only two players in the field of ten that have a chance of overtaking Cochran, both loafed yesterday, but must play this afternoon. Thurnblad will battle Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia. Hoppe's opponent will be the same red haired Jay Bozeman, who was so helpless against Cochran last night.

In the final game last night Allen Hall of Chicago defeated Otto Reiselt, 50 to 28. For a time he appeared to be on his way to the high run and short inning tournament record. He made 23 points in 11 innings, while his opponent was able to score but five. In the eighteenth inning, when an intermission was called, Hall enjoyed a 27 to 12 margin.

Hall Is Fortunate.

Later on Hall started to miss shots, the sort of shots he had been missing ever since the tournament opened, the sort that have dropped him into eighth place. He finally made the winning shot in the 39th inning on a five cushion bank shot.

In earlier games Kinrey Matsuyama sent Tiff Denton down deep into the cellar when he defeated the veteran from Kansas City, 50 to 45, in fifty-seven innings. Johnny Layton, defending champion, took picks on Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago and trounced him soundly, 50 to 38, in 53 innings.

Kieckhefer Falls Apart.

The collapse of Kieckhefer has been one of the pathetic notes of the entire meet. He had tuned up for the title play in great fettle. All of his followers in Chicago were certain he was headed straight back toward the throne room.

But he wasn't. He won his first two games. Then he began to lose. When he fell before the bewildering shots Layton made late yesterday, it was his fifth defeat in eight games.

Matsuyama Puts on Pressure.

To beat Denton, Matsuyama had to make the most spectacular finish of the tournament. He made 18 points in the last five innings at a time when Denton appeared to be a certain winner.

In his nine games, Matsuyama has averaged better than a point an inning. The champion to be crowned Tuesday night may not wind up with a better average.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Big Bill Edwards, Princeton's all-time All-American guard, told a group of distinguished alumni at the Touchdown club today that no man ever has given as much to his university as his university has given to him. . . . Among the gathering were some of the most famous names, players and coaches, football has produced. . . . Commenting on the inconsistencies of human nature, Edwards said: "When we were high school and college boys we all wanted to be grown men, and when we became grown men we all wished we could relive our high school and college days." . . . Mal Stevens, coach of the undefeated New York university eleven and former leader at Yale, when asked what difference he observed between the football talent at N. Y. U. and at New Haven, said: "The boys at N. Y. U. are from the sidewalks of New York. They haven't had opportunity to practice kicking like fellows from the open spaces because of restricted conditions in the city, but they are more adept at forward passing." . . .

Among West Point's graduates who are making good in civilian life is Ed Garbisch, captain and All-American center of Army's 1924 eleven, who has a responsible position with one of America's largest advertising agencies. . . . Garbisch married a daughter of Walter Chrysler. . . . Vincent Lopez presented a piano composition at the Touchdown club meeting in which he played 2,400 notes a minute. . . . Authority for the figure is Lopez. . . . We lost count at 1,873. . . . Alumni have helped George Little carry on his intramural program at Rutgers by donating 100 uniforms to boys not good enough for varsity competition. . . . Benny Friedman, in discussing the number of invitations for after dinner talks, said a football coach answered the description of a college president as given by Dr. Angell of Yale, who once remarked that a college president was a pillar of brass by day and a pillar of gas by night. . . . The gridiron luncheon opened with a song dear to the hearts of all Cornell men, "Far Above Cayuga's Waters." . . . And it wasn't a wet party, either. . . .

Grantland Rice says the Ohio State-Notre Dame game was all-time tops for football thrills, as far as he is concerned. . . . Asked why European athletes are allowed to train on beer and ale while the same are anathema for Americans, John Heisman, whose coaching records at Pennsylvania, Clemson, and Georgia Tech made football history, explained: "We Americans take athletics much more seriously than they do in Europe. This is a heritage that has come down to us.". . . Maj. L. D. Worsham, athletic director at West Point, said that on the way home from the Pittsburgh game he noticed Heine Grohs, quarter back, putting away a plate of wheat cakes, ham and eggs and toast about 10 o'clock as he walked through the dining car. . . . "Don't you know it is almost time for lunch?" Maj. Worsham inquired. . . . "Yes, sir," the cadet replied; "I planned to eat right on through."

◆

Ten Years Ago Today—Michigan, Northwestern, and Minnesota were leading the Big Ten conference football race. . . . Reports continued that Red Grange was ready to enter the professional ranks. . . . The Chicago Cardinals took the National Professional league lead by defeating Buffalo, 23 to 6, at Comiskey park. . . . The Bears triumphed over Detroit, 14 to 0, at Wrigley field.

FRICK CONFERS WITH BRAVES ON REORGANIZATION

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Boston Braves' reorganization plans were whipped into workable shape today. Ford Frick, National league head, conferred with C. F. Adams and Maj. Francis P. Murphy, Nashua, N. H., who control about four-fifths of the club's stock.

Bob Quinn, general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, also attended the conference and, with Frick, set an appraisal on the financially distressed club's assets and players.

Quinn, slated to become the Braves' general manager when the reorganization is completed, left for the minor league meeting at Dayton, O., where, he said, he intended to close three deals for the Dodgers.

Frick said that Adams and Murphy appeared to have their financial affairs in shape for presentation to the National league's directors at a meeting late this month. They explained that the club would issue new stock to the present holders with the hope of attracting $350,000 in new working capital.

FIGHT, MAT FANS HAVE CHANCE TO SEE CHAMPIONS

Ross, O'Mahoney Appear Here This Month.

The ten round nontitle match between Barney Ross, welterweight champion, and Ceferino Garcia, Los Angeles challenger, Nov. 29, and the heavyweight wrestling title bout between Champion Danno O'Mahoney and Chief Little Wolf, Nov. 25 at Chicago stadium, are most attractive, but boxing and wrestling shows at small neighborhood clubs this month cannot be overlooked.

Four matches were arranged yesterday for the welterweight elimination contest between Billy Celebron, Rockford, and Lou Halper, Newark, N. J., which headlines the Christmas charity card at the 124th Field Artillery armory one week from tonight. Pat Murphy, who has won his four Chicago bouts, will clash with Mickey O'Shea at six rounds. Other matches at this distance will bring together George Dixon II., Chicago, and George Reilly, Detroit, at 134 pounds, and Davey White, Chicago, and Sailor Born, former Atlanta, Ga., slugger, at 135. Sammy De Pasquale and Sammy Scoglio, local featherweights, will be principals in a four round opening contest.

An intercity amateur show between boxers representing South Bend, Ind., and Chicago's Catholic Youth organization will be presented tonight at the Chicago Athletic association, 12 South Michigan avenue.

Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior welterweight, who had a reputation as a knockerout prior to efforts in recent months, will attempt to regain that standing in an eight round windup against Young Bob Tinsley at Marigold Gardens Monday. Sagilio demonstrated he still can knock down any target he can hit in workouts yesterday and Thursday at Madison Square loop gymnasium, when he floored sparmates by landing on their shoulders.

Davey Day, still Illinois' leading lightweight challenger, is scheduled to open sparring drills this afternoon at Trafton's gymnasium for his ten round fight with Roger Bernard, Flint, Mich., at Guyon's Paradise next Friday. Bernard's best accomplishment is an eight round victory over Barney Ross at the Stadium in 1931.

Light heavyweight wrestling cards have been arranged at White City Monday and Merry Gardens Wednesday. Pat Newman and Bull Curry will meet in the windup event at White City, set for one fall with a 60 minute time limit. Charles Grubmeyer and Toots Culver will be opponents in the semi-final at 30 minutes. The Merry Gardens' topliner will include Zack Malkov.

A novice boxing tournament will be held at Franklin park Nov. 25, 26, and 27, for which applications are being supplied by E. Weiner, athletic director. . . . Fred Grumbier and Hans Steinke have accepted a preliminary bout on the O'Mahoney-Wolf title wrestling card at the Stadium. . . . Jim McMullin faces Pete Mehringer in another match. . . . Champion Ross will complete two weeks' drill today for his return encounter with Garcia Nov. 29. . . . Ross, guaranteed $12,500 by Garcia, holds that the California Mexican is one of the hardest punchers he has met. . . .

CHICAGOAN WINS LOW GROSS IN BANKERS' GOLF

New Orleans, La., Nov. 15.—(AP)—J. B. Birmingham of the National City bank of New York City scored a 71 today to win the American Bankers' association trophy for low net score in the annual golf competition held in connection with the convention just concluded here.

The Philadelphia bowl for low gross scoring was won by R. F. Drew of the Continental Illinois National bank of Chicago, who scored 76.

The trophy given by Rudolf S. Hecht, New Orleans, retiring president, was won by H. J. Haas of the First National bank of Philadelphia, with net 75.

Sixty-three bankers participated in the tournament.

CLASSIC LEAGUE BOWLS TONIGHT ON WEST SIDE

Classic league bowlers will travel to the Cinderella Recreation, 5612 West Madison street, for their matches tonight. The best match promises to be between the Pabst Blue Ribbons and the Miller High Life Beers. The leading Monarch will bowl the Oak Leaf Motors, the Edelweiss will meet Baby Ruth Candies, and the Ben Bey Cigars will shoot against the Moulding Brownells.

Standings:

Monarch	19	11	.987	Edelweiss	14	16	.950

West Section Bouts Finish C. Y. O. Trials

Concluding matches in the west section trials of the fith annual C. Y. O. boxing tournament were held last night at the 132d Infantry armory before more than 2,000. The winners will join the north, south, and suburban section qualifiers in the quarter-final round next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights.

Twenty-four bouts made up last night's card. Continuing his march to the 160 pound title in class B, Tony Gora, 19 year old St. Pius entrant, scored his third straight technical knockout against Charles Watson, St. Joseph's, in the second round. Gora, younger brother of the 1934 C. Y. O. welterweight titleholder, Joe Gora, is conceded an excellent chance of winning a title.

Other victors who impressed the crowd were Hiner Thomas, class A middleweight from Corpus Christi, who knocked out Laddie Rozhon, Sacred Heart, in the second round, and Frank Eder, St. Boniface featherweight, who stopped Don Lareau, St. Peter's, in his first match and came back later in the evening to pound out a three round decision over Joe Leonardo, St. Charles.

BAY MEADOWS TO OPEN 21 DAY MEETING TODAY

San Mateo, Cal., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The gates of the new Bay Meadows race track will be opened tomorrow for a 21 day winter meeting. More than 1,000 horses, including Azucar, which captured the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap last year, are stabled at the track.

Several new records are expected to be established because of the condition of the course, which has been treated with special chemicals and will make racing much faster than over other courses, according to officials.

Hawks Polish Shooting; Play Rangers Next

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—After a two hour workout at Windsor today, the Chicago Blackhawks, who have yet to lose a National Hocky league game this season, packed up and left for Chicago.

The entire session was devoted to shooting, since the team was off form in this department of the game in the scoreless tie against the Detroit Red Wings last night. However, Manager Clem Loughlin was not entirely disappointed with the shooting of his team because the Detroit team elected to play a defensive game from the start, forcing the Hawks also to resort to safety tactics.

Karakas Good in Nets.

As the game progressed it developed into a battle of goalies with Mike Karakas, who a short time ago was cast off by the Red Wings, excelling Normie Smith in the nets.

Today's practice in Windsor was regarded by Manager Loughlin as sufficient to put the Hawks in form for Sunday's game with the New York Rangers at Chicago Stadium. This will be the first of the 16 Sunday bookings at the Stadium.

Tough Week for Rangers.

The Hawks should have an edge over the Rangers in condition, as the New York club, after losing to Toronto last night, again will play the Maple Leafs at Toronto tomorrow night and then have to spend the night on a Chicago bound train. In another game tomorrow the Boston Bruins will meet the world champion Maroons at Montreal.

Thus far the Hawks have one victory and a tie for their season efforts.

Last Rites for Frank Navin in Detroit Today

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—[Special.]—The funeral of Frank J. Navin, president of the world champion Detroit baseball team, who died Tuesday, will be held tomorrow morning in Blessed Sacrament church.

Among the first baseball officials to arrive for the funeral were William Harridge, president of the American league; J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox; Joe Barry, business manager; Harry Grabiner, vice president, and Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox.

Every club in the American league will be represented. Alva Bradley, president, and Steve O'Neill, manager, will represent the Cleveland club; Clark Griffith, the Washington Senators; Thomas Yawkey and Eddie Collins, the Boston Red Sox, and Joe McCarthy, the New York Yankees.

The National league will be represented by either Ford Frick, president, or Harry Traband, secretary.

Maine Captures Prep Cross-Country Meet

Maine High school won the first annual West Suburban conference cross-country meet at Des Plaines yesterday. Maine finished with 23 points, York was second with 35, La Grange third with 47, and Downers Grove was last with 81 points. Bob Frankhauser, Maine captain, crossed the finish line first in 11:06.5.

BEARS' CRIPPLES TO PLAY IN GIANT GAME TOMORROW

Manders, Molesworth and Buss Fully Recovered.

Jack Manders, who was in the Boston game to kick points after touchdowns only; Keith Molesworth and Art Buss, who did not play at Boston due to injuries sustained in the New York contest in the east, are in shape to meet the Giants at Wrigley field tomorrow afternoon, Coach George Halas announced yesterday.

This was a cheerful bit of news for the Bears, who expect a much tougher argument this week-end than they received in the first game in New York, for the reason that Ken Strong, Dale Burnett, and Ed Danowski, Giant stars unable to play against the locals in the east, are ready for service.

Nagurski Is Improving.

Halas is hoping Bronko Nagurski soon will be available, but there is no chance he will get into action tomorrow. He is improving rather slowly, and when fully recovered it is doubtful if he will be permitted to play without a few days of real workouts.

Sisk, Corbett Fill Gaps.

Sisk came through in the two eastern games when he was most needed, as did George Corbett, who is certain to see action against the Giants. That the game will include plenty of passes is a foregone conclusion, for Harry Newman and Ed Danowski of New York rank among the best throwers in the game.

The Giants will arrive this morning and take a short workout before going to Evanston, where they will be the guests of Athletic Director Tug Wilson of Northwestern, at the Wisconsin game this afternoon.

PACKERS HEAD EAST

The squad of 28 players, their coach, E. L. [Curly] Lambeau; trainers, and club officials made the trip. Although five men are injured, all are expected to be ready Sunday, when the Packers must repeat last week's victory over the Lions to stay at the top.

Hocky Referee Dies While Attending Banquet

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—George Pennie, referee in the International Hockey league and the Ontario Hockey association, died last night of a heart attack. He was 43 years old. Pennie, a former lacrosse star, was stricken while attending a church banquet.

STOCKS MOVE AHEAD AGAIN ON 'ECONOMY' PLAN

Specialties Record Large Gains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 15.—Optimism stimulated by the government's announced plan to economize a bit along with the "breathing spell" it is granting industry kept the stock market moving merrily ahead today. Weekend profit taking checked the advance, cutting down some early favorites, but the usual decrease in activity appeared on every tendency to price weakness and bullish followers found nothing in the net result to alter their confidence in the near future. Volume at 2,950,000 shares fell a million below yesterday.

Reports of active European participation in the market were confirmed by the announcement of Radio corporation that its business yesterday in radio telegrams was the largest of the last five years. This business was transacted through the company's Broad street office which serves the Wall street district.

Specialties Rise Sharply.

Many stocks which heretofore had been rather inconspicuous were notably active at intervals during the day. Specialties to turn in good profits for bull speculators included Atlas Tack, which shot up about 4 points; Cluett-Peabody, with a gain almost as large; Eastman Kodak, up 5¼; Omnibus, Manhattan Shirt, Yellow Cab, Gold Dust, and Commercial Solvents.

The sudden burst of strength in Atlas Tack reminded some traders of the stock's performance of two years ago. The issue had been on its good behavior since the time it was rigged up to $34, in December, 1933, and crashed after the intervention of the state's attorney general and the postoffice department. Earnings for 1935 are estimated around $1 a share, or 15 cents more than in 1933. Last year showed a loss.

Several Groups More Active.

Traders showed keener interest in the oils, rail equipments, and food shares. Railroad issues were more active, particularly during the forenoon dealings. Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central, and Union Pacific rose a point or more.

In the oil section, Standard of New Jersey crossed 50 for the first time in several weeks, Continental made a new high, and Standard of Kansas jumped 3 points on a couple of sales.

Bulls in some of the motors had a field day. On a few yards of ticker tape the price for Chrysler was recorded at a rise of two points or so, to the best level since 1929. General Motors carried into new high ground.

Considerable activity was shown by farm implement shares, J. I. Case, in which a large bear interest is understood to be lodged, running up more than 4 points.

SHOE WORKERS DO BETTER SINCE ENDING OF NRA

Employés in the boot and shoe industry received higher wages and worked less hours after abrogation of the NRA codes, Frederick A. Miller, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association and president of the H. C. Godman company, Columbus, O., announced yesterday.

Miller's remarks were made in explaining the position of the industry on the conferences being called in Washington by George L. Berry, coördinator for industrial coöperation.

"Recovery will be best promoted if the government does not superimpose a structure of political control on our industry," he said. "Since the abrogation of the code and by continued effort through voluntary agreement, the shoe manufacturing industry has made considerable progress, as evidenced by the data from the bureau of labor statistics."

These data show that for June, 1935, the industry had average per capita weekly earnings of $17.48, compared with $17.20 for June, 1934, under the code, in spite of a reduction of approximately three-quarters of an hour in the average hours worked per week. Average hourly earnings in June were 51.7 cents, compared with 50.5 cents in June, 1934.

The Florsheim Shoe company yesterday declared a special dividend of 25 cents a share on the class A common in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents, and a special of 12½ cents a share on the class B common besides the quarterly disbursement of 12½ cents. The four dividends will be distributed on Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 14.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common and the regular quarterly payments of $1.50 on the common and $1.75 on the preferred stocks, all being payable Dec. 1 to stock of record Nov. 22.

Directors of the Quaker Oats company voted the regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the preferred stock, payable Feb. 29 to stock of record Feb. 1, and $1 on the common stock payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 31.

Budd Wheel company voted a dividend of $7 a share on the preferred stock, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 18. This clears up accumulations and current requirements on the stock to Dec. 31.

Bank to Levy Cost of FDIC on Depositors

As the banks of the nation yesterday filed their first statements with the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation under the permanent deposit insurance plan, J. M. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, announced that depositors themselves will foot the bill for their protection at his bank—protection which, he asserts, is unnecessary at his and other banks in a sound, liquid position.

J. M. NICHOLS.

With an estimated 50 million bank depositors in the country, Nichols regards this plan as a real lever by which bankers can effectively bring home to each depositor "just one more phase of the Mis-Deal."

Explains to Depositors.

"In the case of the FDIC, as with the rest of the alphabetical organizations, the public must in one way or another foot the bill," said Nichols in an announcement to be mailed to depositors this morning.

"It is your deposits that are being insured, and naturally it is your deposits that must be assessed the premium, which, computed on a graduated scale, amounts annually to 75 cents for each $1,000 or fraction thereof on deposits up to the maximum coverage of $5,000. The portion of the assessment now due will be levied against your account on Dec. 15."

No assessment will be made on accounts of less than $100, Nichols said.

The statements filed with the deposit insurance corporation yesterday showed the average daily balances of deposits, less "floats" or uncollected items, for October. These will be the basis for the first assessment of 1-36 of 1 per cent for the period from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, the permanent insurance plan of the 1935 banking bill having become effective Sept. 1.

No "Pay Day" in Chicago.

Payments must be made within sixty days, but there will be no pay day for the FDIC for a time so far as Chicago banks are concerned. The loop banks and most of the outlying institutions contributed sufficient amounts to the temporary insurance fund to cover not only the current assessment, but part of that for the first half of 1936. These amounts stand as credits, so that the current payments will be nothing more than bookkeeping transactions.

The one exception to this condition in Chicago is the First National of Englewood. Nichols had refused to join the FDIC or pay levies. While opposed to the theory of deposit insurance generally he decided to become an FDIC member after the unlimited liability on banks was replaced by the specific levy of 1-12 of 1 per cent.

The assessments on Chicago banks for the last four months of this year expected to exceed $600,000, and may be near $700,000, based on total deposits of $2,600,000,000 reported in recent statements of condition.

TWO-MAN DIESEL CREW DECLARED UNNECESSARY

Employment of an additional man in the engine cabs of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy's Diesel powered Zephyrs is unnecessary and would add $50,000 yearly to the cost of operating the streamliners, F. G. Gurley, assistant to the executive vice president, said yesterday.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen is reported to be preparing a strike ballot in an effort to force employment of a second man in the cab. Union officials declare it is dangerous to run high speed trains without a second man in the cab. Gurley denied this.

F. P. PARISH REPORTED TO HAVE MADE PEACE WITH COLUMBIA GAS

Information indicating that Frank P. Parish, Chicago utility promoter, is working in behalf of a Columbia Gas and Electric company project yesterday apparently confirmed reports first obtained by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE a week ago that Parish had arranged "peace" with the organization he charged with playing a big rôle in the wrecking of the $60,000,000 Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company.

Parish is reported to be in Detroit on behalf of Columbia Gas, promoting the passage of a mixed gas ordinance in connection with the Detroit City Gas company's contract for distribution of Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line's gas. Panhandle is controled by Columbia Gas. The latter company "tricked" Missouri-Kansas out of its half interest in Panhandle, according to Parish's recent testimony before the federal trade commission. It is Columbia's plan to extend Panhandle's pipe line from the Indiana-Illinois boundary to Detroit, about 300 miles.

However, any plans Parish may have relative to Missouri-Kansas appear to be stymied by the attitude of other interests in it, and the receiver of the company, C. Ray Phillips. He said last night Missouri-Kansas is not negotiating in any way with Columbia Gas and that no understanding had been reached in earlier conversations between the two interests.

"Further," said Phillips, "Mr. Parish has absolutely nothing to say in the control of Missouri-Kansas."

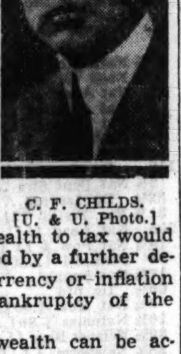
Visions U. S. on Road to Capital Levy

At the present rate of government spending the federal budget cannot be balanced regardless of the tax rate, and a continuation of extravagance may bring about a general capital levy. This warning was given yesterday by C. F. Childs, head of the C. F. Childs & Co., one of the leading firms specializing in government securities.



C. F. CHILDS.

Childs said failure of the government to find new or adequate wealth to tax would probably be followed by a further debasement of the currency or inflation and a resulting bankruptcy of the treasury.

Confiscation of wealth can be accomplished only once and after that the government is without tax sources, Childs said. His comments are contained in the firm's monthly investment bulletin.

Warns People Must Pay.

If any remaining doubt exists that the cost of the present government spending will be borne by the people generally and not by the wealthy, the Childs analysis seeks to dispel them.

"The capital reservoirs of the people of the United States, representing the stored-up savings of former generations, are being drained away by excessive taxation," Childs said. "As banks buy government securities, the savings of the thrifty now carried as bank deposits are being lent to the same government which will tax the same people in order to repay what the banks lent. The depositor himself will be taxed directly and indirectly to redeem the bond the bank bought with the depositor's money.

"The depositor also will be taxed to pay interest on the bond, which interest will reward the bank for the risk it took with the depositor's money. In brief, the government relies and is dependent upon its people to finance its extravagances."

Cites Loss of Wealth.

The march of progress will be inevitably slowed down as taxation reduces accumulated wealth and income upon which industry depends for the employment of labor, he added.

Childs pointed out that confiscatory estate and inheritance taxes distribute and destroy private wealth, and that this wealth is lost for either services or revenues.

The present low money rates are evidence of the lack of confidence on the part of industry and provide little incentive for the employment of money, Childs added.

"Uncertainties persist in threatening both capital and labor. Uncertainity kills enterprise," he said. "A stimulation of industry and trade into activity will solve, in itself, the unemployment situation. Unless and until private capital and industry have courage and confidence that they can visualize a profit which would justify the risk of expanding business in the face of socialistic hobbles and burdensome taxation, low money rate may prove little temptation for the employment of capital."

RAIL EQUIPMENT PLANT MERGER IS CONSIDERED

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The first major consolidation in the railway equipment manufacturing field since the start of the depression is under discussion, C. J. Hardy, president of the American Car and Foundry company, disclosed today. The proposal would unite the Ryan Car company, Mount Vernon Car and Manufacturing company, and the Bettendorf company with Hardy's organization.

The Ryan company builds and repairs freight cars. Its plant covers 89 acres near Chicago and it serves nearly all the railways that enter that city. It reported assets of $1,624,000 last December.

The Mount Vernon Car company's plant is at Mount Vernon, Ill. It is understood to have total assets of $6,000,000.

The Bettendorf company, a "family concern," has a large plant at Davenport, Ia. It is capitalized at about $7,500,000.

OCTOBER LIVING COSTS RISE 0.5 PER CENT; ALL MAIN ITEMS GAIN

The cost of living for wage earners in the United States rose again in October, the index standing 0.5 per cent above September, the national industrial conference board reported yesterday. Every major item showed an increase. Living costs last month were 3.7 per cent above a year ago and 17.3 per cent higher than at the low point of the depression in April, 1933, but 16.9 per cent lower than in October, 1929.

Using 1923 as a base, the purchasing power of the dollar was $1.192 in October compared with 119.8 cents in September, and 123.6 cents in October, 1934.

The largest rise from September to October was the 2.8 per cent increase in coal prices, which were 0.8 per cent lower than a year ago and 8.1 per cent less than in October, 1929. Clothing prices were 4 per cent less than a year ago although 0.1 per cent above September. Clothing prices have risen 22.6 per cent from April, 1933, but still are 24.8 per cent below October, 1929.

Food prices rose 0.5 per cent for the month, 7.7 per cent from last year, and 37.6 per cent from the spring of 1933, but still were 22.5 per cent under their level six years ago. Rents rose 0.8 per cent for the month, 9.5 per cent in a year, and 15.9 per cent from their low of January, 1934, but were 21.1 per cent below October, 1929.

FRENCH CRISIS KEEPS UP FLOW OF GOLD TO U. S.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The gold movement to this country from Paris reflected again today the uneasiness of the French over their internal situation, with $11,493,000 of the metal being engaged for shipment to the United States. The flight of capital apparently has not been lessened by the increase in the discount rate of the Bank of France to 4 per cent.

An engagement of $2,385,000 of gold in India together with the French total brought the amount taken abroad today to $13,878,000 and increased to $575,500,000 the total of gold engaged since the beginning of the movement in September. Of this amount France has contributed $314,500,000 and England $150,800,000.

The franc moved nervously in trading today, but closed unchanged from Thursday at 6.58¾ cents. Apparently in response to the victory of the Conservative party at the elections, the pound sterling continued to rally and showed a gain of ¼ cent for the day, closing at $4.92⅛. All other European currencies held steady or registered slight gains.

A sudden drop of 7 points to 28.66 cents in the price of the yen confused the foreign exchange market with no reasonable excuse apparent for the decline. The Hongkong dollar moved up 80 points to 36½ cents, but the Shanghai dollar sagged 5 points to 29¾ cents.

NEWSPAPER 'ADS' INCREASE 5.9 PCT. DURING OCTOBER

A sharp gain in newspaper advertising volume for October was reported yesterday by the magazine Advertising Age. The large volume of automotive advertising accompanying introduction of new models was mainly responsible for the increase, the publication said. Automobile copy in 84 cities covered by the survey increased from 5,566,000 lines in October, 1934, to 8,025,000 last month, an upturn of 44 per cent.

Total newspaper advertising amounted to 163,333,000 lines, a gain of 10,290,000 lines, or 5.9 per cent. Financial advertising continued to rise, expanding 314,000 lines, or 11.4 per cent, to 2,979,000. Retail advertising increased 7.3 per cent to 102,632,000 lines while general advertising declined 6 per cent to 30,821,000 lines.

Classified volume maintained its upward trend with an increase of 10.3 per cent to 26,360,000 lines.

Prices of Heavy Melting Steel Scrap Raised Here

Prices of heavy melting steel scrap were advanced 50 cents a ton in Chicago yesterday, boosting quotations to $13 to $13.50 a ton. A sale at $13.50 was reported made to the Inland Steel company.

OutputControl Is Nonsense, Says Moulton

The New Deal theory of restoring economic balance and gaining prosperity through restriction of output in production was dubbed "the sheerest nonsense" last night by Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institution, in an address to the Commercial club of Chicago in the Blacktone hotel.

"Whatever may be the merits of production curtailment in meeting temporary maladjustments," said Moulton, "it is only through greater production that we can attain the adequate standard of living we wish. The primary need today is to increase real income and obtain a broad diffusion of purchasing power.

Urges Reduced Prices.

The pathway to true prosperity lies along the road of reduced prices which automatically benefit the purchasing power of all classes, he asserted. In a challenge to business to pursue an aggressive policy of price reductions, Moulton warned that business may expect still further increases in the efforts of government to exercise control over its activities if it does not provide the broad expansion of purchasing power needed.

Cutting costs by cutting wages never will be the solution, he warned.

"We must match advances in productive efficiency and increases in production with added consuming power of the masses, or have maladjustment," said Moulton. "Such benefits were not passed on to the masses in the 1920's. Faced by a productive capacity in excess of consumptive ability, business failed to increase the aggregate purchasing power by passing on the advances.

Seeds of Instability.

"In seeking to maintain price structure and stabilize present conditions, no matter what the era, business sows seeds of instability for the future. Price fixing throttles economic progress. It is clearly short sighted to attempt to maintain conditions. Status quo is a barrier to progress.

"Upon how well business meets the crisis depends the future of initiative in this country. Mass production and consumption are indispensable one to another.

The Brookings president scoffed at any alleged conflict between the profit motive and the welfare of the nation as a whole. The interest of the profit maker coincides with that of the masses, because expanded purchasing power is an absolute necessity to increased profits, he said. Excessive profits from high prices [and lower consuming power] lead to overexpansion and instability in the future, he explained.

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE 4% BUT HOLD ABOVE 1934

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—A less than seasonal decline of 27,137 cars, or 4 per cent, was shown in freight trafic last week, the Association of American Railroads announced today. The total was 653,525 cars.

Large gains were made over the corresponding weeks of last year and 1933, however. The trafic ran 9.7 per cent above a year ago and more than 12 per cent above 1933.

Miscellaneous freight accounted for the largest decline from the preceding week, falling 14,039 cars to a total of 264,745, but contributed most to the rise over last year, showing an increase of 40,395 cars.

Less than car lot merchandise required 164,511 cars, a decrease from the preceding week of 1,065 and an increase of 4,497 over 1934; decrease 1,592 from 1933.

WHEAT HIGHER; LARGE SALES OF FLOUR RUMORED

Short Covering Also Helps Advance.

Heavy buying of wheat futures, attributed to removal of hedges by mills against large flour sales, combined with aggressive short covering swept American markets higher yesterday in the face of relative weakness abroad.

Minneapolis led the advance and at the highest the December delivery was 4 cents above Thursday's close, the greater part of which was maintained. Old crop deliveries here and at Winnipeg gained about one cent for the day, while the July future on the Chicago Board of Trade was ½ cent lower.

While no estimates were made as to the amount of flour sold, the character of the buying suggested the business had been the largest in some weeks. A New York report indicated about 150,000 barrels had been bought Thursday by one interest. This was equal to more than 675,000 bushels of wheat.

Eastern Short Sellers Cover.

Houses with eastern connections, which were free sellers of wheat futures when prices were around the dollar level in the Chicago market, were credited with having covered large lines of short grain. The upward movement was accelerated by reports of shipping sales of 325,000 bushels of cash wheat from Chicago. The bulk of this grain was soft red winter wheat, a variety which has been in limited demand lately.

Part of the wheat will be shipped all-rail to interior mills, while 230,000 bushels will go to Buffalo. About 800,000 bushels of wheat are expected to be cleared from Chicago within the next few days.

In some quarters there was an impression that part of the buying of wheat by eastern connections represented the closing of spreads with securities, the wheat having been sold as a hedge.

Other Grains Are Higher.

Corn and other grains were on the upgrade, with corn gaining about ½ cent despite free selling of that grain against purchases of wheat by spreaders. Oats and rye were fractionally higher.

Closing prices of principal December futures, with comparative quotations, were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .96⅝	$ .95¼	$ .96¾
Corn	.60½	.59⅞	.59¼
Oats	.27¼	.26⅞	.26½
Rye	.50⅛	.50	.50

December corn acted somewhat tight yesterday and went to ⅝ cent premium over the May delivery against ⅜ cent on Thursday. Country offerings to arrive were smaller but receipts here were somewhat larger and this was reflected in an easier undertone in the sample market, some sales showing a decline of as much as 1½ cents per bushel as compared with the December option.

Italy has made small purchases of oats in Argentina recently and 14,000 bushels were exported from the latter country this week to Eritrea for army purposes.

COLDER WEATHER GIVES NEW LIFE TO RETAIL TRADE

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Retail sales, aided by more seasonable weather in some parts of the country, extended this week the moderate upturn of last week, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. Gains for the country as a whole were 5 to 12 per cent over the previous reporting period and 8 to 15 per cent above the corresponding week in 1934.

Larger employment and higher wages in the industrial sections of the middle west, colder weather in the west and Pacific coast regions, and higher cotton prices and government aid in the south were the chief contributors to the expanded trade volume, the credit agency said.

Reliance was placed, to some extent, on mark down offerings and special promotional events to achieve the larger volume, the review said.

Wholesale trade also increased in comparison both with the previous week and the corresponding week a year ago.

Reverting to the general business situation, the agency declared the the most satisfactory progress thus far this month has been recorded during the week. Expansion of activity in motors and steel industries particularly was noted.

IDLE INSURANCE TO REDUCE JOBS, SAYS DONNELLY

No device can be found which would be more effective in increasing unemployment than the so-called unemployment insurance legislation pending before the Illinois general assembly, James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, declared last night before the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce, meeting in Waukegan.

"The only dependable and permanent cure for unemployment is furnishing more jobs in private industry," he said. "Private employers will not be able to absorb workers if the genuinely serious handicaps, which will inevitably follow enactment of legislation of this character, are to be imposed on them.

"The legislation is a stupendous and unsound experiment that will cost the people of Illinois millions of dollars and will fail in its reckless promises to the unemployed."

Burlington Buys 40,000 Tons of Steel

Awards for the purchase of nearly 40,000 tons of steel for maintenance and rehabilitation work during 1936 were made yesterday by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, Ralph Budd, president, announced. The purchase involves an expenditure of $1,600,000, which, with wages and other costs of the program, will carry the total to $5,000,000.

The bulk of the order is for new rail and fastenings, totaling 33,700 tons, of which rail accounts for 20,000 tons. The rail will be of the 112 pound type and will be laid largely on the road's lines east of the Missouri river. Six thousand tons of steel will be used for new car material and bridges.

Will Use Special Steel.

The car steel will be high tensile, special alloy type, Budd said, which will permit construction of lighter cars than those now in use, but which are capable of carrying heavier loads, thus reducing dead weight.

Ten companies shared in the order which is for immediate delivery. They are the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company, Inland Steel company, Colorado Fuel and Iron company, Sheffield Steel company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, Republic Steel corporation, Bethlehem Steel corporation, Granite City Steel company, Pittsburgh Crucible Steel company, and the American Bridge company. Work on the new cars will be started in the Burlington's Galesburg, Ill., shops early in the year.

3 Million for Equipment.

Directors of the road voted late last month to spend $3,000,000 on new freight equipment — the largest amount expended by the road for such purposes since 1929. The money will be used for construtcion of three modern freight locomotives, 750 coal cars, and 300 box cars. The locomotives will be constructed in the railroad's shop at West Burlington, Ia.

The new equipment will be used to replace old rolling stock, a considerable amount of which has been retired in the last few years, leaving only a minimum amount available for service.

CORD MAKES BID FOR CAB LINES IN PHILADELPHIA

Another development in the spectacular business career of two Chicagoans—E. L. Cord and L. B. Manning—was revealed yesterday when the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company asked court approval in Philadelphia of a bid of $302,000 by the Parmelee Transportation company of Chicago for its four taxicab companies.

Approval of the bid would make the Cord interests, which control Parmelee through the Checker Cab and Manufacturing company, major cab operators in six large cities. The company is now operating in Chicago, New York, Atlantic City, Pittsburgh, and Minneapolis.

Officials here had little to say concerning the deal, although R. S. Pruitt, a director of Checker Cab, asserted that, should the Philadelphia concerns be acquired, Parmelee will take immediate steps to improve service by replacing equipment. The four companies own 950 cabs, of which 650 are in operation.

LONG-BELL TAKES FINAL STEPS IN ITS REORGANIZATION

Final steps toward reorganization of the Long-Bell Lumber company, under way for four years, were taken yesterday in Jefferson City, Mo., when necessary amendments to the company's charter were filed, C. T. MacNeille of Halsey, Stuart & Co., reorganization manager, said yesterday.

The company expects to complete its reorganization by Dec. 1. Mortgage bondholders will receive three shares of common and ten of preferred stock for each $1,000 bond held.

Although the control board has not announced its selection of directors for the new concern, no change in operating management is contemplated, MacNeille said.

WORK TO BE STARTED TODAY ON WEST SIDE PWA HOUSING PROJECT

BY AL CHASE.

Steam shovels will start work this morning at 10 o'clock on the site of the first unit of the $6,500,000 Jane Addams houses, which will be built by the Public Works administration on the two west side blocks bounded by Gilpin, Lytle, Taylor, and Sibley.

The combined contract for the demolition of an old gymnasium building of the Jewish People's institute and construction of foundations was awarded yesterday to the B-W Construction company of Chicago, which had the low bid of $104,890. Plans for the superstructure of the buildings are scheduled for completion by the end of next week and it is expected contracts will have been awarded by the time the foundations are completed.

The Jane Addams houses will provide housing units for 305 families and will occupy 6½ acres of land purchased from the Jewish People's institute for $100,640. In addition, 15 acres of contiguous property, now occupied by small homes, is being purchased on the authorization of the President on Oct. 30. It is planned to build 677 family units on this additional land, making for the 21½ acres a total of 982 living quarters.

It was reported from Washington that the first unit would take more than a year to build, being ready some time in 1937. No one would predict when the balance [on land still to be acquired] would be completed.

I. C. C. AND RAILS SPLIT OVER QUIZ OF NEW HAVEN

Pelley Says Probe Is Ridiculous.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—An open breach between the Association of American Railroads and the interstate commerce commission over the latter's public investigation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was in prospect today as J. J. Pelley, president of the association, termed the inquiry "ridiculous," and "shocking."

J. J. PELLEY.

President of the now bankrupt road until a little more than a year ago, Pelley said the investigation could serve no useful purpose and reflected a radical departure from the conservative trend traditionally pursued by the federal agency. He was apprehensive of possible trafic losses in the New England territory, due to ill will the investigation might create.

Facts Readily Available.

In an interview Pelley said the I. C. C. could learn nothing through a public investigation of the New Haven's management and financing that was not readily available to it, and that the commission was well aware of this. Whether his statement was indicative of a more aggressive attitude on the part of the association in its dealings with the I. C. C. could not be definitly established. It was, however, the most vigorous expression directed at the commission by a head of the railroad executives' group in years.

Recalling "abuses" cited by the commission in its first investigation of the New Haven in 1914, when it denounced its domination of New England lines and heavy investments in other railroad operations, Pelley said nothing had occurred since that time either in the road's management or financing that would not bear the closest scrutiny.

Fears Misunderstanding.

He predicted the commission would learn this to its own satisfaction and that the past and present management of the carrier would be completely exonerated. Meanwhile, he feared some damage might be done the railroad as a result of misinterpretation and misunderstanding among New Haven customers and investors.

Pelley said he did not object so much to the commission's investigation as to the manner in which it was announced and the method in which it is to be conducted. Public hearings, he said, are especially objectionable because of possible misconstruction that might be placed upon evidence.

Asked concerning his stewardship of the New Haven, Pelley could cite only three transactions which depleted its cash reserves and declared this effect could not have been foreseen at the time by any one except a depression prophet.

Tells of Expenditures.

The first of these, he said, was the road's action in paying off a $25,000,000 bonded indebtedness in 1929 when the maturity could have been refunded easily at a low interest rate. The second was a $5,000,000 investment in the Waldorf Astoria hotel, which, however, was paying off well, he explained.

The New Haven encountered some difficulty with the latter transaction, Pelley explained, because it entered an agreement to make the investment at a time when it had plenty of cash on hand and was called upon to go through with the deal at a time when it was without the required funds. The result was a $5,000,000 bank loan.

The third factor was Pelley's sponsorship, together with other railroad executives, of President Hoover's plan to have industry spend heavily at the outset of the depression in an effort to bring about widespread reemployment and end the business slump at its inception. In this program the New Haven spent $15,000,000, Pelley explained.

Although all the money spent in this equipment purchase program did not bring an adequate return to the road, it represented a concerted effort to deal with a national crisis and represented the collective judgment of the industry and the national administration.

The chief consideration in all these transactions, Pelley explained, was the fact that, however justified, they represented in the aggregate $45,000,000, or more than enough to have prevented the trusteeship in which the road is now involved. When the petition for trusteeship was filed, he pointed out, the New Haven had a floating debt of some $27,000,000.

Court Continues Hearing on Congress Hotel Plan

The hearing on the reorganization of the Congress hotel under section 77B of the revised bankruptcy act, scheduled yesterday before Federal District Judge Philip L. Sullivan, was continued until Dec. 19. One reorganization plan that was on the verge of being completed fell through because of inability to obtain a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of about a million dollars for remodeling, back taxes and working capital.

RADIO CORP. WILL SELL INTEREST IN BRITISH CONCERN

Gets $10,220,000; Keeps $400,000 Dividends.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, announced today that the directors have decided to sell its holdings of 1,700,000 ordinary shares of the Electrical and Musical Industries, Ltd., of England, to British interests for $10,220,000.

These shares will be purchased by Morgan, Grenfell & Co. and Edward De Stein & Co., London, the announcement said. The purchase price is payable in cash within three weeks in New York funds.

Dividend to Be Retained.

The shares will be sold ex dividend and the Radio corporation will receive in addition to the above amount approximately $400,000 in dividends payable this month. The block of stock, together with 1,000 preferred stocks of the same company, were carried at $13,189,432 and represent 29.2 per cent of the total common capital of the British company.

As a result of this sale and the transaction whereby RCA sold to an Atlas-Lehman group half of its holdings in Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation and gave the group an option on the remainder of such holdings, the Radio Corporation of America has no remaining affiliates in which its ownership is not virtually 100 per cent.

May Retire Senior Stock.

The Radio corporation will have a considerable amount in cash for which it has no immediate requirements. The financial district estimates such cash holdings shortly will be between $27,500,000 and $32,500,000.

RCA has called for redemption $4,000,000 debentures, leaving the structure with little debt and arousing the assumption that an important amount of the cash on hand will be utilized to simplify the capital structure of the corporation. The class A preferred stock, of which 495,597 shares are outstanding, is callable at $55 a share, or $27,257,857, and it is presumed early action will be taken to retire this stock.

VAN SWERINGEN 20 MILLION DEAL VOIDED BY COURT

Rail Terminal Purchase Ruled Unlawful.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Judge Charles B. Faris of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals late today disapproved contracts by which the Missouri Pacific railroad agreed in 1930 to buy terminal properties in Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., from the Van Sweringen interests for approximately $20,000,000.

Judge Faris ruled the contracts should be disaffirmed by the trustees in bankruptcy operating the Missouri Pacific. The judge also advised the trustees to take legal steps to recover the money already paid under the contracts, $3,200,000. The terminal purchases were made from Terminal Shares, Inc., a Van Sweringen subsidiary.

Holds Contracts Unlawful.

Judge Faris held that the contracts were "improvident, unfair, unlawful, and overreaching." He said they constituted, in part, at least, acts outside the legal powers of a Missouri corporation and in contravention of the Clayton act. The Clayton act limits the dealings of one railroad corporation with another to $50,000 in any year, where there is an interlocking of officers or directors.

Marion C. Early, special master for the court, who conducted hearings on the transaction in 1933 and 1934, recommended in a report to Judge Faris last Feb. 14, a reduction of $6,000,000 in the purchase price.

Special Master's Findings.

Early reported the contracts were executed in good faith, without profit to the Van Sweringen interests and that the railroad representatives believed the properties were worth the agreed price, but he recommended disaffirmation of the contracts unless the price were lowered because he said the obligation had become unduly burdensome to the Missouri Pacific under developing conditions which could not have been foreseen.

The RFC, which loaned about $23,000,000 to the Missouri Pacific, attacked the deal on the ground the price was excessive. Government accountants, in the hearings, placed "real value" of the properties at $6,152,000, but made no allowance for trafic value.

BENTON HARBOR PRICES.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Today's Benton Harbor fruit market prices were: Apples, bushels, Jonathans, 75 to 80 cents; Greenings, 80 cents; Delicious, mostly 90 cents, few $1.12; Grimes Golden, 65 cents; Wagners, 65 cents.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Raw sugar was quiet today. It was disclosed that late last week a local refiner bought 6,500 bags of Puerto Rican of this year's quota at 3.40c per lb, which was 10 points below the previous sale, and established the spot price at this level. Over-quota sugars were unchanged at 3.25c. The only additional business was 10,000 bags of over-quota Puerto Rican for early December arrival at the 3.25c level.

Futures were inactive, with price changes narrow. After selling 1 point higher on scattered covering and trade buying, the market reacted under liquidation and closed unchanged to 1 point net lower. Sales 1,500 tons. There were no transactions in the No. 2 contract, with that market closing 1 point net lower.

Raw sugar prices in cents per pound:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.
December	2.43	2.44	2.43	2.44	2.44
January	2.18	2.18	2.17	2.17	2.17
May	2.23	2.23	2.22	2.22	2.23

PROFIT TAKING IN BUTTER CAUSES DECLINE IN PRICES

Heavy profit taking developed in butter futures yesterday after an early advance to a new high level for the season and since 1931. The close was ¼ to ⅝ cent lower with November at 31⅛ cents and December at 31¼ cents per pound.

Egg futures continue on the downgrade as the result of scattered liquidation on bearish consumption reports and closed ¼ cent lower yesterday, both November and December being quoted at 22 cents per dozen. Fresh egg prices slumped 1 to 1½ cents. Sales of butter on the Chicago Mercantile exchange aggregated 213 cars, eggs 208 cars and potatoes 2 cars. Deliveries on November contracts were 36 cars of butter, 3 cars of eggs and 5 cars of cheese. Prices:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Cotton gray goods sales were moderate today but prices were strong. Percales moved in fair quantity. Rayon cloths were in good demand. Wool goods mills had little new business. Raw silk was 3 cents higher. Burlaps were strong.

CHICAGO STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR; 12 AT NEW HIGHS

46 Issues Rise, 45 Decline and 45 Are Steady.

Chicago stocks were irregular yesterday, with the 136 issues traded evenly divided between advances, declines, and unchanged prices. Twelve new highs for the year were made as 46 issues rose, 45 declined, and 45 held steady. Transactions totaled 91,000 shares.

Continental Steel and Libby shared the spotlight in respective turnovers of 9,000 and 7,000 shares. Continental common was up 1½ to a new high, while the preferred rose 2 points to equal its previous best mark. Libby rose 1⅝ to a new 1935 high on a recurrence of reports of better earnings. Swift and Armour were firmer.

Walgreen Gains a Point.

Walgreen advanced another point to be near its best price of the year. Merchandise shares were about steady, with Butler Brothers and Marshall Field actively traded. The radios also held about even, though Zenith surrendered a minor fraction.

Utilities were firm. Commonwealth Edison regained a fraction and Public Service common rose 2 points. Central Illinois Public Service preferred made another new high, but reacted slightly toward the close.

Borg-Warner rose a point, although none of the other motor shares showed any urge to go forward.

Brewing Issues Active.

Brewing issues were in good demand, with Berghoff edging to a new top for the year. Kingsbury and Heilemann also advanced fractionally.

New highs for the second consecutive day were recorded for Independent Pneumatic Tool and Jefferson Electric in light trade. Others moving into new ground yesterday included Northwest Bancorporation, Oshkosh Overall, and Chicago Electrical Manufacturing A, the latter advancing 2⅜. The former was up 1¼ in a heavy turnover of 4,600 shares. Wisconsin Bankshares also was strong, equaling its best previous price this year in a fractional rise.

HOGS HAVE NEW UPTURN; FARMERS REDUCE SUPPLY

Further advances of 15 to 30 cents were scored in hogs yesterday as farmers reduced their offerings and fresh pork rose to a new six year high for November. Selected young hogs rose to the top price of $11.95, processing tax included, the highest November mark since 1926. The bulk of young stock, 140 to 250 pounds, brought $11.75 to $11.90, the narrowest price range of the season, while the average at $11.70 was only 25 cents under the extreme top.

The market for slaughter lambs suffered a mild setback yesterday. Buyers were cautious, explaining that meat from lambs slaughtered next week will be sold in competition with poultry in retail channels during Thanksgiving week. Most packers demanded slight concessions to protect their purchases. Declines amounted to 10 to 15 cents. Selected native ewe and wether lambs sold to shippers at the $10.65 top, off 10 cents.

A sluggish dressed beef trade was reflected in yesterday's slow cattle market. Hardly enough sales were made to establish a dependable list of quotations, but the trend of prices for the kinds of cattle offered ruled weaker again.

The following figures on hog prices include $2.25 per cwt collected for the federal government as processing tax. There is no processing tax on cattle or sheep. The price quotations given below are for 100 lbs of live animal.

COTTON CLOSES STRONG; PRICES UP 4 TO 13 POINTS

Cotton advanced to a new high on the current movement yesterday and closed at the top. An early dip, due to profit taking, caused mills to buy freely, and later there was relatively little pressure. Chicago closed with net gains of 6 to 12 points and other markets were up 4 to 13 points.

The average price paid for spot cotton in the leading southern markets on Thursday was 12.02 cents per pound, or over 2 cents above the government loan level to the producer. The spot price averaged 20 points above the December delivery at New York, and compared with 12.46 cents for spot cotton a year ago.

Spot cotton closed 10 to 15 points higher with New Orleans, 12.30 cents; Galveston and Houston, 12.20 cents, and New York, 12.35 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

LARD UP 12½ TO 27½ CENTS ON STRENGTH IN HOG TRADE

Soaring hog prices were reflected in a sharp advance in lard futures yesterday with shorts beating a hurried retreat. There was also some buying which brokers regarded as for investment. Closing trades were at net gains of 12½ to 27½ cents.

Cash lard closed at $13.37; loose and leaf, $13, and clear bellies at $17.80 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

*New 1935 high.

New York, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—Second grade railroad liens resumed their advance in the bond market today, with a volume of trading somewhat lighter than that of yesterday. Transfers of $16,719,000, par value, compared with $17,569,000 the day before.

Obligations of the several companies controled or affiliated with the Van Sweringen brothers, including the Nickel Plate railroad, Chesapeake corporation, Alleghany corporation, and Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, were again star performers with gains of small fractions to more than 5 points.

Others Reach New Highs.

Industrial and utility bonds were held more closely in the rising curve by increased investment interest and quite a number of new highs for a year or longer were outstanding in these groups. United States governments remained extremely sluggish, 3-32ds lower to 4-32ds higher with transfers less than $750,000.

The day's news was as much in favor of bonds as it was stocks, and while there was a certain amount of switching from high priced mortgages into more speculative media, the transactions were easily absorbed.

Issues Particularly Firm.

Particular firm spots in various groups included Nickel Plate 6s, up 5½ points; Utility Power and Light 5s, up 2¾; Reading Coal 6s, up 2; New York Railways, up 2⅜; Lehigh Valley 5s, up 1⅜; International Paper 5s, up 2⅛; Alleghany 5s, up 1¼; Chesapeake Collateral 5s, up ⅞; and Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, up 2 points.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol.

Investors' Guide: Would you be kind enough to send me a report on U. S. Industrial Alcohol?—H. H.

Answer: United States Industrial Alcohol company is one of the leading producers of industrial alcohol. It entered the potable liquor field in 1933 but it traded its holding in its liquor subsidiary for 138,000 common shares of National Distillers stock. It owns a 20 per cent interest in stock of Pure Carbonic company of America, manufacturer of carbon dioxide used in making dry ice. Air Reduction company owns a substantial minority interest in United States Industrial Alcohol and a 73 per cent interest in Pure Carbonic.

Annual capacity is about 35,000,000 gallons, about 40 per cent of which is used as an anti-freeze agent. The remainder is consumed by a varied group of industries.

The major determinant of alcohol prices is the price of sugar molasses [blackstrap]. This is available in large quantities during only a short period of the year. Alcohol prices, consequently, usually are stable during the course of a year.

Net income in the first half of 1935 was $276,000 or 70 cents a share. In the corresponding 1934 period net income, excluding nonrecurring profit of $605,000, was $352,000, or 90 cents a share.

Tonnage sales in 1934 were 23 per cent greater than in 1933 and dollar volume increased 6½ per cent. Net income for 1934, including $722,000 profit on sale of distilling properties and $676,000 inventory credit from previous years, was $1,580,000, or $4.04 per share. In 1933 net income, after $772,000 inventory credit, was $1,393,000, or $3.56 a share. In 1932 net income was $176,000, against losses of $1,834,000 and $1,895,000 for 1931 and 1930.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934 [including National Distillers stock], were $13,091,000 and current liabilities were $1,831,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 391,033 shares of no par capital stock. Dividends on the stock were resumed with the payment of 50 cents a share on March 30, 1935, which quarterly rate has remained in effect since.

The stock is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

Crane Company.

Investors' Guide: Please inform me as to the book value of Crane company common stock and the market value on Dec. 31, 1933.—H. Z. W.

Answer: On Dec. 31, 1933, book value of Crane company common was $25.87 a share; market value on Dec. 30, 1933, was $8 a share. There was no market on Dec. 31, which was a Sunday.

The board of education warants listed for redemption were education fund, E-872 to E-2401; building fund, B-1051 to B-2327; playground fund, P-3 to P-30, and bond redemption fund, S-1 to S-375.

Friend of the Coal User

The Friend of the Coal User will supply information on economical use of coal in an attempt to enable users to meet with less loss the added expense which the Guffey coal law is loading on the Chicagoland public. Inquiries should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Items of general interest will be published.

Which Is Cleaner?

Chicago, Nov. 5.—I am interested in either hot water or furnace heat for six rooms. Will you please inform me which heat is cleaner and which is more economical? A. W. S.

Answer—A hot water heating system is cleaner than a hot air furnace, as it does not carry dust. It will increase the value of your property much more than a hot air system and its fire risk is less. The cost of operation is approximately the same for both systems.

Fuels Compared.

Evansville, Wis., Nov. 7.—Disregarding freight and handling charges and figuring B. T. U.'s per 2,000 pounds, how do the following compare: Illinois, 6x3; Pocahontas; hard coal, and petroleum coke? If it were possible to burn the four kinds of fuel separately under the same conditions, which should prove the cheapest? A. M. W.

Answer—The usual method of figuring the relative heating values of the various fuels you mention, as based on their B. T. U. content, is as follows: B. T. U.'s per ton divided by cost at location.

Pocahontas	14,067
Anthracite	13,500
Petroleum carbon	14,400

RUSSIA DECREES FIVE RUBLES TO BE WORTH DOLLAR

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The soviet union today, through the council of people's commissars, ordered the ruble stabilized at the rate of 5 rubles for one United States dollar, effective Feb. 1, 1936, and at the same time provided that the government owned Torgsin stores should accept only rubles in exchange for goods.

The council's decree ordered the closing of the stores and instructed foreigners and Russians with incomes in foreign currency to buy rubles to meet living expenses. This decree eliminates the double currency system under which the internal or paper ruble is worth approximately 4 cents and the gold ruble, merely a measure of foreign exchange, at 87 cents.

Income of Russians will not be affected, except those that live on remittances from abroad. It is generally predicted prices will be drastically cut by Feb. 1, but, if not, the rent, food, and other basic needs of foreigners would be prohibitive in price. A loaf of bread, costing 12 cents today, would rise to 60 cents in the process of revaluating the ruble.

I'M AN EFFICIENCY EXPERT AND I DON'T MEAN TO CRITICIZE WHEN I REMARK ABOUT YOUR NOT WORKING AROUND HERE!!
TH' ONLY REASON I DON'T WORK IS BECAUSE I FEEL TUR'BLE! I REALLY OUGHT'A SEE A DOCTOR!!
NO, BUT I WAS GOING TO SUGGEST THAT THE BEST THING FOR YOUR HEALTH WOULD BE TO GIVE UP SMOKING AND DRINKING!!
THAT'S TH' BEST THING, EH?
WELL, WHAT'S TH' NEXT BEST THING?
